MR. E. C. MERCER SPEAKS

mor running through his talks which makes whatever he says exceedingly interesting; at the same time he has a message that has his heart in it and that makes a deep impression.

Mr. W. D. Weatherford of Atlanta, Ga., spoke to a large crowd in the chapel Sunday afternoon, on "The Freedom of Manhood". It was a clear discussion of the question, stated by Mr. Weatherford in other words. "How a man gets free from that greatest of all bondages, sin".

Mr. Weatherford is himself a college man who has for the past several years been wholly engaged in mixing with college men and is, therefore, well qualified to discuss any subject before them in a sympathetic manner. He has a fund of illustrations drawn from college life with which to enforce his points, and a fair and candid way of discussing a subject which makes him well-fitted to address student bodies.

The final of the three addresses delivered by Mr. Mercer was given Sunday night, and was again listened to by a large and attentive audience. It was an evangelistic talk in which Mr. Mercer made a strong appeal for the higher life. He gave his personal experience as proof of the power of Jesus Christ to save men, and wanted to know how the skeptic would answer such testimony.

Mr. Weatherford followed up Mr. Mercer's address with a short talk in which he spoke of, the power to be what you want to be; and, the development and direction of capacity.

After the service in the Chapel, a short service was held in the reading room of the Y. M. C. A. Building, and this after-service gave a demonstration of the remarkable hold Messrs. Mercer and Weatherford had upon the men on the campus. Seating capacity was arranged for about a hundred in the reading room, but within a short time this was taken and all available standing room was filled and several were turned away unable to get within hearing distance.

This closed the series of services which Messrs. Mercer and Weatherford conducted and in which they caught the ear of the man on the campus and made a profound impression.

The University Council met Monday afternoon and organized. Mr. C. W. Gunter was elected secretary and Mr. F. E. Winslow, Senior representative.

First Mass Meeting

The first mass meeting of the season was held Friday evening in the chapel. Fully five hundred men were in the hall when the President of the Athletic Association, Ben Banks, called the meeting to order, every man of whom was filled with a spirit calculated to show the members of the team on the eve of the first game that the student body was behind them.

The chairman suggested that it would be in order to elect a chief cheerer; but the crowd was out for enthusiasm and would have nothing else.

In response to calls, Messrs. Kelly, Schimpf, Morrison, John Johnston, Coach Greene, and Coach Simmons made short talks. Coach Greene said that the question as to who was on the 'Varsity would not be decided until the last game of the season had been played. He promised the players that, as far as he was able, he would give each man a chance in Saturday's game. Coach Simmons quoted Green as saying that the prospects of the team were good.

Several members of the faculty were asked to be present, but they failed to show up.

After several hearty yells and music by the band, everybody sang, "Hark the Sound of Loyal Voices," and "I'm a Tar Heel Born," and the meeting was adjourned until 3:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon, at the Athletic field.

by making them yield the biggest possible crops. Grain must get the nourishment that makes it grow out of the soil—and the more plant food there is in the soil, the quicker and bigger and more plentifully the grain will grow. But you must first put the food into the soil by liberally using

Virginia-Carolina Fertilizers

Then a big bumper crop is assured, because these fertilizers contain the necessary elements required by the soil to properly and fully mature the grain. Farmers invariably find that the more Virginia-Carolina Fertilizer they use, the bigger is the crop, and the greater their profit.
