FRESHMAN DEBATE IN PHI

AN INTERESTING DISCUSSION IN WHICH THE PRIZE GOES TO MR. T. N. PEELE

Query: Resolved, That the United States Should Subsidize Her Merchant Marine. Decision for Affirmative

The annual freshman debate of the Philanthropic Society was held in the Phi hall last Saturday night. The query was: Resolved, That the United States should Subsidize her Merchant Marine. The affirmative side of the question was upheld by S. W. Whiting and R. C. Spence. The negative side was defended by T. N. Peele and G. V. Strong.

Each side of the question was supported in an able and aggressive manner by the debaters on the respective sides. The speeches were logically arranged and they showed that they were the result of much preparation, being delivered in a forceful and spirited style, that held the interest and attention of the society throughout the debate.

The affirmative argued that we need a merchant marine, and that the subsidy plan would give us one which would benefit our industries and promote the welfare of the people generally. The negative conceded that we need a merchant marine but denied that the subsidy plan would develop one. They offered the free ships policy and a discrimination of rates in favor of American vessels as a substitute. The committee, which was composed of Profs. Cobb, Booker and Towles, decided that the negative won and that Mr. Peele made the best speech. In rendering the decision, Prof. Cobb complimented the debaters, saying that the debate was the best freshman debate that he had ever heard.

The Musical Entertainment

Saturday night a small audience gathered in Gerrard hall to hear the concert given by Misses Florence Larrabee and Florence Hardeman. Miss Larrabee, pianist, was formerly with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, and Miss Hardeman, violinist, was two seasons with Sousa's Band. The audience seemed to be well pleased with the entertainment offered, the general verdict being that it measured up to what might be expected from two artists with the reputation of Misses Hardeman and Larrabee.

An All American Team

Chosen by a Congress of the Leading Football Authorities in the Country

The TAR HEEL has received advance sheets of an article which will appear in the December 15th issue of Leslie's Weekly, giving an All-American football team, selected by a number of the leading officials of the country. Because of its interest to college men a resume of the article is given here:

Proceeding on the theory that football men desire above all else to get the combined judgment of the best football critics in America, the men who have had the best opportunity to study individual players, Edward R. Bushnell, who is the editor of the official year book of the Inter-Collegiate Association of Amateur Athletics of America, has secured the individual selections of the 16 leading officials in the United States. Using each of these 16 selections as votes, a composite team has been made up which represents the consensus of expert opinions. The enumeration of these judges is the last word that can be said on the subject of All Eastern teams. They are:

Dr. A. H. Sharpe, Yale; J. B. Pendleton, Bowdoin; David L. Fultz, of Brown; Dr. Carl Williams, Pennsylvania; Carl Marshall, Harvard; M. V. Bergen and J. H. Moffatt, Princeton; W. N. Morice, Pennsylvania; Thomas Murphy, Harvard; A. C. Whiting and Charles Taussig, Cornell; Clarence Weymouth, Yale; Fred Crolius, Dartmouth; Lieutenant H. B. Hackett, West Point; W. R. Okeson, Lehigh; W. G. Crowell, Swathmore.

The composite team selected by these 16 officials is as follows: Kilpatrick, Yale, and L. Smith, Harvard, guards; Cozens, Pennsylvania, center; Sprackling, Brown, quarterback; Wendell, Harvard, and Pendleton, Princeton, half backs; Mercer, Pennsylvania, full back.

Mr. Bushnell's story in the December 15th issue of Leslie's Weekly will be found of intense interest and significance to every follower of the gridiron.

Sportograms

Records of Southern Football Stars in the Larger Northern Institutions

Did you ever consider the Southerners who have made good in the football show? Read this article of Innis Brown's:

"In this connection, it is interesting to note what quite a number of former Southern stars have done after joining the ranks of the elite. It is not to be expected, of course, that Southern players will ever get due consideration in so-called all-American selections. This is true largely because the acknowledged authorities never have an opportunity of seeing Southern teams working at the top of their stride. But let us get back to the records of Southern stars who have gone East.

"As stated in the above mentioned letter, Graves, of North Carolina, and Lynch, of Clemson, both did great work after their graduation into higher ranks, both being eventually elected captains of their respective teams with which they cast their lots. Graves was a great fullback at North Carolina and afterward played the game with as much distinction at West Point in the same capacity. Lynch worked at end for Clemson, but owing to his great generalship and steadiness, was placed in the responsible position of quarterback on the Ithaca squad. His tackling was fierce yet true, and his reliability at all times made his services most invaluable to his team.

"The army squad has drawn two other sterling athletes from Southern ranks in comparatively recent years. Reference is made to Foy, an old Auburn star, and Watkins, who played both at Sewanee and Vanderbilt. The former did valiant service as a tackle at Auburn and likewise proved a very valuable man for the cadets at the same position.

"Watkins, a massive built, tawny-haired fellow, played a part of one season at Vanderbilt, when he was forced to drop out of college on account of sickness. He afterward spent one year at Sewanee, playing fullback on the team during the season of 1901. He later received an appointment to the Military Academy and played three seasons on the team. His playing was not of a brilliant type, but he was thoroughly reliable, and he made a creditable record.

"Fetzer, a former Davidson star, was another who afterward made good with Cornell. He was a linesman, and put up a good game for the college of his adoption.

"In more recent years three other men have won distinction in the East. "Toots" Douglas, a former star at the University of Tennessee, made good with a vengeance on the Naval Academy team. He was for three years a leading light in the middies' backfield, and won the distinction of captaining the team in his senior year. His work on the Knoxville team was never of the sensational kind, and he really did more brilliant work for the midshipmen than he did playing in this section.

"Manier played three years at Vanderbilt and afterward worked one season at halfback for Pennsylvania. He earned a grand reputation as a line

NEW EQUIPMENT FOR LIBRARY

THREE ROOMS TO BE FITTED UP FOR USE OF SPECIAL DEPARTMENTS

An Addition Which Will Be of Much Benefit to Graduate Students and Students Doing Special Work

An addition is being made to the equipment of the University library, which will materially increase the facilities for special work in various departments. Arrangements will soon be completed for opening three seminar rooms, which will be at the service of special students in the English department, in the German and Romance departments, and in the Latin and Greek departments.

When the equipment is complete it will consist of shelving, lights, and cabinets with drawers and locks, for students' manuscripts and papers. The rooms will be utilized for special research work, study and consultation. A student doing special work in one of the departments will be furnished a key to the room devoted to that department.

The fitting up of these rooms is a decided forward step in the already excellent equipment of the University for graduate work.

Big Addition to Chemistry Library

The Chemistry department of the University has recently been very fortunate in securing a practically complete set of the publications of the French chemistry journals. This set consists of about 460 volumes and includes practically all the works of the French chemists, beginning with their earliest publications, in about 1780, and covering all French chemistry to date.

The addition of these French journals to the chemistry library gives the University the best French chemistry reference library of any institution in the South, and one of the best of any in the United States. This set also makes the chemistry library here about complete, since the Chemistry department already has a practically complete set of the German and English works.
