WITH such a turn-out of real football stars as one sees on the athletic field every afternoon prospects are, to say the least, mighty encouraging. According to the best authorities, Carolina has the most promising material from which to select a team of any year since 1905. With Coach Brides and Nat Cartmell back and on the job, no one doubts that this material will have the best possible training. Carolina is, indeed, fortunate not only in the number and quality of the men who are working to make the team, but in again securing the splendid services of two such men and athletes as Brides and Cartmell. Now, let the men who are not out for the team get behind the team and the trainers with their encouragement and support. The team is ours—the University's. Every one of us should feel that we have a part in its victories and defeats. The first numbers of the paper are also sent to the alumni. They as well as the students, are interested in the happenings of the University community. We urge those who wish to subscribe to send their names now, so that the paper may be continued to them without interruption.

ONE of the surprising discoveries which a new man has to make on coming to the University is that athletics here are controlled and supported by a small per cent of the student body. Before coming to college, the student hears a great deal more about the football and baseball games than about classroom work. Unless he is much out of the ordinary, his dreams of the joys of college life dwell on the expected victories of the gridiron, diamond, and track. In these triumphs, he perhaps pictures himself dutifully bearing a hero's part. Such an ambition is certainly worthy, and if he has the qualities of an athlete and develops them, he will not lack for appreciation among his fellow students.

We started out by saying, however, that the new student will be surprised to find so few men supporting athletics in the University—granted that he ever considered the fact that support was necessary for athletics. Apparently there are many men who have been here one, two, and three years to whom that fact has not yet occurred. That we allow less than half the students to manage athletics and to pay the expense of getting out good teams does not prove that we back interest in this side of our college life, but that some of us, thoughtlessly or willingly neglect to bear our share of the burden.

The proposal to collect a small fee at registration for the support of athletics has often been made and discussed but has never been adopted.

Membership in the Athletic Association is entirely voluntary. The fee of one dollar is nominal, but if every student in the university would make this small sacrifice it would mean a great deal to athletics.

WITH a majority of students the question of getting a college education is largely a question of expense. Most of us are "broke" most of the time. Yet the man who is here for an education should, as the President said in his opening address, "get all that is coming to him." To do this he must not confine himself simply to the studies which he is registered for. If he does, he limits himself to one half, perhaps, of what the University has for him. But to enter other activities is to incur additional expense, if ever so little. This fact is urged by many students as a reason for not joining the literary societies or the Athletic Association. They say they cannot afford it. Where this is true we have no more to say, and we know it is sometimes a true reason and no mere excuse. But it should be remembered that the benefits derived from the "extras" of college life—by which we mean everything outside a man's regular course of study—are entirely out of proportion to the small expense incidental to them. Where the aim is to make the most of a college course, the extras cannot be slighted. It is not so much a question of whether you can afford them, as it is a question of whether you can afford to be without them.

THIS number of the Tar Heel, as well as last week's issue, is mailed to every student in college. We cannot continue to do this, of course, unless you subscribe. As a student publication, giving the news of the University twice a week and reflecting the views of the campus, THE TAR HEEL will help you to keep in touch with the life around you. The subscription price is small—$1.50. Hand your name to Cy Thompson or one of the editors if you wish to have the paper.

THE first numbers of the paper are also sent to the alumni. They, as well as the students, are interested in the happenings of the University community. We urge those who wish to subscribe to send their names now, so that the paper may be continued to them without interruption.

MAGAZINE IN PREPARATION

The first issue of the university of North Carolina Magazine will be published about October 12th. Mr. W. C. George, the new editor-in-chief, is fast getting material into shape, and the first issue promises to be an excellent one. Neither the editor-in-chief nor his associates can alone, however, make the magazine. The material published, and therefore the standard of the magazine, must depend upon the support and interest of the student body. Students of every class are urged to contribute material for publication. Poetry and short stories are especially desired by the editor. Prizes are given each year for the best original short story, the second best story, the best poem, essay, and the best sketch.

Not only does the magazine depend upon the students for its success as a literary publication, but it also depends upon the students for its financial success. The magazine is sent free to all members of the two societies, but all others are charged a yearly subscription of one dollar. Every student represents the highest literary ability of the students of the University, and is the organ of our alumni.

Sportograms

Saturday, Coach had our coming knights of the gridiron going for fair. He divided them into squads and sent them galavanting up and down the field fifteen or twenty times. About the eighth time "Boney" Porter protested with considerable feeling that he had enough. Coach did not agree and hustled him around again. "Babe" Parker lost about six pounds during the performance. "Prof." Turlington's work was a feature. He did some noble pacing. His stride brought forth admiring comment from the side lines.

Well, the V. M. I. game is just ten days off. There'll be doings between now and then—probably a scrimmage matinee every afternoon, admittance free, peanuts extra.

Now a few words as to baseball. Captain Hackney and Manager McCulloch are lying low and saying little, but you can bet your last red we are going to have a daisy team next spring. A number of old players are back and some promising looking new ones are on hand. One of the latter is "Bull" Hasty, the best second sacker in the State.

A bunch of Varsity men went over and trimmed the Durham Hosiery Mill team Saturday, 1-0. "Rube" Howard was in the firing pit for Durham while "Red" Stewart was on the mound for Chapel Hill. Edwards, Hackney and McLean got a bingle apiece—all our fellows got.

Carolina was well represented among the professionals the past season. "Red" Stewart twirled for Wilson, winning sixteen, losing seven and tying one. Mighty good work. That bunch of red hair and a glove would certainly look good flinging them across for Carolina next spring. "Bun" Hearne was also a member of the Wilson hurling corps. He is now with the St. Louis Nationals. He made his debut as a major leaguer Saturday when he was pitted against Wiltse at the Polo Grounds. Though allowing the Giants but five hits, he lost his game 1-0. Dugald Buie played in a semi-professional league in south Georgia. Hobbs, Varsity backstop, three seasons ago was with Raleigh and stood among the first half dozen hitters in the league. Fulenwider who helped us lick Virginia three seasons ago had a fair season as box artist for Columbia, South Atlantic League. Duncan, our keystone guardian for the last two years held down the right garden for Columbia the latter part of the season and swatted .298. Vedder Sittion pitched some nice ball for Columbus, American Association. Fred Stem held down the first sack for Sioux City, Western League. "Grey Fox" Stockdale, our one time coach twirled excellent ball for Birmingham, runner up in the Southern League.

A Good Position

Can be had by ambitious young men and ladies in the field of "Wireless" or Railway Telegraphy. Since the eight-hour law became effective, and since the "Wireless" companies are establishing stations throughout the country, there is a great shortage of telegraphers. Positions pay beginners from $70 to $90 per month, with good chance of advancement. The National Telegraph Institute, operates six official institutes in America, under supervision of railroad and wireless officials and places all graduates in positions. It will pay you to write them for full details at Memphis, Tenn., or Columbia, S. C.
