

Commencement Program.

Bishop Eugene Russell Hendrix, who is to preach the baccalaureate sermon, needs no introduction to Southern people. Since 1886 he has been recognized as one of the ablest bishops in the Southern Methodist church. Prior to that time he was prominent as preacher and author, lecturer in Emory College and Vanderbilt University, and as the president of Central College, at Fayette, Missouri.

Dr. Andrew F. West, who is to deliver the principal address on Commencement day proper is the dean of Princeton University. It may be said of him that his reputation for scholarship and eloquence is international. In recognition of his ability along these lines Oxford University, England, conferred upon him, a few years ago, the honorary degree of Doctor of Literature, making him one of the few Americans who have been thus highly honored by a foreign university. The University is fortunate in securing the services of Dr. West for this occasion.

Rev. Clayton S. Cooper, of New York City, is a prominent minister and one of the international leaders in the work of the Young Men's Christian Association. Hon. Charles M. Stedman, of Greensboro, the alumni orator, has long been one of the foremost men in public life in North Carolina. He is widely and favorably known as a scholarly and eloquent speaker.

The Senior class this year numbered, at the beginning of the session seventy-two, but several of its members have dropped out. It is expected that at least sixty-five men will graduate, however, in June. This being the case the class of 1907 will be the largest graduating class since the reopening of the University after the Civil War. The largest number graduated by any single class since that time has been sixty, this mark being reached by the class of 1905.

Applied Shakspear.

That is always the way it happens. Just as I thought it was a case of "Love's Labours Won", it proved to be only "Love's Labour's Lost". Here I am in my room for the "Twelfth Night", as melancholy as "Hamlet," telling over and over again to myself this "Winter's Tale". The "Tempest" howls without by way of harmonizing with my present state of mind. The course of true love will never run "As You Like It". It rather partakes of the nature of a "Comedy of Errors". Could there have been such lovers as "Antony and Cleopatra", or "Romeo and Juliet"?

No wonder poor "Othello" got muddled when he tried to make his love "Measure for Measure". "All's Well That Ends Well" don't apply in love; and there isn't going to be any "Taming of the Shrew" business for me. For myself I don't care about "Much Ado About Nothing". In this love business you have to be as big a fool as "King John", and as sentimental as "Richard the Second". Then the whole affair may end as tragically as it did in "King Lear" and "Macbeth". That was a sweet and encouraging story of "Cymbeline" though, and the "Merry Wives of Windsor" were a jolly set. "Julius-Caesar!", that hunch-backed toad, "Richard the Third" is creeping towards me, dagger in hand, I cannot escape!—I awoke, it was all a "Midsummer Night's Dream".

Both Games Ours.

Carolina took both the William and Mary games, played Friday and Saturday, with very little trouble. The visitors put up a clean game each time, but were clearly out-classed from the start. The inability of Kirkmeyer, their catcher, to throw to second put them largely at the mercy of Carolina's baserunners, who took second almost at will.

In the first game Lewis pitched nice ball for William and Mary, allowing only four hits. Two of these were three-baggers, however, and proved very disastrous. "Old War Horse" Story did the twirling for Carolina and had so much steam that the visitors succeeded in connecting with the ball only twice. His work and that of Thompson at first were the features of the game. Both succeeded in securing three-baggers. Out of the 27 men put out Thompson handled 20 and Story struck out his share. Seven to one for Carolina was the final score.

The second game was the home team's at the rate of 4 to 0. Montgomery pitched for the locals, his southpaw delivery proving very effective. Joynes, who presided for the Virginians, did good work, but had the misfortune to be found for two three base hits and two doubles, Story, James, and Thompson being the guilty parties. Although the visitors hit Montgomery freely they had no success in placing him. Freddie Stem umpired both games.

Cornell University Medical College.

The session begins on the last Wednesday in September. For entrance into any class there is required a preliminary education equivalent to at least a four year "high school" course including English, primary Latin, Algebra and Geometry. The first two years are devoted to Anatomy, Chemistry and Physiology, and may be taken either in Ithaca or New York. The last two years are chiefly clinical and must be taken in New York.

DEPARTMENT OF MEDICINE

Undergraduate Department. The One Hundred and Forty-second Session will begin September 27, 1907. The course, which covers a period of four years, of eight and one-half months each, is eminently practical, and properly graded, beginning with laboratory instruction in the fundamental subjects, and concluding with a comprehensive system of clinical instruction, terminating in the Fourth Year with the assignment of students as clinical clerks in the Hospital.

A large proportion (at least 80 per cent.) of the graduating classes secure positions as Resident Physicians in Hospitals.

Summer School for Graduates. The clinics and laboratories of this Department are open throughout the year for the benefit of those who wish to engage in graduate work. For those whose time is more limited, a comprehensive course is given, beginning this year May 13, and continuing for a period of six weeks. This course is designed to meet the needs of the practitioner.
