ONE of the announcements made at the last meeting of the athletic association was that Coach Cartmell had been signed for another year. The improvement that Carolina's track team has shown this year is of course largely due to the work that the members of the team themselves have done but if we had not had such an excellent coach we do not believe that the men would have done such work.

And so all of us, the student, and the faculty too, we believe, feel grateful to Coach Cartmell for the work he has done here this year. He has not said much, never appearing at a mass meeting or making himself conspicuous on the track field, but he has worked. And that is the secret of the track team's success this spring. They have had a coach who attended strictly to his own affairs and who was not afraid of hard work.

We are not only grateful to the coach for the work he has done but we are more than pleased to know that he will be here again next year. Having worked so hard at the foundations of a good track team this year we believe that next year he will be able to start the season without so many drawbacks as he had this spring. We look forward to the most successful track season Carolina has ever enjoyed. This past year's track results have been the best we remember, next year's we expect to be still more brilliant. And we look upon Coach Cartmell as the keystone of it all.

LAST commencement there occurred an incident in the senior class day exercises that seemed of very little importance yet we believe it was indicative of a forward step in one phase of the commencement ceremonies. When the senior exercises were nearing a close the juniors who were on the Hill collected around the Davie Poplar. When the seniors had finished their life as a class here, the president of the class formally turned over to the juniors present all the privileges and the duties of a senior class at the University of North Carolina.

Up to that time the senior exercises had been coming to a rather abrupt close. This little adds greatly to the smoothness of the ceremony. It furthermore forms a sort of connection between the going and the coming classes. One does not feel that the university's life has been chopped off short and will not begin again until next September, but rather that the life of the university goes on forever in spite of changing classes.

If this part of the ceremonies is to be a success it will be necessary that enough juniors remain on the Hill to represent the class of 1911. It will hardly do for all the duties of the senior class to be placed in the hands of some few men who happen to be here and to be juniors. Unless there is a respectable number of the class of 1911 present the ceremony will be a failure.

One only has to stay a single day after the examination period to take part. It seems that practically every junior could afford to do that much for the sake of his class.

SOPHS 4 - FRESH 3

The sophs and fresh played for ten innings Monday afternoon in the prettiest class game of the season. From the large number of spectators that thronged the sidelines one had thought a varsity game in progress. The crowd was there to see the annual class rush which takes place during the game. And the crowd was not disappointed. The rush was fierce and lasted thruout the game.

The features of the game were: the batting of Tillett and Temple for the freshmen and of Turlington and Craven for the sophomores. Both pitchers worked well except in one or two innings.

Score by innings:
