THIS will be the last regular issue of the TAR HEEL. We suppose that many of our admiring readers will be glad of it. Certain others, we have an idea, will not be so glad--they haven't seen their name in print with any gratifying amount of frequency. However, they shouldn't become morbidly disheartened--not yet, for we'll probably get out an extra issue on the 20th, and then there will be the commencement edition, June 2d. It is barely possible that the bushel will be lifted from certain glittering lights and that they'll be given an opportunity to shine to their heart's content. We have three private detectives at work, gathering data.

It has been learned with much regret that Rev. R. W. Hogue will at an early date, give up his work in Chapel Hill, having accepted a call to Baltimore. It is of course gratifying to his friends that his new position will be one of wider influence, possibly, and wider service. And yet they realize that his going will be a distinct loss to the town and community. The University also, will lose in Mr. Hogue, one of its best friends and most enthusiastic supporters. His relations with the students have been of the most cordial and sympathetic kind. Indeed, he has identified himself with them in their work and sports as no other minister has ever done. He has been a helper and a leader in all the best activities of student life. His home has been open to the students, and there are few on the Hill who have not enjoyed the hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Hogue. They are indeed the most visited people in Chapel Hill. The place which Mr. Hogue leaves vacant will be hard to fill.

THE band has done a great work during the present baseball season. Evening after evening with praiseworthy self-sacrifice these young men of genius have turned out without a single absentee, each man lugging a heavy instrument, with the hope of no higher reward than a free pass in the grandstand gate. They may not hope to draw the gratitude of their fellow students nor can they look forward to the consciousness of self gratulation which comes from the fulfillment of a patriotic mission--for sad to relate not a run has been scored by Carolina this year while the band was playing, but we are grateful to them all right.

An incident, typical if not true, which illustrates the usefulness of the band from the fans standpoint came up in the game which closed the season. "Burr" Edwards was at the bat, with two strikes called and two men already out. It was the ninth inning and the visitors had a one run lead. The pitcher, Gwathmey had wasted one, when the band stirred by the realization that if they were going to float another runner across the plate, the time was nigh, started to roughing it up with "Dixie." The batsman was so entranced by the livening strains of the Southern anthem that he became oblivious of the fact that Gwathmey was winding up; and the next one slid down the groove, ending the game.

After the game, the band in the same generous mood went down to play for the King's Daughters' festival. Of course the King's Daughters served them some ice cream for their trouble and it is rumored that Bill Ellis took more saucers than Pinch Hitter Bailey took strikes in the V. P. I. game. But the fact remains that for this service as well as all other musical services rendered by the band during the spring, the whole community has cause to be grateful.

"They certainly can make some music and it sounds all the more sweet to a person sitting directly in front of the trombone's jaw," is a statement that is credited to Coach Clancey and Manager McCulloch.

THE 1911 gentlemen are feeling slightly mollified--the co-eds are showing an inclination to wear their class hats. If the ladies realized how becoming the top pieces are they'd never take 'em off.

Vanderbilt leads in the pentangular debates. Vanderbilt won from Virginia and Tulane. Carolina, Virginia and Tulane won and lost while Georgia lost two.

In the special issue of the Tar Heel on the 20th, the complete official program for commencement will be published.

History Prizes Presented.

Dean Graham announced in chapel on Wednesday morning the winners of the two prizes offered by the North Carolina Society of Colonial Dames. The first prize was won by W. C. Guess; second prize by E. C. Ward. Both of these men are members of the Senior class. Their essays dealt with the early history of North Carolina up till 1776. The subject of Mr. Guess' paper was County Government in Colonial North Carolina; that of Mr. Ward's was Westward Expansion. The judges were Dr. Venable, Dr. Wagstaff, and Professor Graham.

To win one of these prizes is indeed a signal honor--and a valuable one also, for the prizes are $100 and $50 respectively. The prizes are given each year by the Society of Colonial Dames for essays dealing with the Colonial Period in North Carolina. Any student in the University is eligible to enter the contest. Students who desire to gain further information may do so by seeing Dr. Hamilton.

John L. Pemberton, '07, of Fayetteville, will graduate at the University of Pennsylvania Medical school this spring. He has received an appointment as a resident at the Episcopal Hospital in Philadelphia for the next three years.

Get your training here. There are thousands of little hints and points brought out in the instruction here that you cannot learn in any other school than this--the guarding against error of omission and commission which the business man--your employer or prospective employer, has not the patience nor time to pass over or explain to you. It is a well known fact that many a young man or young woman, starting out in the business world, has had the proper make-up and has shown great promise, but the business man was too busy to teach a beginner
