

SPORTOGRAMS

The dope artist of "Sportograms" is once more on the job. Some time back his typewriter refused all of a sudden to beat out any more sporting pot-hooks; and, instead, got to hitting off stuff about "dreamy eyes", "moonlight," and "wisps of brown hair". You know that line of tootsie-wootsie dope that the gink named Romeo used to whiff across the plate in the Shakespeare League. Its this dim-lights-and-soft-music kind of dope that suddenly gave my typewriter "the itch, the tang to write", as Browning called it—or maybe it was just the measels the old geezer was talking about. Anyway, you'll pardon a short month's literary relapse; for you know, "in the spring a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of bock beer.

Well, gentlemen — and also Miss Easter Week Girl, for appropriate politeness, the team's Losing-Jinx was broken up Wednesday with a vim. The team gave us a little inside base-ball Wednesday. The men seem to be grasping the idea that Coach Bowers has been trying to drill into them—"team-work". In most of the previous games that all essential thing, "team-work", has been woefully lacking. In some of the games the tin-domed plays pulled off would have put shame in the artistic souls of a bunch of jaytown boobs on a hay tossing nine. However, any team composed almost wholly of raw material must travel the rough road a bit before they strike their stride. We've got confidence in our players. We've got confidence in our coach. We are right there with the glad hand, Coach Bowers. You've got a tough proposition in whipping a raw team into shape; but we believe you can put the finishing touches on with a few more games.

Take it from this dope dealer right now, there is no use to worry about a team as long as it hits the pill. The men we have this year, though new, clout the pill on the snout with a vim. In every game so far, with the exception of the Guilford contest, we've outhit our opponents. We have a bunch of left-handed stickers this year; and they raise a little havoc with the opposing right-handed pitchers. As we intimated before, when the men get their "team-work" down pat, and with the hitting ability that they show, we are going to reap some big scalps before the season is over.

"Govnor" Aycock did some real classytwirling Wednesday. The first no-hit game of the season goes to his credit. The little "Govnor" is making a rapid rise from the class team. He is showing his true form in every game.

Julian Hart was right there with the clouts Wednesday. He garnered three with his willow. His peg to the keystone bag shows some improvement.

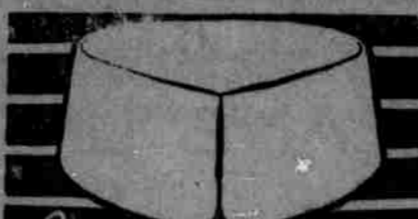

BATH IMPROVEMENTS MADE

To those who are interested in the progress of the University, who have the welfare of the eight hundred students at heart, the recent additions to the bathing facilities at the Gym cannot but be hailed with delight as the dawning of a new era. For years the essential hot water could be obtained from only five shower. Now the facilities have been doubled. From the bottom of thankful hearts praise mounts up to the Faculty and Trustees who have thus seen fit to answer the appeals of countless generations of Tar Heel editors.

THE ALUMNI ARE BEHIND TRENCHARD

Immediately after the Carolina-Guilford ball game Monday afternoon, a meeting of the Cumberland County Association of the University of North Carolina Alumni was held in the offices of James B. MacRae, ex-mayor of Chapel Hill, son of the former dean of the University Law School, which was very largely attended and most enthusiastic in its unanimous endorsement of the policy and administration of Head Coach Trenchard.—Fayetteville correspondence Charlotte Daily Observer.

Mr. Lewis Sutton of Raleigh spent last week in Chapel Hill with her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Venable.
