VIRGINIA ON DEFENSIVE DURING ENTIRE GAME

15,000 PEOPLE SEE TAR HEELS DEFEAT OLD TIME RIVALS IN RICHMOND

With "Bill" Folger gaining around the ends at regular intervals and "Raby" Tennent plunging the line at will, the greatest team which ever wore the white and blue of Carolina out-fought the time-honored team from Virginia and won the annual Thanksgiving classic 7 to 0, Thursday afternoon at Broad Street Park in Richmond.

It was in the third quarter, when the ball was near the middle of the field, that Quarter-Back Williams gave the signal for Folger to take the leather. He caught the fling squarely and true, running as the oval dropped into his pocketed arms. Three men dived at him and reached for his heels. Another hurled himself at the runner's waist. A stiff arm warded the tackler away; and, straightening himself out Folger saw a clear field ahead. Eleven men, like hands on a warm trail, took up the pursuit. But Folger broadened his smile, thinking of the folks at home, and increased the speed as victory drew nearer his vision. He crossed, and a breathless, foot-worn Virginian dropped at the runner's ankles, and halted him—too late.

Then it was that the stands began to tremble and shook under the stamping of thousands of feet, and thousands of voices, led by Father Tandy, rose in a mighty chorus of applause. It was the first time that Carolina had won a game since 1905, when she carried home a score of 17 to 0; the second time she had scored a touchdown and the fourth time she had scored at all during eight years of play. In 1906 and in 1909 there were no games between the two. But it was characteristic of Carolina that she went from defeat to defeat, battered and worn, with never-faint heart and never-waning hope. From one battle lost she always looked forward to another to win. It has taken nine years, but the victory was all the sweeter.

At no time during the game did the back field find Virginia's line impregnable, while Carolina's line held like an adamant wall against the vain onslaughts of the orange and blue.

But for the wet field it was an ideal day for football. A blue sky with heavy clouds drifting across, and brave north-west winds added zest to the well deserved consumption of one of the best seasons in the history of the University. The crowd, estimated at 15,000, was one of the largest ever to gather in Broad Street Park. The Carolina bleachers were jammed and packed with students and patriotic alumni who yelled their throats to a frazzle in a continuous blast of applause lasting through the game.

When the game ended, with the leather in Virginia territory and in Virginia hands, babel broke loose in every stand and bleacher, and the wearers of the Blue and White, scattering restraint to the winds, fell upon the field like a Roman mob. Folger was rushed and shouldered. Then came Tandy, Tennent, Bellamy, Williams and the rest. There were more than enough shoulders for the triumphal march around the field, and the others of the gesticulating, shrieking, wildly happy mob fell in behind.

Carolínians have never failed to cheer their teams, even in the moment of defeat. When, after so many years, they again held victory within their grasp, they did not forget the courtesy due those who, striving against great odds, so gamely lost. The Carolínians have preserved their ancient spirit, and to lose to such an opponent is well worth the struggle.

A banquet was given the team and coaches after the game at Murphy's Hotel. The hall was attractively decorated with pennants and blue and white chrysanthemums. Captain Tandy was called on for a speech. He congratulated the team on their wonderful perseverance of fighting spirit all through the season and thanked the coaches for the invaluable training which was after all the key to the season's success. Mr. Tandy, Yank's Father, also praised "the boys." "I know you could do it," he said, "if you would fight." The captain of the 1917 team will be chosen later.

THE FIRST QUARTER

Captain Tandy won the toss, and elected to receive at the west goal, forcing Ward to kick-off in the face of a driving northeast wind. Ward booted the ball high, but it was caught in an air current and swept over the south side line. The leather was brought back and, while the 14,000 spectators edged nervously about in their seats, Ward again placed the ball. Once more he kicked it, and this time it carried straight to Tennent. The half back displayed nervousness, and juggled the ball, but recovered in time to run it back eight yards before Calvert downed him, with a plunging tackle, on the twenty-five-yard mark.

Ward tackled Tennent on the first dash and downed him without gain. Folger again fumbled when he recovered, J. T. Tackling him before he had a chance. Folger then punted out on the field, but an offside penalty was called on Virginia, and the ball was ed. Folger was unable to Coleman downing him. He punted, the ball crossing the southern side line on Virginia's forty-two-yard mark.

Kinsolving was given the opportunity of rushing the ball first for the Orange and Blue, and essayed a gain through right tackle, making five yards. Thurman contributed a yard, and Sparr lanced right tackle for three yards, and then Thurman was called upon to punt. The drive carried well and, striking a few yards in front of the goal line, was allowed to cross it, Carolina bringing it out twenty yards and beginning play with a scrimmage.

Williams carried the ball on the first play, and made eight yards before being downed by Kinsolving. Virginia again displayed nervousness, and suffered another five-yard penalty for offside play, allowing Carolina to register its initial first down. Folger made two yards through left tackle before Calvert brought him down. Tennent added another, being downed by Thurman and Coleman before Folger dropped back to punt. The ball took a bad bounce, and Bellamy recovered the leather on Virginia's twenty-six-yard line; but no Orange and Blue player had touched it, and they were awarded possession of the leather.

Thurman made a yard around right end. He dropped back as though to kick, but Wagenknight dived into the line, being downed without gain. Up to this time the low-hanging clouds had cast a shadow over the field. As the players arose from the ground, however, Old Man Sol peeped out over the field and decided he liked the view so well that he would remain among those present. Thereafter he smiled broadly, until the gloom of night crept in, and players and spectators basked in his light.

Thurman punted on the next play, and Carolina was awarded the ball on her own thirty-five-yard line, when it was allowed to roll it stopped of its own accord.

A FOUR PAGE NEWS PAPER DURING THE CONVENTION

PUBLISHED BY STUDENTS OF THE JOURNALISM CLASSES FOR VISITORS

A four-page newspaper is to be published by the students of the journalism class on each of the three days of the newspaper convention next week, if plans now on foot prove successful. The publication is intended to keep the newspaper men informed on events of interest to them that are taking place on the campus. Several of the prominent editors that attend will probably be asked to contribute editorials for the publication.

Professor Thornton of the journalism department has written to a manufacturing concern for the use of a Linotype machine during the convention, and if he succeeds in securing the machine, it will be set up in the Y. M. C. A. lobby for exhibition to the visitors as well as for the type-setting of the publication.

THE W. J. BRYAN PRIZE FOR ECONOMICS PAPER

Several years ago Mr. W. J. Bryan gave a course of lectures here from which the management cleared a little money. The money was immediately invested. The income is now to be used as a prize for a paper whose subject is some phase of economics in relation to politics, various phases of finance and other subjects in which the State plays a part.

The prize is $12 in cash and is to be presented annually at commencement to the writer of the best paper.

It is expected that there will be a large number of entries for the prize as our department of economics is one of the most popular in the University.

UPCHURCH WINS TROPHY CUP IN RACE AT RALEIGH

While "Bill" Folger was dashing across Virginia's goal line for the touchdown that brought victory to his team, L. M. Upchurch, Carolina's star long distance runner, was adding another victory to his long list of successes by winning the individual trophy cup in Raleigh for the five mile race. In exactly 26 minutes and 30 seconds after the pistol was fired, the crowd of Raleigh citizens assembled at Fayetteville Street saw Upchurch cross the goal line far in advance of his nearest competitor, Scott, of A. and M., who came in second a few minutes later.

Although Carolina's representative easily secured first place in the meet, A. and M., by scoring ten points, succeeded in winning the silver cup offered to the school or college making the highest score.

Totten and Crisman also participated in the race as representatives of the University.

One of the largest crowds of students that has ever assembled in Gerrard Hall was addressed on Sunday night by Dr. E. N. Seerley on the subject of sex hygiene.

By Upchurch's superiority in sprinting at the last of a five-mile race, the University of North Carolina representatives won the annual State intercollegiate cross country race held at A. and M. College last Saturday. Upchurch ran the distance of five miles in 25 minutes. Nims also deserves much credit, for by coming in third he cinched the race for Carolina. A. and M. took second place, Davidson third, and Wake Forest fourth. Trinity, Guilford and Elon, did not have representatives in the race. The order in which they finished was: Upchurch, Carolina, first; Scott, A. and M., second; Nims, Carolina, third; Donnell, Wake Forest, fourth; Clich, A. and M., fifth; Brand, Davidson, sixth; Cobb, A. and M., seventh; Worth, Davidson, eighth; Murrill, A. and M., ninth; Lee, A. and M., tenth; Totten, Carolina, eleventh; Bunn, Wake Forest, twelfth. The race was over a rough country extending from the Agricultural Building at the A. & M. College, through the experiment station grounds to Method and back by the road to the Textile Building.
