At the mass meeting Thursday night a committee was appointed to seek an audience with the executive committee of the faculty. The object of this joint meeting of the committees is simply that the student body and the student council may get a clear, well-defined conception of what the status of the University Council is. The result of this joint meeting is to be made known to the students this afternoon. In the meanwhile the following suggestions as to an analysis of the situation may be of interest to the students.

The question at issue is, "What is the position of the council? What power has it, what rights? What is the relation between the Executive Committee and the council?" The council is the machinery of the honor system. Its purpose is the trial and punishment of those who have not met the requirements of the honor system. The Executive Committee is that body of men chosen by the trustees to administer the affairs of the university. It has the power to punish any student it sees fit to. The Student Council is a creation of the student body; the Executive Committee of the trustees. Then what is the power of the Committee, and what is the power of the council?

The right to govern an institution and to be supreme in that government belongs to the founder or founders of that institution. The State of North Carolina founded this institution. The State's power to govern is supreme. This power the State has placed in the hands of the trustees. The trustees in turn have vested their power in the Executive Committee. And so by direct transmission the Executive Committee has the right of supreme power in matters of student government.

On the other hand the students here are an integral, fundamental part of the university existence. Students are just as necessary to a university and are equally as important as any other part. Have not the students certain rights? It is true that the students had no part in the making of this institution but they have become naturalized citizens of it. As such they have the right to have some voice in its government. Just as every American citizen has a voice in the government that concerns his own affairs, so should every citizen of the university have some voice in the government rules his civic life. The Council is the representative of the students, the rights of the students are the rights of the Council. So it seems the Council should also have some power in student government.

The Executive Committee has the power of the founder of an institution. The Council should have the power of naturalized citizens. Then what should be the nature of the Council's power? The supreme power is that of the Executive Committee. The power of the student's council should be the power of local self government. The students here are not irresponsible, high-school kids. They have already proven themselves quite capable of attending to their own affairs. They should be given the power of self government.

The University Council has never been legally recognized as having any power in university government. It has, however, been allowed to exist and to act unmolested. On the whole we feel sure the Executive Committee has been generally satisfied with its action. The students have undoubtedly always been behind it. If this Council is a good thing it ought to be given legal recognition. If it is a bad thing it ought to be abolished.

The student body recognizes, as do the members of the Council, that the power of the Executive Committee is the highest power. We think, however, that the students ought to be given the power of self government, the Executive Committee always acting as supreme court. Practically we have enjoyed this power for some time. Now we wish to have a definite agreement that we shall continue to do so. Either make the Council a legitimate organization if it is a good one, or condemn it if it has proven bad.

Quite a number of baseball enthusiasts at the University do wish to request the manager of the baseball team that, out of the kindness of his heart and the bigness of his purse, he have erected on the field a plain score board. A great many students get to the park after the game has gone several innings. No one feels quite sure what the inning is or what the score. But the scorer is so impressive and his appearance is so austere that we dare not approach him. The board will not cost much and it will be a very great convenience. Let us have one, if you please.
