VARSITY COPS CLOSE GAME FROM THE ANTI-BONDERS

Before Appreciative Audience Lee Hurts No-Hit Fracas.

At Fayetteville, Monday, we blanked the Anti-Bonders, 1-0. It was a box-man's battle between Lee and Smith. Lee got away with a clean, no-hit game.

It was a fairly entertaining affair. We could do little with Smith and the Baptists could do nothing with Raymond Lee, who by the way hasn't been scored on since the 7th round of that second Lafayette game April 1st.

Both aggregations played nice ball. "Bull" Hasty accepted eight chances and "Burr" Edwards seven. Our gents also pulled off a couple of double plays. Wake Forest's play was errorless. Brown deliberately robbed Lee of a hit.

We got the game in the 2nd. Hackney hit for three cushions and "Mouk" Hanes counted him with a single.

The game Monday between the Sophomores and the Juniors was one of the best played ones of the season, and after the recent farce of a Junior Senior game it was refreshing. The Sophs won 8 to 4.

The Sophomores clearly won the game. They outplayed the Juniors.

CAROLINA GETS EVEN BREAK IN BIG DEBATES

Defeat Georgia on Hill, But Lost to Virginia at Charlottesville.

"The best debate heard on the Hill in the memory of the present student body" is the universal verdict of the Carolina-Georgia debate held in old Gerrard Hall Saturday night, which resulted in a victory for Carolina.

I. C. Moser and D. A. Lynch battled out a victory for the affirmative side by bitterly contesting every inch of ground against Millard Lewis and E. V. Heath for Georgia. The question was: "Resolved, that a Federal Income Tax, constitutionality granted, would form a desirable part of our scheme of Taxation." The judges were Messrs. W. H. Wannamaker, R. H. Latham, and S. S. Bost, who decided for the affirmative by a two to one vote.

Rarely before has so much interest been shown in a debate by the students. The hall, which was draped in the white and blue of the old North State and the red and blue of Georgia, was well filled some minutes before the debate began.

When it did begin, something was doing all the time from first to finish. Both sides thrust so quickly and hard that it became almost impossible to parry, and became a question of simply who could thrust the quickest and deadliest. Georgia based much of her argument on Professor Seligman as an authority, and our men took him up in the endeavor to use Georgia's own weapons against her. We wish we knew exactly how many times Professor Seligman was quoted. We lost count somewhere along the rejoinders, but as Professor Williams would say, we'd give a good deal to know. Once Georgia hurled into us a quotation from "Dr. Raper of your own University."

Mr. Moser laid the foundation for the argument of the affirmative, developing the dual nature of our government, and attempting to prove that the income tax was the only just and equitable system of taxation. He showed with perfect clearness the benefits of the proposed system, how it would place the burdens of government upon those most able to bear them. His delivery was perhaps the best of any of the four speakers.

Mr. Lewis announced that Georgia intended basing her argument upon two points, first, that there was no need for an income tax, and second, that it could not be successfully administered.

The proposed tax he declared, as tried in this country, had always been an emergency tax, and no pressing need for revenue existed at present. He then defended the tariff for revenue only and excise taxes as fair and equitable and sufficient to meet all needs.

Mr. Lynch promptly attacked the present system of raising revenue, declaring the tariff for revenue to be inadequate in spite of any way in which the duties could be shifted around, as it inevitably placed the burdens of government too much upon the poor. He did not propose however to necessarily do away entirely with a

BEN GREET PLAYERS

Will Perform on Campus Next Week--The Comedy of Errors and As You Like It.

The Ben Greet Woodland Players will appear in Chapel Hill next week and give two performances on the University campus. The plays to be given are two of Shakespeare's most delightful comedies, The Comedy of Errors and As You Like It.

This is the third time this famous company of open air players has come to Chapel Hill. On the two former visits the company gave Twelfth Night, The Taming of The Shrew, A Mid-Summer Nights Dream and As You Like It. On both occasions the work of the players was greatly enjoyed by the large audiences of faculty, students and townspeople that saw the plays. The Ben Greet players are probably the best know and most successful open air performers of Shakespeare's plays. They give their performances on the greenward, and in this way attempt to present Shakespeare's plays as they were produced during the life of the poet.

Mr. Greet presented Shakespeare for a great many years in England before coming to this country. For nineteen years he gave performances at Oxford and Cambridge Universities; for four years at Stratford-upon-Avon. Mr. Greet has been in America nine years, and during that time he has visited every large university in the country. His open air plays have been given at many of the summer colonies as well as at the White House.

The exact date of the appearance of the company will be given in the next issue.

tariff for revenue, but advocated the income tax as a supplement to our present inelastic system. His manner on the rostrum was attractive.

Mr. Heath attacked vigorously the practicability of the income tax, citing the workings of the plan just after the Civil War to support his contention. He asserted that the only way to enforce the proposed tax was by self-assessment, which he declared palpably ineffective.

The rejoinders were spicy, Carolina having the last word.

All honor to Moser and Lynch; and Georgia's representatives were two fine fellows who took their defeat gracefully, and who have made an enviable record at Georgia.

A banquet was tendered the debaters by the Debating Union after the contest.

Charlottesville, Va., April 29.--The University of North Carolina debating team, W. T. Joyner and W. A. Dees, was defeated tonight by the Virginia team composed of Lewis Lyree and M. L. Levy on the question of the income tax amendment to the Federal constitution. Dr. C. Alphonso Smith, Roosevelt Professor at Berlin the past winter, presided over the contest, while the judges were: Dr. Robert B. Fulton, Dr. R. T. Kerlin, and Mr. Charles S. Churchill. The decision was two to one.

From the Managers.

Availing ourselves of the expensive experience of past Yackety Yack managers, the present managers have on hand only about 650 copies of the Yackety Yack to supply the 700 orders which we have from students. This means, of course, that some men who have ordered books will be unable to obtain them. Out of justice to the men who do pay their Yackety Yack assessments we have decided to adopt the following plan in delivering books: we will not deliver a book to any man who owes money to the Yackety Yack, until after all men have been supplied who have fully paid up their Yackety Yack, obligations. We consider this the only just way to properly distribute the shortage in our stock of books. See your treasurers and get them to pay up. We hope to deliver the books on or before Saturday May 6th, and all bills must be settled before then.
