

LOCAL NOTES

The University Glee Club and Orchestra gave an entertainment at the State Normal at Greensboro Saturday night.

An aggregation of local stars will present a new play, "Anthropophysiameibomechane," in the chapel on the night of May 1st.

The University of Virginia and Tulane University football elevens may meet in New Orleans some time during Christmas week 1907.

The special from Greensboro Sunday brought in the mail and the students had the unusual experience of receiving the Sunday news before it grew stale.

Miss Leona Young, a young lady who has classes in elocution and music in the village, gave a very enjoyable recital in Commons Hall April 19th.

Carolina defeated the Bingham school of Asheville here Friday by the score of 4 to 3. The game was called at the end of the sixth that the Bingham boys might drive to Durham in time to catch the west-bound train.

While the members of Chapel Hill Fire Company No. 10 were revelling in ice cream and cake at Pick's Friday night somebody gave the bellcord at the Methodist church a yank and lo! through windows and doors the heroic firemen vanished like magic only to find that "Buck" Hicks was merely lighting up another cigarette.

Mr. Sam Farabee, who was assistant editor-in-chief of THE TAR HEEL last year, has decided to enter the larger field of newspaper work, and left Tuesday for Raleigh to accept a position as reporter with the Evening Times. Mr. Farabee has shown himself while in college to have no little talent as a writer, and will no doubt make good in his new position.

Star Course Lecture.

Dr. Thomas E. Green will deliver the final lecture on the Star Course program for this year in Gerard Hall tomorrow night. Dr. Green has been associated for twenty-five years with the rapidly flowing current of American life and is said to be a speaker of marked power and ability. His lectures deal largely with civic problems. A few of his subjects are: "The Key to the 20th Century," a study of American dynamics; "Civic Bacteriology," a study of American problems; "Left Handed Men," a song for the struggle; and "The Gospel of Discontent," a protest against the simple life.

Rabbit Shuffle Forever!

While Carolina and Virginia were battling in Greensboro, and the Juniors and Seniors were locked in mortal combat on the new athletic field a contest that eclipsed both in importance was taking place on the diamond behind the Gym, where, in a game replete in sensational plays, the Chapel Hill Teasers went down in defeat before the stalwart champions of Rabbit Shuffle. Six to four was the medicine they administered, and it was exceedingly bitter.

What matter if the hands of the Shuffler's fielders were as guiltless of gloves as are the cheeks of a blooming Freshie of fuzz? — they could walk up into the zephyrs with alacrity, nevertheless, and pull in drives that would have made many much be-gloved collegians wince with pain. What matter if their "s. s." were a "short stopper" and manipulated a mitt large enough for an abnormally sensitive catcher? — he could capture the elusive sphere in a manner that made the Chapel Hillians gasp. The Rabbitites could biff the said sphere, too, clear out of sight, and in spite of the gyrations of the Chapel Hill boys' southpaw battery the homers were doomed.

Nor was the lead of the boys from Rabbit Shuffle satisfactory. Loud were their protests at the decisions, of "Empire" Loyd, the local representative of Uncle Sam. Moreover, when it was discovered that scorer Pendegrass had given both first and last innings to Chapel Hill great was the demand for Pendegrass, but Pendegrass was not to be found. A substitute was sought in the "empire", just in time to catch a fleeting glimpse of his coat-tails rapidly disappearing over the horizon by the well. But Rabbit Shuffle won just the same. Rabbit Shuffle forever!

As to the Sheepskins.

The style of the diplomas to be awarded to the members of the graduating class has been changed this year. Heretofore the diplomas have been in Latin, lithographed with sundry impressive flourishes on exceedingly academic sheepskin. The sheepskin is to be retained, but from now on the diplomas will be in plain United States engraved in script. The new design will very probably be far less embarrassing to certain members of the class who have held extended negotiations with Dr Howe.

A Tar Heel Club.

There has been formed at the University of Virginia recently a club composed of students from the Old North State, the organization being known as the North Carolina Club. Mr. Francis A. Cox has been elected president of the club, Mr. James F. Robertson secretary, and Mr. George Kidder, treasurer.

The club's members are: Messrs. R. J. Brevard, T. D. Prohan, E. S. Bullock, F. A. Cox, M. A. Eason, C. C. Hardison, S. S. Irvin, H. Irwin G. E. Kidder, Oliver Kinsey, H. S. Lewis, N. C. McConnell, W. A. Murphy, J. F. Robertson, B. S. Snowden, C. S. Taliaferro, and S. C. Williams. Of this number Murphy, '07, Cox, '05, and Lewis, '05, formerly attended the University of North Carolina.
