SOME of the Carolina men who went to the fair had a chance to come in communication with some of the men who came here with the Wake Forest football team. We have heard two of the aforesaid Carolina boys report that the Wake Forest team were highly pleased with the treatment they received while guests here on the Hill. Wake Forest men are not the only men who give Carolina credit for being a most hospitable institution. Generally speaking it would seem that every college would as a matter of course treat a visiting team with the greatest consideration and courtesy. But every week there come to our notice instances when some college or university has treated a visiting team badly—cast slurring remarks at them on the field or hooted their players or cursed their coach and attempted to mob him or gaped the visitors after their defeat. Only once in our memory has a team been in any way badly treated here. In the spring of 1907, Lafayette had won one game from Carolina and the score was tied in the second game. Lafayette's pitcher was a freshman and he seemed to be considerably bothered by the yelling on the bleachers. The Carolina cheer leader lead an "On the Pig" for pitcher Edwards. This one evidence of unsportsmanlike behavior attracted a great deal of adverse comment. If we had not been a university with a good reputation for hospitality this little lapse would not have been noticed. Since the spring of 1907 every team that has been a visitor on our campus has received the very best of good treatment. We are establishing a reputation for hospitality that we may well be proud of. Richmond College comes on Saturday. Get together everybody and give this team the time of their lives. Beat them good when you get them on the athletic field but treat them as you would a guest in your own house all the time.

THE General Athletic Association has enrolled as members about three hundred students. About one hundred of these have paid their membership fee. This is a pretty poor show of interest in athletics for the students here to be making. Every man here feels bad about it when we fail to put out a winning team. Everybody wonders why it is we did not have better success. The reason is easily seen when we consider the condition of the Athletic Association. Only one hundred men in college take enough interest in the success of the teams to become bona fida members of the association behind these teams. No wonder the teams are always handicapped. There must be at least four hundred bona fide members of the Athletic Association. Besides the miserable show of vital interest witnessed by this small enrollment there is also a grave danger embodied. To say that the Athletic Association has only one hundred members means that the whole control of athletics in the University is in the hands of a small minority of the students. In every question concerning athletics this small minority is going to rule. Suppose this body shall, some time, be called upon to decide a question that will be vitally important to the whole university. Every man here wants a "say-so." The only way to get this is to become a member of the association. Today is the last day of grace. You must join today and pay up at once or you get no voice in the rule of athletics.

CHIEF-CHEERER Graham has been going out on the athletic field every afternoon to lead the cheering on the side lines. The support he has been given has been pretty good but there are not enough men out to make the yells count much. There are very few men in college who can't go out to the athletic field from five to six every afternoon. Why not have a big crowd out to yell every afternoon? Every year we get together about a week before the Thanksgiving game and practice yelling. We do wonders too with such a little practice. Let's see if we can't surpass everything that has ever been done in the cheering line this fall. Everybody go to the football field this evening at three o'clock and yell, yell, yell.

WHAT is this sporadic, half-hearted clapping in chapel every morning for? Does it mean we are glad the speaker has finished? If it does it is sufficient. But if we are applauding the speaker let's do it right. Don't try to clap and put on your hat at one time. Applaud the speaker and then get ready to leave.

Chapel Exercises

We don't change our clothes enough either. There is no excuse for this among you."

In regard to the second cause of disease here Dr. Mangum said, "Most of the illness here, however, comes from cold. This cold comes, not from exposure, but from carelessness in exposure. There is danger in wearing the same weight of clothes in doors as out. A lot of sickness would be prevented also if you would take the trouble, on rainy days, to change your socks and rub your feet dry when you go to your rooms. Another thing to be avoided is standing about inactive in cold weather. When you go to the football field don't stand still and watch the practice. Walk about."

The preliminary contest for the selection of the Pennsylvania debaters was held Tuesday night in Chemistry Hall. The following men spoke: J. D. Eason, John H. Boushall, E. McK. Highsmith, and E. E. Barrett. The query was Resolved, That aside from the constitutionality of the question the United States government should levy a tax upon inheritances. The judges, Dr. C. L. Raper, Dr. J. G. de R. Hamilton and Prof. M. H. Stacy, selected Messrs. E. E. Barrett and E. McK. Highsmith. The debate will be held in Gerrard Hall on the night of November 19th.

Carolina wallops Guilford.

Guilford was utterly powerless in the hands of Carolina on the tennis court. Fountain and Venable walked away with every set with ease. In the doubles Wednesday Guilford started off with a rush and took two games after this everything was our way.

The score:
Carolina 6 6 6
Guilford 3 1 3

In the singles Thursday the result was about the same. Vance seemed to give Fountain some trouble in the first set but the second two went love to Carolina.

The score:
Fountain 6 6 6
Vance 4 0 0
Venable won from Briggs easily, 6-2, 6-1, 6-2.

The men from Guilford made a fine impression on those who witnessed the game by the gentlemanly way in which they accepted their defeat.

At the Friday night meeting of the Y. M. C. A. Dr. A. H. Patterson spoke on "Planning for Life." The devotional exercises were conducted by Claud Howard. At the Thursday night prayer meeting John Boushall was the leader, his subject was "Temptations of College men." Hereafter the hour for both these meetings will be 6:45. Come out next time.
