

V. P. I. DEFEATS CAROLINA

other linesmen did their duty. Wiggins came into prominence occasionally. Thomas, as usual, was a star performer, and Belden's work on defense was of gilt-edge order. V. P. I.'s ends came in for a share of the bouquets. While we do not intend to detract from the playing of the other Tech men the man who was responsible for V. P. I.'s victory and Carolina's defeat was E. R. Hodgson, the husky guard and star punter of the Blacksburg eleven. On every exchange of punts he gained from eight to ten yards, and in the end this would have spelled defeat for the Tar Heels.

Coach Greene is quoted by The Richmond Times Dispatch as follows: "We were beaten fairly, though luck was against us throughout the game. I think our team is as strong as Blacksburg's and I think this was clearly demonstrated this afternoon." Coach Brown, of V. P. I., said: "We were confident of winning, but had hoped for a larger score. The men did not play their best game." Hammond Johnson, who coached Virginia last year, was on the sidelines, and his opinion as given was, "The best team won, though it did not measure up to its usual standard of excellence. The Carolina eleven is powerfully strong, and it will give Virginia a hard tussle on Thanksgiving Day."
