

THE BIRTHDAY OF THE UNIVERSITY OBSERVED WITH FITTING CEREMONY

The 120th Anniversary Observed Saturday. Secretary Josephus Daniels, Pres. Graham, Dr. Archibald Henderson and Prof. M. H. Stacy Speak

The forces regnent in this University of ours, with their unchallenged promise and creative fertility, tempts one less to retrospection than to prophecy." These words spoken by Dr. Archibald Henderson last Saturday sounded the keynote of the University's celebration of its one-hundred-twentieth anniversary. With but a glance at the history of the institution, rich in service and achievement, the spirit of the day emphasized the opportunity of the present and constructive plans for the future. The President reported that through its Bureau of Extension the University hopes to make its campus co-extensive with the boundaries of the State. Honorable Josephus Daniels, Secretary of Navy, rendered the occasion memorable by his presence and his message of "North Carolina Spirit."

The celebration here at home was connected with numerous celebrations all over the country, as alumni and friends, though absent in person, yet joined themselves in spirit, sent to their University hearty congratulations on its birthday. From Greensboro came this telegram: "The faculty and students of the State Normal send greetings and all good wishes on this anniversary occasion." A message from Germany brought Dr. Venerable's best wishes.

The features of the day were the able addresses of Secretary Daniels, the stirring speech of Dr. Henderson and the encouraging "introductory" address of the President.

President Graham, in making his report of the year, announced that the registration has reached 871. This exceeds the total number ever registered in any one year by 34 and is 100 above the number ever registered at any one time before. Registration in our academic department exceeds that of any other Southern college except the University of Texas, which is co-educational.

In addition to those taught directly on the campus, said the President, the faculty has undertaken so to extend its activities as to put the University in warm, sensitive touch with every problem in N. C. life, making the campus co-extensive with the boundaries of the State.

As to the condition of the students on the campus, President Graham said that their main interest is in their college work, our attendance record comparing favorably with those of other high-grade institutions, football is properly one of the student activities; but it is not an all-absorbing one. The record of serious attention to required duties is borne out by the three outstanding voluntary activities in the life of the average N. C. student that sow his true nature and genius. These are his interest in debating, in religion, and in self-government. The success of the literary societies and the great work of the religious organizations are a part of a fundamental activity—a slowly evolving system of self government—which is the highest achievement of the University student community.

The next speaker was Dr. Archibald Henderson, who on account of the high praise that he has won at home and abroad for his work in literature and Science is eminently fitted to speak on "The University and the Nation." Said Dr. Henderson in part, "Viewed in the light of national perspective, the University of the new era can no longer rest content to educate the individual mind. Its prophetic destiny is to educate the popular mind, to raise the standards of politics and government to the highest level of enlightenment of public opinion. This University has recently created a Bureau of Extension. In a true sense is this work termed "extension," for it is but an extension of the national service to education already abundantly rendered by this institution and its alumni. Dr. B'lock, educational expert, placed this institution in the first and foremost rank of American Universities. From the Southern institutions have recently come such leaders in national affairs as Wilson, Daniels, Houston, Underwood, Simmons, Craig, Page and Holmes. In this hour of liberty and responsibility the nation once more turns for guidance to the South, the ancient mother of national leadership.

Hon. Josephus Daniels then delivered his address, speaking in part as follows: "North Carolinians are differentiated from the people of other states by an indefinable spirit, a spirit blossoming in the simple life, simple faith and love of home, a spirit incarnated in Macon, Vance and Aycock. Have we loved the simple life because we have lived far removed from the garnish sights of a more complex civilization? No. Our virtues were not the accident of environment. They were—they are—they will ever be the texture of our lives. I call upon the young men of N. C. to incarnate this N. C. spirit in their lives and let it be the inspiring light of the future as it has been the steady glow of the past. The N. C. spirit of simple life and simple faith, of love of one's neighbors, of open hearts and warm hospitality, of rugged integrity and courage, has led us to the heights upon which we stand in this glad hour. Let us now invoke that spirit, thank God, and take courage.

GREATER COUNCIL MEETS

Discusses Idea of Student Memorial to Town.

At a meeting of the Greater Council Tuesday night a number of interesting suggestions were made and discussed. Among other things an idea which Dr. Herty presented some time ago in chapel was considered, namely, that the student body by doing some work or making some gift for the benefit of the town and community, erect for itself a memorial. Dr. Herty was present and explained more fully his idea, and discussed it with the Council. A number of plans were tentatively considered. These embraced an artistic and useful fountain at the site of the well on Main street; an efficient and ornamental system of lights for several blocks on main street, and others. Committees were appointed to investigate the practicability of suggested plans.

In the discussion of campus life, the matter of the inadequate drinking facilities at the well was brought up. A committee was formed to try to formulate some plan for a more convenient and sanitary arrangement than the present pump and free-for-all dipper. In this as in all other matters the Greater Council, working for the welfare of the campus, would appreciate the suggestions of any member of the community.

Various Alumni Celebrations.

Dr. Mangum addressed the Alumni Association of Mecklenburg County at the University Day Banquet.

Bancombe County Alumni had an enthusiastic meeting. A letter from Coach "Doggie" relative to the football situation aroused a great deal of interest. Several committees were appointed to help him in his work. Another banquet will be held about January 1 and it is hoped to have increased interest by that time.

The Alumni in New York held a novel and entertaining banquet. The affair was a beefsteak dinner at which the members sat on stools in a circle and ate from the bottoms of bisected barrels. Appropriate costumes were worn. A. Marvin Carr was chairman of the arrangement committee.

R. G. Shoat, ex-'14, was on the Hill for University Day.

CAROLINA FALLS SHORT OF EXPECTATION IN GAME AGAINST DAVIDSON BUNCH

Carolina Failed to Score Until the Last Quarter. Foust's Kicking was Great. Backfield Open to Much Just Criticism

Carolina	Position	Davidson
Homewood, Long	R. E.	Creighton, Brownley
Abernathy L., Edwards	R. T.	Anderson
Foust, Johnson	R. G.	Glower
Abernathy R., Tandy	C.	Peters, Laird, Robinson
Cowell, Andrews	L. G.	Brady
Ramsey, Edwards	L. T.	Howell, McCoy
Huske, Joyner	L. E.	Cosby
Lord, Allen	Q.	Elliott, Keesler
Reed, Burnette	R. H.	Walker
Tayloe	L. H.	McKinnon
Ervin, Fuller	F.	Summerville

One touchdown, and that in the last six minutes. Poor work of the backfield and indifferent linework in the game against Davidson at Greensboro Saturday tells the tale of one touchdown.

The first quarter ended with the ball where it started — the center of the field. Neither side could gain consistently, through Carolina's failure to shift in the line to meet Davidson's shift in the backfield resulted in several needless gains by the Presbyterian. Tayloe's two attempts at drop kicks were highly unsuccessful.

Foust's punting in the second gave Carolina the advantage. Unsuccessful forward passes, illtimed plays, and the failure to block Davidson's end on punts were all overcome by Foust's good left toe.

With fresh men in the lineup, Carolina become more aggressive in the third. The ball was pushed down close to Davidson's line. A forward pass was intercepted by a Davidson man who ran the ball to the middle of the field. A successful pass by the Red and Black put the ball on Carolina's 20 yard line. But Davidson failed to gain another inch. An exchange of punts followed in favor of Carolina. Line plunges left the ball on Davidson's 16 yard line. The quarter ended.

More line plunges, a forward pass to Tayloe, and an overtackle play by Fuller resulted in the only touchdown. Tayloe really made the touchdown, but the referee ruled that he stepped out of the field a yard from the goal. Tandy kicked goal. At this time, the conduct of the Davidson rooters was disgraceful. They crowded the sideline and even came on the field. They yelled and tried to drown Lord's signals. They were finally driven driven by the threat to call the game.

The last few minutes of play resulted in nothing, the game ended with the ball in the middle of the field.

Carolina is potentially much stronger than the score reveals. The line is good, undoubtedly. Ramsey's playing, as usual, deserves praise. He made most of the tackles, going down under the punts. The team was badly managed. The plays were not mixed enough. Passes were poorly made. The backs failed to take the holes made for them, and the interference did little to keep the opponents out of the play.

The game was a hard fought one. Several men being injured on both sides. Peters, Davidson's center, was knocked unconscious. It was feared for several hours that he had concussion of the brain. Ervin and Reed both have badly injured shoulders.

Referee, Simmons, of Charlotte; Umpire, Sampson of St. Albans; Head Linesman, Kluttz, of Davidson; Timekeeper, Garrett of U. N. C. Quarters, 12 1.2: Attendance, 600.
