PLAYERS SELECTED FOR SHAKESPEAREAN ROLES

Dr. Booker to Play Prince Hal; Mr. McKie to Play Quince

This week sees a practically completed cast for the Shakespearean Celebration. The rehearsals of the Community Club and the students under the direction of faculty coaches have resulted in the following casts:

"The Winter's Tale"
Florizel..... Bruce Webb
Perdita..... Miss Mary Henderson
Autolycus..... Buck Wimberly
Shepherds and rustics: several minor roles to be filled by students.

In the role of Perdita Miss Mary Henderson will make her first dramatic appearance to a Chapel Hill audience. Bruce Webb, who last year made a name for himself in dramatics needs no introduction. Judging from Buck Wimberly's splendid interpretation of Lew Ellenger in "The Witching Hour" it can safely be said that his Autolycus will be an excellent piece of acting.

"Midsummer Night's Dream"
Hippolyta..... Mrs. James Quince
Bottom..... Mr. McKie
Plute..... R. B. House
Snout..... W. D. Macmillan
Starveling..... B. Lacy Meredith
Theseus..... Billy Steele
Philstrate..... Zeke Cowan

TEN SCHOLARSHIPS TO OGLETHORPE GIVEN

Mr. A. J. Draper of Charlotte The Donor

Through the interest of Mr. A. J. Draper, of Charlotte, ten University students are going to have the pleasure of attending Camp Oglethorpe without cost between July the fifth and August the eighth this summer. These scholarships are worth $42.00 each and are given for the purpose of stimulating interest in the first big student military camp to be held in the South.

All Carolina men are eligible who are over five feet four inches tall and who make application for the scholarships before May the first. The application should be briefly stated; a good form would be: "I wish to apply for a scholarship to Camp Oglethorpe." It may then be mailed to President E. K. Graham or Dean M. H. Stacy, or it may be placed in the letter box at the President's office.

Your previous military experience will have no bearing whatever on the basis of selection, but those men who from every point of view are best qualified to carry out the purpose of the encampment will be selected from among the applicants. No additional obligation for military service in the future is incurred by receiving one of these scholarships.

GYM MEET WITH VIRGINIA PEACE ORATORS FROM 5 STATES HERE MAY 5

Will Be Held Here on Easter Monday

A dual gym meet with the University of Virginia has been arranged for Monday night, April 24, in Bynum Gymnasium. Contests on horizontal and parallel bars, horse, tumbling, and flying rings will be held. The meet promises to be one of interest as it is first the since 1912 when Carolina defeated Davidson.

PROF. BLISS PERRY TO SPEAK HERE NEXT WEEK

Will Lecture on "The Youth of Representative Men"

The University and the people in the vicinity of Chapel Hill will enjoy an exceptional opportunity on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday of next week. Prof. Bliss Perry, Professor of English literature in Harvard University and one of the one-half dozen most brilliant and popular lecturers on literature in the United States will lecture here then. Following a time of service at Williams College, Mr. Perry was Professor of English literature in Princeton University from 1893 to 1900. During the decade from 1899-1909 he enjoyed the rare distinction of being editor of the Atlantic Monthly, probably the greatest American magazine. Since 1900 he has held the chair of English literature in Harvard University, and is known from one end of the country to the other as a charming and fascinating lecturer on literary subjects. In deed, there are a few parts of the United States in which he has not lectured before the leading and representative educational institutions.

This series of lectures makes an especial appeal to young men and is particularly designed to touch the college student. Following in the footsteps of Emerson who wrote the famous essay on "Representative Men", Professor Perry appeals to the youth of today in these lectures on "The Youth of Representative Men", selecting Goethe, Emerson and Napoleon as his men. No student, professor, or member of the community can afford to miss this opportunity to hear a lecturer of the very highest quality in personal attractiveness and rare literary charm.

Dr. Stuart McGuire Speaks Tonight

"Cancer and its Causes" will be the subject of Dr. Stuart McGuire, who speaks in Chemistry Hall tonight at eight-thirty. Dr. McGuire, who has spoken several times in Chapel Hill on various medical matters, is president of the Richmond School of Medicine. The lecture, while given under the auspices of the medical society, will not be technical but promises to be of interest to the entire University.

GRAHAM WINS FROM WILSON IN THE STATE-WIDE HIGH SCHOOL DEBATE

Friendship Wins Track Meet, Wilmington the Tennis Doubles. Over 500 Visitors Here.

Surpassing commencement in the number of visitors and participants, and outstripping Junior Week in the universality of interest and diversity of amusements, "High School Week" held here Thursday and Friday has come to be one of the most important periods on the University's calendar. Sixty-eight schools sent 272 debaters to take part in the fourth annual debating contest, and it is estimated that they attracted to the Hill a total of 400 visitors. The fourth annual track and the first tennis tournament, participated in by 9 and 8 schools respectively, attracted about 150 visitors. The growth of the inter-scholastic debating contests for the Aycock cup has been phenomenal, there being 90 schools in the first contest, 150 in the second, 250 in the third, and 325 in the fourth. Four hundred schools are expected to take part next year.

The debate was won by Graham High School, the track meet by Friendship for the third successive time, and the doubles of the tennis tournament by Wilmington.

In the crowning occasion of all the events of the three days, the debate finals, Graham High School won from Wilson High School. Graham had the affirmative side of the query: Resolved, that the United States should adopt the policy of greatly enlarging its navy and, represented by Miss Myrtle Cooper and Boyd Harden, defended its side most ably. David Isear and Wade Gardner upheld the negative side of question for Wilson.

Memorial Hall was, for once, really packed. And when the crowd left they were satisfied, for they felt that they had heard a debate in which both sides had been clearly and strongly defended, a debate worthy of the pick of North Carolina's high school debaters. Everyone felt that President Graham's words expressed the sentiment of the audience when he said to the two teams in his introductory remarks: "I congratulate you both if you win without pride or lose without excuses."

Miss Myrtle Cooper, the first speaker on the affirmative, elicited the most enthusiastic and prolonged applause of the evening. Both her debate and rejoinder were unusually clear, strong and incisive; her delivery was confident, persuasive and also exceedingly clear.

She proved, to the satisfaction of the audience, at least, these three points: that the United States must enlarge its navy if she wishes to keep in front rank of the world powers, that we can't tell what part we may have to take soon in regard to the great war and should be prepared for the worst; and, third, that unless our navy is greatly enlarged we may have to give up tenets of the Monroe Doctrine and allow some other nation to become the dominant power in the western hemisphere. "Our strength", said Miss Cooper, "is as yet potential, our weakness real. The solution of the problem is what the majority of the American people believe in—a greatly enlarged navy." Our history shows us that a navy is not an idle burden, but a necessity; for every five years of peace we have had over one year of war. But our navy must be taken out of politics before we can realize our national ideal. She then cited Belgium's unpreparedness and its result; "the pacifist", she insisted, "are the enemies of their country". She concluded her debate with a quotation from one of President Wilson's speeches: "You ask me to maintain the national honor and preserve peace; the time may come when I shall be unable to do both." "Let us not", Miss Cooper urged, "purchase peace at the price honor and duty."

Boyd Harden, Miss Cooper's colleague, dealt almost exclusively with the expediency of navy enlargement. "A greatly enlarged navy", he said, "will not only prevent invasion of our coasts and foreign possessions, but will also obviate the necessity of a large standing army."

Wade Gardner and David Isear, representing Wilson, defended the negative with speeches well written and full of good points. Gardner devoted his debate to proving these two points: we already have a navy surpassed only by England's and we have no reason to fear any other nation. David Isear, his colleague, dwelt on two supplementary propositions, namely: the proposed policy would destroy our world leadership for righteousness and bring war on us; and we may use other methods to preserve peace with honor.

Friendship Wins Meet

Friendship won the interscholastic track meet for the third successive year. Graham came in for second place and Hillsboro for third. The relay race was won by Greensboro with Friendship second.

Ray, of Graham, broke the records in both shot and hammer which he himself established last year. Cannon of High Point likewise broke his last year's record in the quarter by over two seconds.

On account of limited space only the names of those who finished first can be given. Friendship won a great many second and third places.

Summary:

100 yards—Perry, Graham.
