Every academic senior be sure to place his signature on the scroll left at Harris-Woolen's store today. The other scroll was too badly marked to be used. This is your last chance.

Prof. Collier Cobb mentioned to one of his geology classes Monday morning the loss of his No. 3 Folding Pocket Kodak, that was taken from the basement of the Chemical Laboratory on Friday. It is an old instrument and old style, being without the bulb and other modern attachments; but its owner has taken it on many geological journeys, and the students have greatly enjoyed the many fine pictures he brought home for class instruction. His name and address were written on a tag attached to the strap. Mr. Cobb very considerably regards the taking of his camera as a practical joke. Its perpetrator may now return the camera, thro Richard at the Laboratory or thro any student of geology, just as he prefers.

Undergraduate Department. The One Hundred and Forty-fifth Session will begin September 22, 1910. The course of instruction, extending over four annual sessions of eight and one-half months each, is a carefully graded and eminently practical one, beginning with the fundamental branches with full laboratory exercises, proceeding through a comprehensive system of clinical instruction in which ward and bedside instruction and individual work on the part of the students form a large part, and terminating in the Fourth Year with the assignment of students as clinical clerks in the Hospital. A large proportion (more than 80 per cent.) of the graduating classes secure positions as internes in hospitals.

Entrance requirements embrace a minimum of two years of college work, including two languages other than English (French or German must be one of these) and at least one year of study with appropriate laboratory work in Physics, General Biology or Zoology, and General and Inorganic Chemistry (including Qualitative Analysis).
