COACH LAMSON, during his sojourn in these parts, has won for himself a place in the hearts of the students. This he has done, not only by his excellent work in training the football men, but also by his attractive personality, his square dealing, and the many evidences he has given that his heart is in the right place.

When we reflect on the difficulties under which Dr. Lamson has worked in order to turn out a good team, we can but admire his persistence and steadfastness of purpose. From material that was discouragingly light he has developed a team of which we must needs be proud, a team which has been declared by a football expert to be "about the fastest that Carolina has turned out in years." Of course the players played well their part; otherwise his efforts would have resulted in failure. But we firmly believe that if Dr. Lamson had been more a football machine and less a man, that our team would never have reached its present excellence.

All in all, Dr. Lamson has shown himself to be a thorough gentleman. We count it a privilege to have known him and we are sure we voice the sentiments of our fellows when we say that we hope it will be possible to have him with us again next year.

COLLEGE SPIRIT has been rife at Carolina this fall. We have never seen it better. It has found its expression in various ways and it invariably rang true. It is an easy thing to yell and cheer until you are blue in the face when the team has won some great victory, but the real test comes when the team has met with defeat. The boys who went to Richmond to see the Virginia game met this test in a gratifying manner, and must have won at least the respect of the Richmond people by their conduct after the game. All seemed to realize that defeat must needs perch itself upon one banner or the other, and Fate had decreed against us. And this fact urged them on to show their devotion to the team that had put up such a magnificent fight.

For the past week or so the spirit has not perhaps been all that it might be, but it has nevertheless been good. This was clearly shown Tuesday night at the mass meeting. There was manifested an eager desire to show the players that, whether they won or lost, the students were with them. The speeches were for the most part good and the mass meeting was a success. It does our heart good to see such spirit.

THIS is the last issue of The Tar Heel to appear before Christmas and the editors will now proceed to endeavor, by the process of a mighty "boning," to escape a fall.

We are right glad to take a rest. It gives us the headache to ponder so learnedly over the great questions of the college, State and nation. Said questions we will lay aside till The Tar Heel again makes its appearance, and apply ourself to the consideration of less weightier questions.

For the student readers of The Tar Heel we wish many good things, success in the examinations, plain sailing in holiday courtship and for one and all we wish, in the old but ever new phrase, a "Merry Christmas and Happy New Year."

THE powers that control the destinies of the scrub football team have, in our opinion, perpetrated a rank injustice on some of the members, by deposing them and filling their places with players from the class teams. Men who have played hard and faithfully all the fall were compelled to stand aside and see men who had been in two line-ups against the Varsity take their places for the Oak Ridge game at Greensboro yesterday. We fail to see the justice of it.

THE social problem has in some degree been settled. A plan has been adopted that we believe has met with the approval of the fraternity and non-fraternity men alike. With both elements satisfied, we see no reason why the plan should not succeed, and it is our firm belief that it will—that the social features of next Commencement will break all records.

Special Religious Services.

Dr. Junius W. Millard, pastor of the Ponce de Leon Avenue Baptist Church of Atlanta will conduct special religious services on Sunday Dec. 8, at eleven A. M., at three P. M. and at night in Gerrard Hall. Dr. Millard is a native North Carolinian. He was born in Goldsboro and is less than forty years old. He has a very pleasing personality and never fails to charm his hearers. His address, "The Perfection of the Unflinching Face," delivered before the Summer Student Conference was one of the strongest efforts of that occasion.

Dr. Millard will come to Raleigh to the A. & M. for two days before he comes to the University. We are fortunate in securing his services. A feature of the meetings will be the music. There will be a soprano solo in the morning and Dr. Herty will render a solo in the afternoon. These inducements coupled with the recognized power of the speaker ought to bring every man in the University out every time.

DEPARTMENT OF MEDICINE

Undergraduate Department. The One Hundred and Forty-second Session will begin September 27, 1907. The course, which covers a period of four years, of eight and one-half months each, is eminently practical, and properly graded, beginning with laboratory instruction in the fundamental subjects, and concluding with a comprehensive system of clinical instruction, terminating in the Fourth Year with the assignment of students as clinical clerks in the Hospital.

A large proportion (at least 80 per cent.) of the graduating classes secure positions as Resident Physicians in Hospitals.

Summer School for Graduates. The clinics and laboratories of this Department are open throughout the year for the benefit of those who wish to engage in graduate work. For those whose time is more limited, a comprehensive course is given, beginning this year May 13, and continuing for a period of six weeks. This course is designed to meet the needs of the practitioner.
