Mr. R. R. Bridges, '08, left Monday afternoon for Philadelphia after paying a short visit to friends here. Mr. Bridges was once a star half-mile runner on our track team. He is now studying medicine at the University of Pennsylvania.

Mr. J. S. Mann '08, of Fairfield, was on the Hill last week en route to Cornell University, where he finishes this year his course in Engineering. While in college, "Hoide," as he was familiarly known, was captain of 1907 Varsity Football team; and also a prominent figure in class baseball.

More than twenty men at the University want work to help pay their expenses. Some of these men say that they cannot remain here unless they secure such work. Many have found employment. Anyone having work to do, no matter what, is requested to notify the Self-help Committee, Y. M. C. A.

In the Philanthropic Society Saturday night the query, "Resolved, That Freshmen should be allowed the same privileges in college as men from other classes," was debated. The negative won, and Mr. W. F. Taylor made the best speech. Mr. Cy Thompson deserving honorable mention.

The query debated in the Dialectic Society Saturday night was, "Resolved, That the retirement of Mr. Roosevelt from public life would be beneficial to the country." The negative won, and Mr. D. L. Rights made the best speech. Messrs. B. H. Mebane and Sisk were given honorable mention.

Lewis N. Taylor '09 is now on the Hill visiting friends, preparatory to going to New York, where about October 1st he is to enter the General Theological Seminary. Entering with Mr. Taylor will be Messrs. S. B. Stroup and A. Rufus Morgan, both Carolina 1910 men. While in college Mr. Taylor was for two years on the editorial staff of this paper, and gained further distinction as an actor of no mean ability in the Dramatic Club.

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Barnett were "at home" to the students at Rev. Mr. Hogue's on Sunday night. Some thirty or forty students called during the evening. Mr. and Mrs. Barnett entertained their guests with reports from the conferences recently held at Lake George and Northfield, where missionaries-to-be had assembled for final instruction and conference. It seemed to be the feeling of the entire gathering of students at Mr. Hogue's that the University has two, instead of one, missionaries that it is sending to China.

The Freshman Election

On last Saturday night, it became noised abroad that the freshmen were holding a meeting. But the whereabouts of either the wiley freshmen or his nocturnal meeting place could not be ascertained. At last by resorting to stratagem, the information was obtained from a freshman that his classmates were holding forth at the depot.

It is a strange coincident that the hour chosen for the meeting was exactly the time when the class of 1913 (unlucky number) were attending the literary societies.

Upon drawing near to the scene of activity and above the rabble of the multitude, one could hear a voice in a more refined key clearly distinguishable by its commanding tone imploring the crowd to proceed to the election of officers and reassuring them that the sophomores were pledged to abstain from foolish pranks. If one had ever heard the voice before he could easily have singled it out as belonging to one of our prominent ministerial students. After every one was assured by a furtive glance that no lurking eavesdropper was near, nominations for president were in order. And then the trouble began. A socialist election was indeed a tame affair compared with this; but after much balloting and vain babbling George T. Clark emerged as a child of destiny and was chosen by an overwhelming majority. Things proceeded smoothly for a time, vice-president and treasurer being elected with rapidity. The officers elected are as follows: President, George T. Clark; Vice-president, W. J. Long; Secretary, W. S. Beam; Treasurer, William Thompson; Manager football team, B. D. Applewhite.

ROBESON BOYS MEET

On Thursday night the boys from Robeson County met and reorganize their club. The following officers were elected: A. J. Hodgkin, Pres., W. B. Townsend, Vice Pres., C. B. Pace, Sec; and J. A. McGoogan, Treas. The club has nineteen members, sixteen of whom were present at the meeting. A committee was appointed to arrange for a banquet to be held sometime this fall. The meeting was very lively and enthusiastic. Each member signified his determination to use his efforts towards making the club a success. After adjournment the boys assembled in front of the chapel and gave a yell for Robeson, "the largest and best county in the State."
