Brethren, after six disappointing years, we are once more riding on the top rail. We wonder if the Virginians weren't the least bit surprised. We know a lot of our supporters were.

It was a great struggle—the greatest, we believe, in regard to classy diamond work ever pulled off between the two universities, even niftier than the Charlotte engagement. The pitching was about as brilliant and the fielding, as a whole, considerably more so.

Raymond Lee twirled a masterly game and he was backed up by a masterly fielding combination. We have a hunch that Lee made a college baseball record—three measly hits and not a strike out to his credit. It speaks whole libraries for his support. But to get back—such a record is unusual in any class of ball, let alone college ball where the strike outs are invariably plentiful to the point of monotony.

It wouldn't look so curious if the same box-man hadn't fanned twelve of the same gents in the Charlotte mix-up. There's one possible explanation—the Virginians possibly have been putting in some strenuous practice against a good curve ball hurler. If true it speaks a few more Carnegie collections for our whole bloomin' team.

Virginia had a familiar face in their lineup—our old friend, Sammy Honaker. He agreed with his team-mates that Lee was practically unhittable with such a team behind him.

The News and Observer was kind enough to give our victory a prominent position on their front page. The Durham Herald did likewise. Many thanks.

Gentlemen, all, here's to the Coach and the whole team.

We wonder if Charlottesville wasn't still more surprised Saturday. "Pop" Lannigan's wonders copped but five firsts to our seven and got but three in the events we entered. Wow! The Virginians should thank their stars that we didn't send our whole push along. Honestly we had an idea those gents had a first-class track team. They had the same idea themselves until Saturday.

And some time back when Virginia starred in a certain indoor meet at Washington our old friend, College Topics did considerable boasting. Well the Old Dominion gentlemen may be pretty good indoor trackmen but outdoors—well you can finish it.

An Apology.

This issue of the TAR HEEL was delayed in going to press until the editor could make a raid on the NEWS AND OBSERVER's poke-berry patch.
