try run and the Indoor meet which will be held after Christmas. This is the first year that Carolina has ever seriously intended sending a team to these games, but with most of her old men back it is hoped that we can make a good showing.

To further stimulate interest Coach Cartmell has ordered thirteen medals for class day and six for a cross country run.

The class day championships will be run off about the first week in November and medals will be awarded for first places only. The cross country run will be held after Thanksgiving, and the first six men finishing will be awarded medals and placed on the team which will meet the crack A & M and Wake Forest teams in an inter-collegiate cross country run.

tion of God, a great many take it for granted that there is a conflict between science and religion. There is the same difference between the science of today and the science of a generation ago. The interpretation of science is today fuller and more complete than it was a generation ago. The natural sciences, we also note, overlap each other. And as Chemistry shades over into the field of physics, and physics into that of psychology, just so truly do science and religion overlap. Formerly men had the idea that science and religion were separate and apart, but today this opinion is given up. But although there is a close connection between those two, there is no more possibility of their being in conflict than there is of the known facts of geology and astronomy being in conflict.

"Theology, indeed, is the queen of sciences. The natural world is the creation of God Himself. And when we are studying science we are studying some small part of the field of theology. Every discovery is a drawing nearer to God. As man has continued to study he has discovered many new things. Things that would have been thought miracles a century ago are not at all wonderful in comparison to what natural science has given us. We have penetrated almost into the infinitely great; and we have gone down into the infinitely small. Things that we cannot see we are able to measure by the spectroscope. These things the natural senses can never apprehend. They are the workings of the mind of man. The expressions of the truth about these things that used to be made, however are not taken today. The old interpretation of these truths have necessarily been modified. The interpretations, however, and not the truths have been changed. All truth is one.

"No man can know the sum of human knowledge. Hence we have specialists. The magnitude of knowledge compels a man to take a certain department and explore that. This gives rise to a little feeling of selfishness in science. Even more natural than is it for a feeling of jealousy to be between science and religion. It is simply the natural working of the mind of man which makes a man glory in the greatness of his own department.

"Truth is all important. We are in this world more for the purpose of discovering truth than for any other thing. This age is cursed by materialism which wants to know how many dollars a discovered truth is worth in the markets of the world. We should love truth for truth's sake. 'Happy is the man that findeth wisdom, and the man that getteth understanding; for the merchandise of it is better than the merchandise of silver, and the gain thereof than fine gold.' Man's advancement is indeed determined not by material things but by the extent that he has advanced the value of truth.

"We are studying God, no matter what kind of truth we are trying to get hold of. If we go into any kind of science, we are studying God, we are studying his word. But we make a mistake when we confine our study to any one branch of his truth, and do not thank him for the revelation of His word, for Jesus Christ. When we study the things of God Himself and of Christ we are studying the things that should endure, the same yesterday, today, and forever.

WINSTON'S BINGHAM TEAM SLAUGHTERED

Barring a tendency on Abernathy's part to run high, the back field showed much improvement. Applewhite, Tillett, and Wakeley were the best ground gainers. Johnson and Abernathy did well in the line. Garrison tackled hard after he got in. The forward pass was worked successfully three times, to Huske, to Long, and to Garrison. Bingham gained once on this play against the Scrubs. Stevens kicked five goals out of seven tries. For Bingham Angier, Preas, Webster and Hinson did notable work.

Friday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock in the chapel there will be a mass meeting of those interested in dramatics for the purpose of organizing a Dramatic Club. At the meeting officers will be elected and everything started right for a successful year. The dramatic team this year should be a good one, for the candidates for footlight will have good coaches. Profs. MacKie, Booker and Cross have been signed up at incalculable expense to the management, to stage a good company of interpretative artists.

Every one who has either the ability to elocute or pose is desired at the meeting. Also those who haven't. The coaches are there to make you.

On Tuesday night the Junior order of the Gorgon's Head held its initiation. The men taken in were, Dr. W. H. Brown of the medical department, and Messrs. F. G. Whitney, P. M. Smith, G. V. Strong, R. R. King, and M. T. Spears.

WILSON MEN ORGANIZE

Club Formed, Rally Planned Debate with Bull Meese

An active Woodrow Wilson Club was formed Saturday afternoon by two hundred and fifty students. H. E. Stacy was elected permanent chairman, and Lenoir Chambers Secretary. A finance committee composed of men from all the classes under the chairmanship of J. T. Johnson was appointed to collect funds for the national campaign. In addition an executive committee was appointed to plan for a big political rally on Nov. 2nd, at which time there will be a debate between representatives of the Bull Moose Club and of the Woodrow Wilson Club. The executive committee will ask some prominent state Democrat to be here and speak on this occasion.

Much interest was manifested at the meeting. Plans had been made for it some time in advance, but the most sanguine supporters of the cause were surprised at the interest shown. J. W. Hester of the Law class acted as temporary chairman. He appointed a committee on organization. While this committee was conferring, Dr. J. G. deR. Hamilton addressed the meeting. Dr. Hamilton is state manager of the Woodrow Wilson Business Men's League and is much interested in the present campaign. He told of the part college men were playing this year and of the need for organization here.

The organization committee recommended the above-mentioned officers and a finance committee composed of the following: W. F. Chairman; Law Class Graham, Mitchell, Warlick; Seniors; W. R. Petteway, Spears, Walker; Juniors; Whiting, Pritchett, Spence; Sophomores; Lipscomb, Woolcott, Carr; Freshmen; Hunter, Duncan, Beckwith, Hunter, Fore; in town, MacLendon, Koonce, Alf Pickard.

The entire community will be canvassed. $500.00 is the mark aimed for.

Short speeches were made by H. E. Stacy, Dr. Webb, and L. P. MacLendon. The chairman on the executive committee which is now making definite arrangements for the biggest political rally ever seen in Chapel Hill.
