

CAROLINA GOES OVER THE TOP IN CAMPAIGN FOR MEMORIAL FUND

COMPLETE RESULTS HAVE NOT YET BEEN PUBLISHED BUT AVERAGE IS HIGH

AT LEAST $20,000 SUBSCRIBED

Pledges Run Anywhere from $25 to $500; Individual Average is About $35

Although the results of the canvass on the campus Thursday for the Graham Memorial Fund have not yet been fully tabulated, it is certain that a sum well in advance of $20,000 has been pledged by the students. College spirit reached a high level during the mass meeting held in Gerrard Hall just before the canvassing began. The meeting proved to be the spark that set off the pent-up enthusiasm of the student body, and its response was most gratifying to those in charge of the campaign.

The campaign is still in progress, and it is confidently expected that the students will themselves pledge, if indeed they have not already done so, at least $25,000 to the cause of their Alma Mater. This will be a most powerful challenge to the alumni and to the people of the State, and it is thought that their response will also be a cause of gratification to all the loyal supporters of the institution. The action of the students in showing that they are really and earnestly behind the movement will, no doubt, be a most telling factor in obtaining the State-wide support of the campaign.

The pledges thus far range from around $25 to $500. The estimated average for the entire student body is about $35 per student, though this average will be substantially increased when those who have not yet pledged anything are heard from. Many men who are working their way through school have pledged $50 to $150. Quite a number of $100 pledges were received, fifteen having been received from the Senior class alone, and many pledges also, of a larger denomination.

The Campaign is rapidly progressing throughout the State, and much enthusiasm is manifest, especially (Continued on Page 4)

Univ. Library Enriched By Acquisition of Many Valuable Collections

During the past year the University Library has been enriched by the addition of several valuable collections and by gifts, loans and purchases to the amount of 3,946 volumes. This does not include the Weeks Collection of 10,000 books, pamphlets, etc., which was purchased by the University and is now being catalogued. This collection is the most important acquisition of the Library in recent years, according to the report of Dr. L. R. Wilson, the Librarian.

In 1917 Mr. John Sprunt Hill, of Durham, made possible the general upbuilding of the North Carolina collection and Miss Mary Thompson, of the Library of the University of Georgia was secured as librarian and cataloguer. During the year the volumes were sorted, classified, 244 were purchased and bound and 238 were received as gifts. The N. M. Cobb, Jr., collection of more than fifty volumes of rare early North Carolina publications has been loaned and gifts to the collection of North Caroliniana have been made from the Battle Collection of books on law, the Groome collection of works on Southern Methodism, and the Bahson collection of medical works. The Weeks collection with these and the volumes already in the Library will give the University the most distinctive collection of North Caroliniana in the United States, the University of Wisconsin having the next most important collection.

The late Dr. Stephen Weeks had been collecting books relating to North Carolina for over thirty years at the time of his death. He was made Historian of the U. S. Bureau of Education in 1911 and had had wide experience in indexing and editing North Carolina documents. His collection contains a bibliography of North Caroliniana with references to many pamphlets, periodicals and publications not previously indexed. The volumes comprise books bearing the autographs of prominent early North Carolinians, the first books published in the State, public documents, Civil War imprints, biography and genealogy of North Carolinians, volumes of general history and poetry, novels, sermons and miscellaneous literature. Original Make-Up Will Feature the Victory Issue of Yackety Yack

The editors state that the 1919 annual promises to be the best annual of years for the following reasons:

First, The students this year are interested as never before. They are not only interested, but are rendering a great help by handing in material.

Second, The memorial section, dedicated to Drs. Graham, Stacy, and Battle, is the feature of the book, and will be the finest thing of its kind ever presented on the campus.

Third, The victory section, which is devoted to Carolina's part in the great war, will be very complete and of great interest.

Fourth, This year's book is one in which every student will have an interest. No outside material will be used, but all going in the book will come directly from the campus.

The editors appeal to all the seniors to hand in their statistics and other material as soon as possible. The earlier all the material is in, the earlier it is possible for the book to appear on the campus in the spring.

The photographer has been here for the past week, and has finished making all the pictures for the book. He has made about two hundred and fifty individual and fifty or more group pictures. Group pictures were made of county clubs, social, honorary, and professional fraternities, professional schools, debating clubs and council, musical clubs, Y. M. C. A., marines and 2nd lieutenants, freshmen and sophomore classes, co-eds, heads of the departments, athletic teams, and societies.

Individual pictures were made of seniors and juniors, pharmacy and law classes, publication boards, and dance leaders.

The photographer left last Thursday. A lady from White Studio will be down in a week or ten days to show proofs. She will also take or (Continued on Page 4)

Intrasociety Freshman Preliminaries are Held

Interest in the intra-society Freshmen debates is fully as great this year as ever, as evinced by the fact that eleven men tried out for places on the teams in both the Di and Phi Societies. Preliminaries were held in the Phi and Di halls on Monday and Tuesday nights of this week, when the aspiring members of '22 who have oratorical inclinations, were given ample opportunity to expound their knowledge relative to the subject. Resolved, That the Government Should Permanently Control and Operate the Railroads. The debates are not of an inter-society nature, as each society conducts its debate independent of the other, with the purpose of encouraging new men to go out for debate, and develop into the kinds of speakers which beat Virginia and Hopkins. The two successful teams in the Di hall will debate each other at a future date, while those of the Phi engage in a similar final debate.

Of the five contestants trying out in the Phi for the affirmative side of the question, C. L. Moore and D. Byrd were successful. On the negative side, P. Hettleman and J. B. McLeod were the winners over four other contestants, A. M. Scarborough, H. C. Harris, A. J. Eley, and J. L. Schools. The remaining speakers on the affirmative were C. W. Proctor, C. S. Johnston, and R. F. Marshburn.

In the Di, only four speakers tried out for the affirmative side of the subject, the successful ones being W. W. Staley and H. L. Fisher. F. A. Grissett and L. R. Hartsell compose the negative team, having won over J. A. McLean, J. D. Dorsett, J. C. Greenwood, O. J. Sharpe, and H. M. Riggins. The other affirmative speakers were A. H. Sims and T. C. Smith.

It will be of interest to learn that at last the matter of the inter-collegiate debate of this year has been settled by the signing of a contract between Carolina, Virginia, and Johns-Hopkins, the same old trio. The subject is related to the Railroad question, but the exact wording of it has not been determined yet. The debate will take place either in the latter part of April or during the first of May, and it is at this time that Carolina, with several strong debaters back on the Hill, expects to repeat the occurrence of last year.

Capt. W. Tillett, of Charlotte, a graduate of the 1912 class, who received the commission of second lieutenant at the third Oglethorpe camp and was promoted to the rank of captain overseas, is spending a few days here with friends. Captain Tillett has just recently been returned from overseas and discharged from the service.

TAR HEEL HORSEHIDERS TO PLAY TRIANGULAR SERIES WITH VIRGINIA

BASEBALL SQUAD IS ALREADY MAKING PREPARATIONS FOR SCALPING

GAME PROPOSED WITH CUBANS

With excellent baseball weather and the opening of the season not a month off, baseball practice started in real earnest Monday, February 17. Altho' practice has been under way for practically a month, this was the first official call for men by Coach Lourcey and Captain Powell. The answer was very gratifying as between 45 and 50 men are on the diamond each afternoon. During bad weather practice will be held as usual, with gym work under Dr. Lawson.

At present there are nine letter men back: Roberts and Younce, catchers; Powell, captain, and Joyner, pitchers; Bryant, Gordon and Feinster, coverers of first, second and third sacks, respectively; Hardin, left field; and Boren, utility infield. It will be learned with much pleasure, especially by the older men who knew him, that Holmes Herty, star shortstop for the past two seasons, will return next week, having just been discharged from service. Together with Lewis and Swift it will be seen that there is practically a full nine made up of men from last year's squad.

Further cause for a bright outlook for a true Carolina nine is found in the men of last year's first year squad. Among these are Fields and Wilson, both southpaws, who showed up unusually well last year, Liipfert on first, Lowe, second and Milton third; Robbins, shortstop, and Shaw in the outfield.

But this is only about half of the material that is out. Many of the new men, fresh from high schools and prep schools, are showing up in splendid form. Due to the upset caused by the S. A. T. C. and the inability to support a first year team this year, it has been decided by the Athletic Council that the men who registered here last fall may this spring play on the varsity.

The season starts March 20th or 25th. Manager Hodges has arranged an unusually good schedule this spring; especially is this true of the northern trip when some of the leading northern Universities will be met. Due to the fact that the spring quarter does not end till the middle of June the schedule runs two weeks longer this year than in former years, thereby giving better weather, real baseball weather, and more games.

Carolina and Virginia will play their usual classic. The triangular series will open in Greensboro in April, to be followed by a game on the local diamond, the final game being played in Charlottesville.

Carolina may play the University of Havana this spring sometime in (Continued on Page 4)

Navy Girls' Program Favorably Received

The Navy Girls in their primary appearance before a Carolina student body last Friday night made a perpetual welcome for themselves at the University. The program composed a wide diversification of folk songs; ballads, classical music, and the latest light opera successes. This, together with the artistic rendition of their program, assured the success of the "sailorettes" from the very start. The accompaniment to the vocal selections was exceptionally good and the whole sextette worked together with a freedom from stiffness which was pleasantly surprising.

The work of the monologist was very fair and won for her quite a round of applause.

The program was divided into two parts—the last being devoted to songs and skits that found favor last year in the casts performances in various camps thruout the country.

This is the first of a series of entertainments to be given on the Hill under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. It is to be hoped that the standard of every ensuing entertainment will be as high as that set by the first.

YACKETY YACK BULLETIN WANTED:

1. Snappy snap shots.
2. Ideas and materials for cartoons, sketches, and designs.
3. Short stories and poems.
4. Jokes and skits.

First Issue University Magazine Will Soon Appear on the Hill

The first issue of the Magazine is now well under way, and promises to be a great success.

The editors state that a large number of contributions are still needed. There should be several times as much material handed in as is to be printed, in order to get a magazine of the highest standard. The date for handing in such contributions closes on midnight of February 26. The editors urge everyone between now and then to get the inspiration and "write something." Poems, one-act plays, short stories, etc., are all badly needed. On account of the short time for handing in material, the editors have decided to make the first issue a general one. No one will be limited as to what he should write. The only requirement is for the material to be something of a general interest.

To stimulate interest in the Magazine, and also to find out if there are any Shakespeares in the freshman class, the English department is requiring every freshman to hand in a theme next Friday. All of these themes will be turned over to the editors of the Magazine and the best, or several best, will be selected for publication in the first issue.

The upper classmen are the ones now in whom interest should be aroused. Those who are taking higher English courses should be reminded that the best material handed in on these courses would probably be suitable for publication in the Magazine. The editors would be very glad to get this material. All articles, after being used, will be returned to the owner if he requests, so no valuable material will be lost.

The orange colored Magazine boxes can be found at the library, Alumni Building, Y. M. C. A., Pettigrew No. 1, and at Swain Hall. The contributions may be dropped in either of these boxes, or given to any of the editors.

Prof. McIntosh Speaks on Law as Profession

Professor McIntosh, of the law school, gave the second talk in Gerrard Hall Wednesday night in a series of faculty talks on the selection of a vocation.

"Every student must make his own decision as to the direction in which his efforts are to be applied in life," began Professor McIntosh. "One rule for success applies to every profession, namely, diligent application to the business you choose to enter."

Law is the development of centuries of human experience and changes as the social order changes, he declared. To get the greatest benefits in the operation of the law it is necessary to avoid that zone of under-estimating law as a profession as well as to avoid over-estimating it by the lawyer. The profession is criticised sometimes by peoples whose views in particular cases are not upheld by the courts. Censure is directed against the profession because certain decisions are not considered just, or because the critic has been unsuccessful in a law suit himself.

The fact that all lawyers do not attain the higher places in the practice of law should not condemn the whole profession. The man makes the lawyer; the lawyer cannot make the man. It is not fair to judge the whole profession by the black sheep in its rank.

The requirements that a lawyer must meet vary with different States. In this State an applicant must have made a study of at least two years of the subject, he must present an acceptable certificate of good character, and must pass a State examination on specified subjects.

To prove a success in law a man must be clear seeing, clear thinking, and clear speaking. The lawyer begins his case by drawing his conclusion and then starts at the beginning to prove the correctness of that conclusion. Short cuts will be found fruitless and embarrassing when the lawyer is measured in the court room with his opponent.

The man of law owes a debt to the court, to the public, to his fellow lawyer, to his client, and to himself. Deficiency in any of these duties will cast a shadow on his chance of success.

"If you expect a soft snap in the pursuit of law, keep away," was the advice of Professor McIntosh. "At least two years of rather dry study is necessary to initiate a career. Then comes a lean period of some years while a clientele is being gradually built up. It is during this period that the lawyer's prone to discouragement and during which many give up. After this period is passed, sufficient (Continued on Page 4)

OLD BLUE AND WHITE MARCHES VICTORIOUSLY THROUGH OLD DOMINION

BUT LOSES TO HER ANCIENT RIVAL AT CHARLOTTESVILLE

TEAM WORKING IN GREAT FORM

Although Handicapped Somewhat by Cuthbertson's Injury; W. and L. Bites the Dust

Altho handicapped by the accident to Captain Cuthbertson which necessitates his absence from the lineup, the Tar Heel quint is wading thru the Virginia opposition with apparently little difficulty. Of the four games played on the northern trip as the Tar Heel goes to press Carolina has won three and lost to her ancient rival, Virginia, Saturday night only after a hard, scrappy fight.

From the accounts in the Virginia newspapers, Carolina is showing good team work and remarkable caging ability. Carmichael and Liipfert are performing in their old time brilliancy, to which is largely due the quint's good showing.

On Friday night in Greensboro Carolina overwhelmed the Quakers by the score of 56-23. Lynch and Carmichael featured for Carolina.

The Tar Heels went down in defeat before the Old Dominion quint in Charlottesville Saturday night. Cuthbertson sprained his knee in the first half and his absence weakened the team considerably. The game was hard fought thruout, both teams playing well. Carmichael starred for Carolina with five field goals, while Pettaway did stellar work for Virginia.

In one of the fastest games seen in Lexington this season the Carolina quint won over the generals by the very close score of 31-27. It was a nip and tuck fight all the way. Two baskets in the last few minutes of play netted the Tar Heels their victory. Carolina led at the end of the first half 20-15, but Washington and Lee came up and took the lead for a short time in the second.

Rapid Progress Being Made in Class Teams' Basketball Schedule

Under the direction and supervision of Webb Durham and Peter Wunsch class basketball has gotten under full way. Games have been staged between the different classes and captains of these teams have been elected.

The program began with preliminary games between the Seniors and Juniors and Freshmen and Sophomores on Monday, February 17. These games were followed on Tuesday night by games between the Seniors and Sophomores and between the Juniors and Freshmen. These games were merely practice games and do not count in the regular class tournament. The men were tried out for the different positions on the quint, captains of the various teams elected, and the general form of the teams was looked after.

The captains elected were Andrews, for the Seniors; Stone, for the Juniors; Cummings for the Sophomores, and Transou, for the Freshmen.

The rules for eligibility for the class teams are:

1. All men who have played in varsity games or who have made their letters in basketball in other colleges are not eligible for the class basketball team.
2. All first year Law, Medical and Pharmacy students rate as Juniors, and all second year Law, Medical, and Pharmacy men rate as Seniors.

The regular schedule of games began Thursday night. At that time the line-up was:

- Seniors vs. Juniors.
- Freshmen vs. Sophomores.
- Friday night: Seniors vs. Sophomores.
- Freshmen vs. Juniors.
- Saturday: Seniors vs. Freshmen.
- Juniors vs. Sophomores.

Then this same cycle will be played over again at some time in the coming week.

From the class teams there will be chosen an all class team which will play the varsity scrubs. The teams thus far have shown up well and an exciting contest for the class championship is predicted. There is a great deal of interest shown in the games (Continued on Page 3)
