

LOCALS

As soon as the tennis match is over go on to the football field—and yell.

G. C. Beard is on a visit to Winston-Salem.

Alonzo Richardson, who was a Pharmacy student here 1906-1907, died in Wendell last Friday.

Mr. Everett, a brother of Alphonso Everett, was on the Hill for a day or two this week.

Frank Graham will lead you. Follow him—and yell.

A large number of students attended the Barnum and Bailey Circus in Durham Saturday.

A. S. Oliver spent a few days at his home in Selma this week.

M. A. McIver went over to Durham Monday night to see "The Merchant of Venice."

Herbert Vogler is spending a few days at his home in Winston-Salem.

When you see a good play get together—and yell.

The Chapel Exercises this week are being conducted by Rev. W. R. Royall. On Monday morning, Dr. Wm. DeB. McNider addressed the students on "The Prevention of Disease." Tuesday morning, Dr. Chas. S. Mangum spoke on "Personal Hygiene and Care of the Body." Dr. R. B. Lawson will tell us about "Proper Exercise" Friday morning. These talks are not only very interesting but also very instructive.

When you come off the laboratory go to the football field—and yell.

Mr. J. A. Poythress, of Durham, is on the Hill again with his moving picture machine. He will show in the Y. M. C. A. Auditorium every night this week. All of the old men in college will remember with pleasure the shows we have seen in the Y. M. C. A. given by Mr. Poythress and they are glad to see him back. The shows thus far this week have been all right and a good crowd has been out every night.

When you want to take a walk, walk to the football field—and yell.

The superintendent of the power plant wishes to suggest to patrons of the plant living on East Franklin St. that, until the big engine at the plant can be put in order, wherever any lamp is not needed it be turned off. The fewer the lamps used on this circuit the brighter will those kept burning be.

Oct. 25th, 1909.

Warm yourself up with fifteen yells on the football field at five o'clock.

Next in importance to the securing of Arthur E. Brides of Yale as coach of the football team is the recent securing of Nat J. Cartmell, of Pennsylvania, to be trainer and coach of the track team. Cartmell is in England now and will report for duty March 10. A movement was inaugurated last year to establish the position of trainer here. The depleted condition of the athletic treasury has long hindered this important move. The university authorities and the athletic committee, with the aid of student contributions, have finally made possible the successful establishment of this additional fixture in the university's athletic system.

The work and influence of a trainer is every essential to the highest development of the university's athletic possibilities. In colleges and universities where the amateur and restricted system of athletics obtains a trainer is absolutely necessary for the success of the varsity teams. The trainer looks to the development of the athletic capabilities of the entire student body. He directs with intelligence the development of all athletic possibilities.

During the football season he devotes his attention to the physical condition of the players, directs their manner of life and keeps the human machine to its highest efficiency. In the spring while interested in all forms of athletics he will be the special coach of the track team.
