PROFESSOR Williams may not have been altogether right when he said that to the Senior class must be given the thanks for the present unified condition of the University students, for though the Senior class started the ball to rolling, the Juniors have all through given their most hearty support. He was, however, unquestionably right when he said that the students were together more than they had been in years. We have talked with alumni who were here a dozen years ago, and from their statements we have been led to believe that they could hardly realize the good feeling that now exists. There has been a gradual change for the better during our own college life, until now it has flowered into a condition of unity that must be a source of gratification to every loyal son of the University.

These remarks have been called forth by the developments of the past two or three weeks; the election of the ball managers under the new system; the Junior Prom movement, which gives promise of such excellent results; and the action of the fraternities in giving a dance to the two upper classes.

The Junior Prom and the fraternity dance are things that, if thought of at all two years ago, existed merely in the brain of some dreamer as something that might come true in the dim and distant future—when a complete revolution had taken place in conditions at the University.

When first the matter of the Junior Prom was mentioned, fear was expressed on the part of some of the students that the fraternity men might view the movement, if not with hostility, at least with passivity. But if actions speak at all, the decision to give a dance to the Juniors and Seniors means that there is a sincere desire on the part of our fraternity friends to do whatever is in their power to improve the social situation.

MR. Jake Morehead suggested in the Di Society Saturday night that a committee be appointed to look into the advisability of turning two of the Commencement dances over to the Sophomores and the Freshmen. Such a committee was appointed, and while of course it is not within the province of the societies to take action in the matter, we have no doubt but that if this were done it would cause quite a number of men, who would otherwise leave immediately after the examination period, to remain on the Hill.

The object of all this ball manager agitation has been to cause Commencement to be more of a University affair, and it seems to us that this is but another step—and a good one, too—in the same direction.

We hope the Sophomores and the Freshmen will give the matter serious consideration.

THE library hours have been lengthened somewhat, and in addition the building will be opened for two hours on Sunday. It is to be regretted that the building cannot be opened at night, but as Dr. Wilson says, it is impossible to secure lights. We trust that the power house may be enlarged, so that this difficulty will be removed next year.

A Dog Story.

A rather remarkable story is going the rounds in Chapel Hill in which a dog and a well are the principle characters. It seems that a large bird dog, in attempting to jump a fence at the home of Mr. Isaac Pritchard one night last week, found himself going down, down, down, where the sweet, pure, crystal waters flow. For the well is deep.

Next morning about the eleventh hour some member of the family discovered the presence of the dog and an attempt was made to do the rescuing stunt. A large bucket was lowered, but the dog refused to do his part. So a man of African extraction was sent for and sent down to the aforesaid crystal waters. He tied the rope around the neck of the dog, and those above hauled the beast into the light of day. As soon as the rope was removed, the dog, pausing to give voice to no thanks at all, remembered a pressing engagement out beyond the Canada school building, and neither hide nor hair has been seen of him in that neighborhood since.

Undergraduate Department. The One Hundred and Forty-second Session will begin September 27, 1907. The course, which covers a period of four years, of eight and one-half months each, is eminently practical, and properly graded, beginning with laboratory instruction in the fundamental subjects, and concluding with a comprehensive system of clinical instruction, terminating in the Fourth Year with the assignment of students as clinical clerks in the Hospital.

A large proportion (at least 80 per cent.) of the graduating classes secure positions as Resident Physicians in Hospitals.

Summer School for Graduates. The clinics and laboratories of this Department are open throughout the year for the benefit of those who wish to engage in graduate work. For those whose time is more limited, a comprehensive course is given, beginning this year May 13, and continuing for a period of six weeks.
