

JUNIOR WEEK FESTIVITIES

The jollities are to be ushered in by a baseball game, as is very fitting, for a Junior Week without a baseball game would be something unthought of. The Pan-Hellenic dance, given by the fraternities of the University is always one of the most brilliant social events of the college year. A novel addition to the athletic side of the activities will be the inter-State tennis meet, at which various colleges of the State will contest for a Cup to be awarded to the champions. The contest will take up two whole mornings, and it will be a sight worth seeing to behold intercollegiate tennis games in progress upon eight courts simultaneously. The Cotillion Club dance is also a novel experiment, marking as it does a new era in the social life of the University by giving the non-fraternity men a chance to participate. A more democratic spirit is expected to mark the coming Junior Week than has ever been in evidence in previous years. The non-frat dance bids fair to be one of the most brilliant of the year. Needless to say, not the least enjoyable feature of the week will be the Senior Stunt. The night of the Senior Stunt is the one night of all nights in the year that college fun runs rampant. The customary restraint is on this occasion waived, and the eccentricities of the faculty are shown up as mercilessly as the foibles of the students. While the exact nature of this year's stunt is kept a strict secret, it is understood that all inhabitants of the campus should prepare for the worst, for a riot of caricature is about to be let loose that will rival the famous dinners of the Gridiron Club of Washington. Running neck and neck with the Senior Stunt in drawing power is the baseball game between the Seniors and the Faculty. Of course, the whole college and then some more will be on hand to see this. It is fitting that the gaities should be brought to a close by the grand marches of the Junior Prom, the real affair of the week.

An interesting feature of the Junior jollities is that they will take this occasion to celebrate Washington's birthday—that is by special request of the students the holiday which the students would have enjoyed February 22 was transposed to Junior week.

The leaders for the dances are as follows: of the Pan-Hellenic, D. C. McRae assisted by John Tillet and B. H. Mebane; of the Cotillion Club, T. P. Nash assisted by T. M. Price and Norman Vann; of the Junior Prom, J. W. Morris assisted by R. M. Hanes and R. W. Winston.
