CAROLINA GOES ON RECORD AS FAVORING PROPOSITION ONE

STUDENTS BY LARGE MAJORITY ENDORSE LEAGUE OF NATIONS

ALL COLLEGES VOTED ON IT

One of Heaviest Votes Ever Cast at The University of North Carolina

The League of Nations Referendum at Carolina came to an end Tuesday night at 6 P. M. with Proposition I receiving more votes than all the others combined. This question of nation-wide importance has held a larger place in the student and faculty thought here during the last few months than any other issue that has arisen since the war ended, and since the announcement of the intercollegiate referendum it has received a special share of attention. The vote of the men here is taken to represent not only the attitude of this State, but the attitude of college men throughout the South as well.

Individual expressions of opinion form an interesting line of argument for and against the adoption of the League as it now stands. One upper classman, when asked for his opinion, said that he had more faith in the wisdom of Pres. Wilson than in Congress—that the League, while admittedly imperfect, was the best that could be made under the circumstances. A freshman, who is much addicted to thinking on international problems, contended that the time to fix a leaky vessel was while it was in drydock—before attempting the voyage. If the League covenant can be likened to a ship it seems universally admitted that it does contain leaks—or as one professor put it: "No one would attempt to deny that the instrument contains faults, it does." This professor voted for Proposition I. Another man, a student who re-

Di Society Will Debate Deportation of the Reds

At the regular meeting of the Di Society January 10, the newly-elected officers for the coming quarter were installed. There being no previously arranged program, the hall was given over to general discussion. A feature of the meeting was the inaugural address by Pres. R. B. Gwyn. Mr. Gwyn pictured in vivid outline the come-back of the society this year. The cloud of gloom that settled over all society activities during the S. A. T. C. Reign of Terror was happily dispelled with the inauguration of the new open forum plan of discussion. Discussing society work in general, Mr. Gwyn emphasized the point that in striving for honors the personal glory side of it should be second to the desire to be of real service in the society. "The ideal of service," he said, "should be foremost in the mind of every man who is selected to fill a position in the Di Society." He sounded a keynote when he said that the society should be a "living, breathing place on this campus for everything that tends toward the better development of the University." He concluded by stressing the importance of forming an opinion and taking a definite stand on all campus problems, and emphasized the need of a keener interest in this sort of problem.

The program for Saturday night, January 17, is an open forum discussion on "Proceeding to the limit in the deportation of Reds and anarchists." With the revival of the much debated question of the League of Nations and its adoption, the society may confidently expect to see this topic revived with a fierce fight in prospect. In connection with the recent Referendum on the League in which it was charged that the Di favored Art. I, it is possible that those who led the fight that defeated the League and Treaty in its present form should demand a final show down to see just where the society stands on the question now. If such should turn out to be the case, argument will not be lacking on both sides of the question.

Oratorical Contest Is Drawing Great Interest

All men who believe themselves gifted with a fluent line will be given the opportunity to show it about the 1st of February when the preliminary for the Southern Intercollegiate Oratorical Contest will be held.

The Southern Intercollegiate Oratorical League is composed of seven of the leading Southern universities, as follows: The University of North Carolina, the University of Virginia, the University of Kentucky, the University of Alabama, the University of Tennessee, Vanderbilt University, and John Hopkins University. Each year at some time during the second quarter the annual oratorical contest is held. Each university selects one representative to compete in the final contest, held this year at the University of Kentucky. The preliminary will be held at some time between the 1st and the 5th of February, and the final contest comes off this year on the 5th of March. The contest is open to all undergraduate students in the University, and a large number have already expressed their intention of going out for it. Keen competition is expected for the honor of representing the University of North Carolina in this greatest of Southern intercollegiate oratorical contests. The winner of the contest will be given a handsome award.

The Junior Class Elects Marshals and Prom Leaders

As the Yackety Yack goes to press earlier this spring than usual, the Junior Class held a meeting last Friday night to elect the Commencement Marshals and the Junior Prom leaders for the year. Heretofore these men have been elected much later in the season. It was necessary to have the election early in order that the pictures of the men could be taken for the annual. The biggest honor, that of Chief Marshal, fell to J. S. Massenburg, one of the most popular men in the class. The other Marshals named by the class of 1921 are the following: "Scrubby" Rives, "Red" Lineberger, Pat Cummins, C. D. Beers, Grady Pritchard, "Fats" Fulton, and Bailey Liipfert.

To lead the Junior Prom this year the Juniors chose Pat Cummins, and as assistants, Jess Erwin and Allan Wright.

At a meeting of the Senior Class Monday night the following men were elected: Commencement Ball Managers, W. N. Poindexter, Chief; Allan Gant, Stan Travis, Bill Neal, Woolly White from the Senior Class and Robbins Lowe and Jesse Erwin from the Junior Class.

APRIL 28TH NEXT DATE OF INAUGURATION OF PRESIDENT CHASE

AN ELABORATE PROGRAM WILL BE CARRIED OUT ON THAT DAY

DISTINGUISHED MEN ARE INVITED

The Student Body Will March In Procession With the Faculty

April 28 has been agreed upon as the date for the formal inauguration of President Harry Woodburn Chase as the eighth president of the University. This announcement was made recently by a joint committee of the faculty and trustees of this institution; further details of the plans have also been announced, showing that the exercises will be held in the presence of equally as distinguished an assemblage as gathered in Chapel Hill at the inauguration in 1915 of the late President Graham.

Judge Francis D. Winston is chairman of the committee from the trustees, other members being: A. H. Eller, Charles Lee Smith, W. P. Bynum, and Gen. Julian S. Carr. The committee from the faculty consists of Dr. Archibald Henderson, Chairman, and Professors A. H. Patterson, George Howe, A. S. Wheeler, Parker Daggett, de Roulhac Hamilton, L. R. Wilson, and W. D. Toy. Plans for this event are being completed by these two committees working in conjunction.

Nationally known educators and university heads are included among the specially invited guests and speakers. All of the leading educational institutions in the United States will be asked to send delegates, as well as many of the learned and scholarly societies. The list of special guests will include the trustees and alumni of the University, the faculties of all the colleges in the State, and the city and county superintendents.

A buffet luncheon will be served by the University on the morning of the twenty-eighth for these guests. Contrary to precedent the inaugural exercises proper will take place in the afternoon, beginning at 1:30. This arrangement was found necessary due to the difficulty in train schedules. Special pullmans are being arranged for the convenience of the visitors, thus making it possible for them to get away that night.

The academic procession will form in front of Alumni Building and march to Memorial Hall. The general subject will be "The Higher Education and Its Present Task"; one (Continued on Page 3)

OVER TWO HUNDRED SCHOOLS ENROLLED IN DEBATING UNION

Over 225 schools have already enrolled in the High School Debating Union to discuss the query: Resolved, That the United States should adopt a policy of further material restriction of immigration. The triangular debates throughout the State and the final debate at Chapel Hill will be held during April, 1920.

These debates throughout the State were inaugurated seven years ago by the Philanthropic and Dialectic literary societies and the Bureau of Extension of the University. Each school which enrolls is grouped with two other schools for the triangular debate, and the school winning both debates sends its two teams to the University.

The winning team in the final contest is awarded the State championship, and receives the Aycock Memorial Cup to be held until the next year. Durham High School was the winner of the cup last year and this school can retain the cup as permanent property, if it wins in the final contest this year.

These debates have awakened great interest in all parts of the State and it is estimated that 80,600 people heard these discussions last year. The enrollment this year has already begun with a majority of forty-five more than in 1919, and it is expected that many more schools will enroll for the contest.

CAROLINA WAS REPRESENTED AT DES MOINES STUDENT CONFERENCE

Delegates Return With Glowing Reports. Kita Praises University of North Carolina at Cosmopolitan Banquet

GREAT CONVENTION OF WORLD-WIDE STUDENTS

On December 29, 1919, at 12:30 P. M. number 21 puffed into the station at Greensboro pulling the special pullman car, "Casa Monica" on its rear. Soon there had crowded into the twelve seats of the car a score or more college students, representatives from the Carolina, the Normal, the G. C. W., and the Meredith campus! And they were off for Des Moines!! Days and nights of traveling through the beautiful western North Carolina, across Tennessee and Kentucky, through snow covered Ohio and across the icy plains of Illinois and Iowa, days of wonderful companionship with real men and women!

Then Des Moines!! The delegates were greeted by a snow storm, more and more delegates, more men on the job, and Boy Scouts who ushered them to the registration booths in the city hall. And Carolina became one among the many colleges that had come over the miles to the convention, one among the brotherhood of eight thousand men and women—turbaned Turks, Japanese, Negroes, Chinese, Canadians and Americans.

Long before the appointed hour of the first meeting of the conference the streets of Des Moines flooded streams of delegates into the doors of the huge Coliseum. And for half an hour the walls of the giant building shook with the college yells and songs! Then came inspiring addresses from world leaders, challenges to the college men and women to claim their world citizenship and to understand the members of the great human family, challenges to be men and women worthy of the heritage of the past—to carry the torch of freedom, democracy and Christianity to the ends of the earth.

There were fraternity banquets, inter-collegiate luncheons, cosmopolitan conferences. At one such conference Kita, Carolina's Japanese student, spoke in Japanese to an assembled body of hundreds of delegates. He told them of the wonderful spirit on the Carolina campus, especially the attitude toward the foreign students. He appealed to the men and women to go back to their colleges and strive to understand the foreigner instead of making plans to go to his country to inflict our customs, our ideals, and our religion. Kita was warmly received by his hearers and afterwards sought out by editors of magazines and newspapers of prominence in Japan and America.

The convention ended on Sunday night. Then came a rush to the station where puffed twelve long special pullman trains ready to carry away Des Moines' mushroom growth. And amid shouting and yelling and singing the Carolina special pulled out—on its way across Iowa.

The North and South Carolina delegates spent ten hours in Chicago on Monday—at which time the Meredith girls gave Carolina a Leap Year banquet—an experience that won completely its share of hearts and a cheer for "Meredith forever!"

The Carolina Special stopped all of Tuesday in Cincinnati; so the inhabitants of the fifteen pullman coaches went sight-seeing in that city, visiting the Art Museum, the Rookwood Pottery works, and the theaters.

There was another day on board the pullman filled with honest-to-goodness companionship with Carolina men and women. Then the Des Moines Student Volunteer Convention became a big memory in the minds of its delegates—but an everlasting challenge to every man and woman. Carolina men will never forget it!

KITA, CAROLINA STUDENT PRAISES N. C. TO STUDENTS

Speaking to an audience at the recent Des Moines Conference which numbered well into the hundreds and represented over a dozen different nationalities, S. Kita, a well-known Japanese student of this campus, brought to his hearers a stirring tribute of praise. Kita is a Tar Heel through and through, and is proud of the fact. Other students from foreign lands, he pointed out, seemed chiefly impressed with the physical or academic aspects of American institutions of learning. He, however, wished to bring forward a message of a university with a spirit. Loneliness, a sense of isolation, wounded feelings, he said were utterly impossible to the foreign student who found his home at Chapel Hill. The keynote of the Tar Heel spirit he centered in its broad sympathy, and on this account he affirmed it to be especially well fitted to embrace all men, of every kith and kin, from every portion of the globe. In this spirit Kita insisted that he was very genuinely an American student, and the friend of every other American student. In conclusion he pointed out that the surest way to international understanding and friendship is through just this sort of whole-hearted sympathy and friendship towards students of foreign soil as is manifested on the campus of the University of North Carolina.

It may well be taken as ground for pride that the spirit of Carolina should be thus ably and earnestly held up as an example for all Americans in the matter of appreciation of students from other lands.

First Year Reserve Play Oak Ridge Today

Manager Milton of the first year reserve basketball team is working on a schedule which will be printed in full at an early date. Tonight Capt. Hanby's men meet Oak Ridge in the gym. A game with the N. C. State freshmen is pending. In all probability, a trip through the Old Dominion will be made during the season. The first year men of Virginia will probably be met before the season closes.

Coach Bond is whipping a fast team into shape. With a lot of good material to build upon, he has been able to put out an aggregation which has shown up well in the scrimmages against the varsity quint. Hanby, a former star at Wake Forest, is leader of the reserve team.
