In an article appearing in the Daily News, the city of Greensboro expresses regret that the students of the university should feel aggrieved over any treatment they had received in that city. The Carolina alumni in Greensboro have begun an investigation into the matter and it is hoped that the question will be speedily settled. The author of the article furthermore takes it on himself to consider an editorial, which appeared in this paper recently on the subject of our treatment at the Virginia game, as the outburst of a "grouch" who lost money on the game and not as a true expression of student sentiment.

As we made an effort to show in our former edition the students here make not the slightest kick over the treatment they received in Greensboro outside the baseball park. We could have received no better reception anywhere. But we still maintain that the treatment on the field was "the rawest deal" Carolina students have been served in some time. We, who were in the bleachers, have first-hand knowledge of the fact that the men, who were striving to make it possible for us to see, acted as politely and as patiently with the crowd as any men could have done. Yet they only received abuse from the crowd and threats and rebukes from the police. There may be some possible way in which such treatment may be construed as courteous consideration of a visitor's welfare, but it will require some digging to unearth it.

The author of the remarks in the Daily News refuses to believe that we expressed the true sentiment of the student body. It is hard to do, but we must confess that we did not. If we had been making a speech at an assemblage "for men only" we could have expressed that sentiment truly. As it was, we came as near the truth as the limitations of the press permit. If anyone is really anxious to find out what student feeling about the matter is, he might come on the campus and say he was a policeman from Greensboro. Appearances seem to indicate that the man, who so mistook a sincere expression of student feeling for the ravings of a grouch, has been mentally debilitated by the ravages of the hookworm.

Since the Carolina alumni have taken up the matter we know that it is in good hands. We feel sure, whether the fault lay with the baseball management or the police, that our pleasure when next we go to Greensboro will not be marred by such an unseemly occurrence.

CAROLINA'S slump in baseball came at a most unfortunate time this year. While the team was so off color we lost two games to Virginia and one to Guilford. At present however it seems that they are again coming into their own. While the season of 1910 had been accounted a success if we had won those games we lost, yet we have an opportunity to regain some of our lost ground. During this next week we play some of the most important games on our schedule. We've got to have more than our share of those games. Whether we have got out of our slump or not the men on the team must remember that Carolina doesn't stop doing her best till the last man is out on the 3rd. of May. The team must return from this northern trip just as they did last year, having lost only to Pennsylvania. The student body expect a great deal out of this season yet. See to it that we are not disappointed, you men on the ball team.

MINOR athletics at the university are just now hustling some. Class baseball is in a fever heat of excitement. No rain is so hard nor any field so muddy that a game can be stopped. The tennis tournament for singles championship has begun and it's rush all the time on tennis courts.

Such push in minor athletics is a sign of the healthy condition of athletics in general. Not only are men being trained for varsity teams but a large number of students are getting plenty of good exercise. When the examinations come we should be sound of health for the task.
