BILL NYE was one of the greatest American humorists. For the last fourteen years of his life he lived in North Carolina. He died at his home near Asheville in 1896. Now after fifteen years of neglect and indifference a movement has been started to erect a fitting memorial to the great humorist. Every student in the State is asked to contribute something. The students of the University, the head of the States educational system, should be in the van of this movement. Give something. We must honor the memory of Bill Nye.

THE manager of the track team has arranged an excellent schedule of spring meets. It is imperative that Carolina be represented at these meets by a respectable team and that lies with the students.

Carolina has nearly 800 able bodied students, more than are enrolled at Virginia, Washington and Lee, Georgetown or V. P. I. We have the best track coach in the South. Isn't it natural to infer that we should have at least as good a track team as any of the institutions named above? We think so.

There is but one way to produce such a team; the coach must be given an abundance of material. Given this, he will produce a team worthy of representing Carolina. It is up to the students to produce the material.

Every member of the Athletic Association should attend the meeting this afternoon. Those proposed amendments have been hanging fire long enough. They should be decided upon at once. As a whole the amendments look good. As to the details—well we shall leave those for our politicians and statesman to discuss this afternoon. They will throw light upon them from every angle. Listen to their arguments and then vote according to your convictions.

THAT incident of Tuesday night in front of Gooche's Cafe proved to our satisfaction, that, along with the rest of the world, the Carolina student body is growing better.

In years gone by, what would have happened on such an occasion? Why the three hundred students who filled the street would have deemed it necessary to shove, yell, hoot and break out a window or so. We are happy to say that nothing of this sort happened. The three-hundred young men conducted themselves as be-fitted North Carolina gentlemen. They watched the proceedings with calm disapproval. Not a shove was made, hardly a word was uttered, and when the affair was over the three hundred gentlemen scattered quietly to their rooms. We are almost ready to line up with those who claim that the salvation of the world will come within the present generation.

Dr. Herty Addresses Y. M. C. A.

Dr. Herty delivered the weekly Y. M. C. A. lecture in the auditorium of the Y. M. C. A. building last Tuesday night. The address was a simple, straight forward talk on a subject which is of special interest to a young college man. The subject of the address was "What ones aim in life should be." The substance of the lecture is as follows:

"Young men are constantly and continuously being told to set as their aim in life the limit of whatever profession they choose for their life's work. Thus if a young man goes into politics, he is told to set for his aim the presidency of the United States, if he chooses law, the chief-justiceship of the United States, if he chooses the ministry he is urged to become a second Brooks or Beecher and so it goes through the list of professions. It is an excellent thing to set your aim high, but by the above method one compares himself with his fellow men and strives against them. Their success is his failure and he in trying to succeed always is tempted to take "short-cuts" and do questionable things.

How much better it would be for everyone if this could be avoided. Suppose you strive against yourself. Strive each day to become a little more proficient in your games. Strive each day to learn a little more from your text books and each time to write a little better theme. Whatever you do try to do a little more of it or to do it a little better each time. It is a fundamental principle that when growth stops decay sets in; so keep growing. There is no envy or jealousy connected with such a plan as this. You strive with yourself alone and you may rejoice in your neighbor's success.

It is the parable of the talents over again. You do not have to surpass every other man. If you have only one talent you make the most of it and that is all that is expected of any-one."

Mr. Turlington announced that Mr. Costner had resigned the chairmanship of the Bible study committee and that Mr. I. H. Hughes had been elected by the executive committee to take his place.

With Other Colleges.

The following is the list of the present S. I. A. A. teams. It has been reported that Tennessee will withdraw after this collegiate year: 1. Auburn and Vanderbilt. 3. Sewanee. 4. Georgia. 5. Tech and Mississippi. 6. Miss. A. & M. 8. Clemson, Mercer and Alabama. 11. Tulane. 12. L. S. U. 13. Tennessee. 14. Howard. Many of the colleges further South are just beginning to pull off their class football games.

Northwestern defeated Chicago in the conference swimming meet, thus winning her first atheletic victory over Chicago in three years.

A baseball team from the University of Keio, Japan, is to make a tour of this country the latter part of May.

A new eligibility rule of the University of Pennsylvania will prevent the Penn Michigan football games after 1911.
