FOOTBALL SEASON ABOUT TO OPEN

First Scrimmage Proves a Hot Battle Between Two Balanced Teams

COACH BOCOCK HAS NOTHING TO SAY

Too Early Yet to Make Predictions as to Who Will be in the First Line Up in Saturday's Game Against Wake Forest

With the opening game of the season but a few days off it is still a mere conjecture as to who will represent Carolina in the contest here Saturday against Wake Forest. Of course, to those who have stood on the side lines each afternoon a number of old favorites and promising candidates loom above the mass as having already cinched their positions, but for an onlooker to pick out the entire eleven from the squad is an impossible proposition. Boccock is giving every number of the squad a chance, and he is working every one with a grueling consistency that still leaves the matter of who will make the team were guess work.

The first scrimmage of the season took place Wednesday. Boccock chose the following men from the squad for the first day's mix-up.

| | | |
|------------------|---------|-----------|
| Afflewhite | l. e. | Blalock |
| Small | l. t. | Ritch |
| Johnson | l. g. | Teague |
| Crutchfield | c | Deans |
| Abernathy | r. g. | Price |
| Manning | r. e. | Venable |
| Tillet | quarter | Irwin |
| Chambers | f. b. | Wakeley |
| Coffin | r. h. | Strange |
| Winston | l. h. | Nicholson |

Report of a scrimmage had leaked out and as a result most of the college was on the side lines to watch the fun. And the college got what it went after, for although the first eleven went the other one better in the matter of weight and experience, there was nothing stirring when it came to a fight. Both teams had speed and spirit and the scrap they put up was lovely to see. The coach seemed satisfied with the work of the squad, though not by any means overjoyed.

The annual push ball contest at Washington and Lee was pulled off on Wilson field a few days ago. The contest was between thirty sophomores, captained by R. K. Williams of Morristown, Tenn., and thirty-five freshmen, captained by Noah Moses of Lexington, Va. The result of two hard contested rounds, one fifteen and the other of eight minutes, on a sultry afternoon, was a tie. And the sophomores are roosting lower. Thomas McP. Glasgow was the referee.

Cleveland county men held a meeting Tuesday night and elected the following officers for the year: Horace Sisk, president; F. Elliott, vice-president; M. S. Beam, secretary and treasurer. The club has eleven members.

ANOTHER VOYAGE PLANNED

Dramatic Club Elects Officers and Spreads Its Sails for Another Histrionic Cruise

The Dramatic Club is spreading its sails for another histrionic cruise over a university season. Thus far, everything looks bright on the horizon. Joel McAden is president of the Club, Speight Beam manager, and Prof. McKie coach.

A committee to select a new play for the coming fall has considered various possibilities. The problem is to secure a play suitable for practical production on the limited stage of Gerrard Hall which will, at the same time, be of a high enough standard to please a university audience. Ibsen and Shakespeare were considered, and a rollicking three-act farce, "The Private Secretary," was suggested. The last was thrown out rather than bother with a royalty to the author, though the club might possibly, as other clubs have done, sometimes persuade an author to waive this right. Finally, the choice was about made of Schiller's "Nephew and Uncle," a spicy comedy. And of course, translated from the German. A copy of this play has been secured, and is being read by the members of the committee. If it pleases them, it will be formally declared the play to be presented.

Last year the Club went through a little unpleasantness, started by a roast in the TAR HEEL. But even keen professional managers, with years of experience, sometimes run against this rock of an adverse critic, and the TAR HEEL criticism merely attested the extraordinarily high standard set for our college dramatics here. Such a thing, however, rarely occurs two successive years, and the very fact that it happened last year augurs well for the next play.

Freshmen Allowed to Meet

That the freshman class will be allowed to hold a meeting in Gerrard Hall for the purpose of organizing and electing officers for the class was the resolution passed at a meeting of the sophomores Friday afternoon.

The meeting of the '15 class is to be presided over by the Sophomore president and, with the provision that they will not give their class yell after the meeting or break any other rules of campus decorum prescribed for freshmen, the gentlemen of verdure will be unmolested.

This action was taken by the Sophomores to get the freshmen together on their numerous candidates for officers. There have been several meetings of fragments of the class and they now have two or three presidents. In addition to this there are several tickets being circulated for signers as a means of electing the officers.

The Sophomores completed the list of their officers by electing S. I. Parker as manager of the class football team, and M. R. Dunnagan class historian.

FIRST STAR COURSE OF COLLEGE YEAR

Large Audience See a Good Performance in Gerrard Hall

THE WEEKS COME AND GO AGAIN

Edwin R. Weeks and His Company Crowd Two Weeks Entertainment of Humor and Pathos Into One Night

A large audience greeted the Edwin R. Weeks Company in Gerrard Hall Saturday night. The typical college audience, composed for the most part of students, enjoyed the performance from start to finish. Though each number on the program was heartily applauded and much enthusiasm was manifested, good order prevailed.

The performance was well worth the price. Mr. Weeks understood his audience and was master at all times of wit, humor and pathos. The usual "perpetual jokes" at local subjects, such as the Chapel Hill Railway and police force, were delivered in an original and entertaining manner. The numerous catchy songs caused much merriment and brought forth much applause. As an impersonator as well as humorist and general entertainer, Mr. Weeks proved himself equal to the occasion.

Mrs. Weeks possesses a clear, sweet voice and is also a skilled accompanist. Her modest rendition of several pretty selections was a treat to an audience which hasn't many opportunities for hearing feminine voices.

Another feature of the entertainment was the solo work of Miss Sinclair, who played several beautiful violin solos. She showed much skill and deftness in execution while her music was appreciated even by those unskilled in musical art.

The playette "Squire Blakeley's Clarinet," was indeed amusing, and local wits very likely laid in a good supply of puns and witty remarks for future reference.

As a whole, the performance was an interesting, high class entertainment, well suited for a college community and appreciated by those attending.

There was not a dull minute throughout and the presentation were of a good quality.

The coming of the Weeks again will be looked forward to with pleasure.

C. E. Teague has been elected by the Students Council as representative from the senior class. Nominations for the representative at large from the student body will be made Tuesday morning. The election takes place on Wednesday, and on Thursday morning the formal inauguration of the Council will take place in Gerrard Hall. The Council at present consists of R. A. Freeman, '12; R. O. Huffman, '13; C. E. Blackstock, '13; Cyrus Hogue, Law; Dick Allison, Med., and C. E. Teague, '12.

ALUMNI TO CELEBRATE

Professor Williams to Speak in Durham on University Day, October 12th

The alumni of the university are preparing for their celebration here October 12, when Professor Horace Williams, of that institution, is to come over and deliver the address.

The plan of entertainment has not been entirely made out but is in the hands of Judge R. H. Sykes, a member of the class of 1899. There are more than seventy-five university men in Durham and every twelfth of October is made an occasion of great joy. The oldest of the alumni are Major W. A. Guthrie and General Julian S. Carr and there always take part in the celebration.

The association was addressed last year by Dr. Edwin Mims, professor of English and at that time beginning his work as a professor at the institution after having spent many in Trinity. His speech reflected the university spirit in every line. It was an utterance that delighted his hearers.

"Horace," as they call him at Chapel Hill, likes Durham and it is a place that just suits his psychological mind. He is something of an industrialist as well as a spiritualist, winning the name of "Blaron of Glenburnie" twenty years ago. He is the jullest sort of a fellow and will make the old boys that he used to give a 5 or 6 on his philosophy happy to hear him.

For the banquet $2 plates will be set and every alumnus is expected to meet the demands. Between now and that date, young alumni will call upon the professor and will make final arrangements for the feast and give the city the best university celebration that it has ever had.

For a long time the Durham-University alumni have had it in mind to do something for the institution each year but never have agreed upon their plans. The late Dr. W. A. Graham was working upon a plan to help it, some of the old boys here having won a reasonable amount of success. It is likely that something will be suggested at this meeting. —Durham Herald.

Insurgents Rise Again

For the nth time class 1915 has elected officers. This selection was made by petition and resulted as follows:

President, L. E. Jones, Hyde county.

Vice President, B. C. Parker, Union county.

Secretary, S. A. Blackmer, Rowan county.

Treasurer, Floyd Scott, Orange county.

Manager Football team, H. I. Foust, Guilford county.

Owing to the number of presidents that have been elected the class will probably choose the motto: "Uncertain lies the head that wears the crown."

STAR COURSE ATTRACTIONS FOR YEAR

Six Good Shows Have Been Secured Through the Agency

OF THE ALKAHEST LYCEUM SYSTEM

The Management Has Attempted to Secure the Best Entertainments and the Students Are Assured Six Good Shows

An excellent and most attractive lot of Star Course entertainments has been secured for this year. The management has attempted to get the best shows offered by the Alkahest Lyceum System. The first number, the Edwin R. Weeks Company, has already appeared and has made good. The account given below of the remaining attractions will show that those which are to come will be as entertaining as that which has already appeared.

The next number in the course is The Beulah Buck Quartet. This quartet is said to stand on an equality with the leading female companies in America. Each member is a capable soloist and their ensemble work enables them to give a delightfully varied program. In addition, Mrs. Buck's readings captivate and charm any audience.

Ralph Bingham, the noted humorist, will come soon after the Beulah Buck Quartet. He promises to give an evening of song, music, and story, "an intellectual diversion inducing pleasure and delight."

The Apollo Concert Company and Bell Ringers comes next with a program of great variety and excellent quality. They are bell ringers, instrumentalists, and singers, giving a program full of novelty and attractiveness.

The fifth number is filled by "Brush, the Great," a magician of mystery and wonder. He has been a student under the best Hindoo Fakirs and Mahatras of India, and has become a wonderful dealer in illusions and tricks of magic.

The last of the series, the De Koven Male Quartet, is a company of selected vocalists. The De Kovens have been before the public for six years and have never had a change in their personnel which has had much to do with the great success that has followed them all over the country. Their specialty is the rendering of old familiar songs.

The Odd Number Club, a small literary circle composed of those "actively engaged in creative literary work in the University," Thursday night elected to membership the following men: J. Lenoir Chambers, Andrew Joyner, J. L. Orr, Doughlass Rights and John Whitaker. Of last year's Odd Number six are on the Hill: Prof. E. K. Graham, W. T. Shore, W. C. George, A. L. M. Wiggins, Banks Mebane, S. D. Stephenson and L. N. Morgan. These, together with those newly elected bring the active membership up to eleven.
