Useful Information

For the benefit of helpless students, old and young, the Tar Heel will from now on run occasionally a column containing useful hints on the solution of the many perplexing problems facing student life. The column will be in the nature of those appearing in other up-to-date papers; for instance, those on "The Home Beautitul", "Eve Up To Date", "Hints for the Busy Housewife", "The Ideas of a Plain Country Woman", and "How to Dress on Two Hundred a Year". It will come out only when we feel like it. The first article appears below:

There are in the University many students whose excessive amount of work prevents them ley, Jr.; Ways of Men. from taking the proper care of their physical selves. Realizing the need of regular, vigorous, healthful exercise among these students especially, and among all classes, shades, sizes, and colors of students, allow us to suggest a healthful, sternuous form of exercise, and a fascinating sport-chewing gum. The Physical Director tells us that this form of exercise, if systematically carried out, is one of the liest muscle and jaw developers known to the profession. Part of its attractiveness lies in its inexpensiveness-postively no shin guards, head gear, or pads are necessary, although mufflers for the spectators are sometimes desirable. If the regular official wad of gum is not attainable, or if you wish to economize, a cheap substitute may be found by using a strip of ordinary horsehide. Old overshoes, mixed with a little putty, talcum powder, flavoring extract, hav been found to be excellent and appetizing jaw trainers. The rules of the game are simple---just place gum in the mouth and move same in the manner of an after-dinner cow. American Constitution. With a little practice you will find that quite a deal or speed and mond; Lady John Russell: a certain snap may be acquired. Care should be taken to choose the most suitable place for taking H; Recollections of Alexander this valuable exercise. One safe rule is to select any public place. Chapel, church, class room, on the side lines, in the drug store, and at Piekwick have been found to be desirable places. Other places, such as when leaning over some one else's shoulder reading his paper, or when in your room, with your roommate trying to study, also afford splendid opportunities for exercise as well as for a display of skill on the part of the chewer. A resounding pop of the gum, if carefully timed and skillfully executed, will be sure to attract the attention of envious admirers. One think you must be warned against: Be sure to provide a place for keeping the gum when at rest. It has been found by careful experiment that chewing gum will not lose its flavor when placed upon the bed post at night. Door facings are also excellent abiding places. But this important matter must of course in the long run be left to the convenience and individual judgment of each chewer.

down the field for 78 yds, before Winston overtook him and threw him on our 18 yd. line. This put new spirit into the Red and Black's team, and they kept the play in Carolina's territory for the remainder of the game, several times getting dangerously near our goal line, but never succeeding in scoring. The game ended with the ball in Carolina's territory but a comfortable distance

On the whole the game was not very satisfactory, although it was replete with brilliant individual playing. Carolina was not the football machine that she should have been. She only succeeded in making one touchdown out of a number of good chances.

Another thing-her ends did 851.08-- L930 Lucas, St. John not cover punts as they should have.
