

CAROLINA DEFEATS TRINITY BY A SCORE THIRTY-SIX TO TWENTY-FIVE

In the first basketball game between the two colleges since 1898 the Carolina quint won over Trinity on the latter's court last Saturday night by the score of 36 to 25. Fast teamwork and good passing were largely responsible for the victory.

In the first half the game was nearly even, the ball ranging up and down the court with very little apparent advantage on either side. The half ended with the score 18 to 15 in favor of Carolina. Then in the second half the Chapel Hill aggregation came back strong as usual, and by swift passwork completely outclassed the Trinity team, scoring 18 points to Trinity's 10. The ball stayed in Carolina's territory most of the time, and when it was in Trinity's territory good guarding by Carolina prevented large scoring. The game was featured by the all round good work of Liipfert and the shooting of Douglas, guard for Carolina.

This game puts Carolina back in the running for the State championship, in spite of the game lost to Davidson last week on the trip. A. & E. was defeated by Trinity two weeks ago, and Guilford, who was beaten by Carolina last week, won over Davidson this week thus evening things up. For that reason the games with Davidson, Trinity, and N. C. State later on in the season will be watched with a great deal of interest by Carolina supporters.

The line-up follows:

Carolina	Trinity
Shepard	Ferrell
Carmichael	Starling
Forwards
Liipfert	Richardson
Center
Douglas	Hathaway
Morris	Martin
Guards

Substitutions: Carolina, Rourk for Morris.

Field Goals: Carolina—Shepard, 2; Carmichael, 1; Liipfert, 2; Douglas, Starling 3; Hathaway 3. Foul Goals: Carolina—Carmichael 12; Trinity—Hathaway 8; Martin 1. Total score: Carolina 36, Trinity 25.

Assembly Favors Eugenics Law

House bill number four entitled "A bill to establish a law in the state of North Carolina that would compel all persons, male or female, to pass a medical examination before securing a marriage license," was adopted by a vote of 17 majority by the General Assembly of the Philanthropic Society last Saturday night. The bill was introduced by the ways and means committee.

The supporters contended that since the nation is now perfecting plans to build up the health of the country, no better bill could be adopted. They urged that the future unborn Americans could only be protected by such a measure. They cited the example of prohibition in showing that other states would soon follow the example of North Carolina.

The fact that other states have not and will not adopt a similar law was pointed out by the opponents of this bill as being one of the principal reasons why it should not be adopted. They showed that those who desired to get married could evade the State law by securing their license in another state. They further contended that such a spiritual thing as love cannot successfully be regulated by law.

So much interest was shown in the discussion that several amendments were attached to the original bill. One of the important amendments was that a public dispensary be provided for the treatment of those who fail to pass the medical examination.

The regular quarterly election of officers was held at this meeting with the following results: L. W. Jarman, Speaker; N. P. Hayes, Speaker pro tem; R. C. Dorsette, Sergeant-at-arms; C. S. Jonston, Reading Clerk; and P. Hettelman, Reporting Clerk. These officers begin their duties two weeks from the night of election.

House bill entitled, "An act to abolish capital punishment in the state of North Carolina" will be discussed tonight.

The lecture will be given in the auditorium of the Peabody Building, on Thursday evening, February 5th, at 8 o'clock. The subject will be "Business Standards and Business Morals." This will be a fine opportunity for the students of the School of Commerce and any of their friends who are planning for business careers. The meeting will be open to all who may be interested in the subject.

A CAMPUS COMMISSION

Student life on an American college campus is so intense, the working schedule so crowded, the interest in marks so overwhelming, and the leisure time of students so pre-occupied with athletics and social events that college men in this country do not easily or often climb up and peep over the rim of the campus bowl into the affairs of the big wide world where in a year or two they will rise or fall according to their incompetent acquaintance with life in the large, and their power of mastery over themselves and the situations that confront them.

quently than once in every five years. The holders of such Kenan professorships shall be selected as Kenan Professors in general are elected."

Will Erect New Building

Plan for the use of certain endowment funds of the University for the erection of dwelling houses for the professors was submitted to the trustees and approved. The funds to be used for this purpose will be those selected by the finance committee. The movement for the establishment of new dwellings for the members of the faculty is meant to meet a situation which has promised to be more than embarrassing. At present housing conditions at the University are terribly cramped. At the end of this session, six members of the faculty, unless other provisions are made, will be homeless and there will be no available houses at Chapel Hill, it is declared.

In line with this step is the proposed development of the University property recommended by a committee. A survey of the campus is now being made under the direction of the committee looking toward the location of buildings and the extension of the campus. The new dormitories will be erected at once according to plans worked out by the University authorities and the State Building Commission.

The trustees authorized and directed the executive committee together with the President to draft a memorial to be presented to the next regular session of the General Assembly, showing the need of equipment for taking care of the students and for the extension of University work.

$106,220.99 For Graham Memorial

The committee on the Graham Memorial submitted a report showing that funds in hand for the erection of the Students Union Building to be known as the Graham Memorial Building, now total $106,220.99. The campaign for funds will be continued until the required $150,000 is secured.

An important contribution, from Robert E. Coker (B.S. 1896; M.S. 1897), in charge of Scientific Inquiry, United States Bureau of Fisheries, is the publication: "Habits and Economic Relations of the Guano Birds of Peru." This paper is No. 2298, from the Proceedings of the United States National Museum, vol. 56, pp. 449-511, plates 53-69. No report to cover the ground of the present paper has ever hitherto been made; and the report has the additional value due to the fact the subjects discussed came under the author's personal observation in the course of investigations carried on from December, 1906, to August 1, 08, for the Peruvian government. "The following pages," says the author in his introduction, "deal more particularly with the habits and significance of birds that were observed to possess economic importance, but they comprise also some account of other species which are associated with the useful birds as are essential for an understanding of the conditions of life of the birds and their economic significance."

fellow, and reflect upon the true import of the honor system, and the significance of the Carolina spirit, they should realize their own lowliness or thoughtlessness, and solve the problem by an observance of the principles of honesty and fair play.

C. D. BEERS.

To give a report in a very few words of the recent Student Volunteer Convention at Des Moines, Iowa, is a very difficult task, a report of any length would be difficult because of the fact that the delegates find it hard to put into words just what they got there. I am wondering just how much of the spirit of the convention and what it meant to us we can transmit to you.

Of course the trip was enjoyed, more so than we had expected, but at best it was only incidental. We journeyed for the purpose of attending the convention. A few facts will let us understand the convention better. The Student Volunteer movement of North Carolina is a foreign missionary movement among students. Student Volunteers are those students who have expressed their purpose of becoming foreign missionaries. This movement convenes every four years—once in every student generation. Because of the World War it has been six years since the last convention at Kansas City. To these conventions all colleges and universities of North America are invited to send a quota of delegates. At the recent convention over seventy five hundred delegates were present. In addition to these about two hundred prominent speakers and missionaries attended.

In four and a half very intensive days of eight hours session we witnessed the panorama of the entire foreign missionary work of the great continent. We saw the foreign activity of the Student Volunteer movement, and also the work of all the foreign missionary boards of the various denominations. We learned great facts of foreign countries both past and present and prospects and hopes for the future. These facts primarily concerned christianizing the world but they also gave insight into economic, social, and governmental conditions. We heard the call of service as it resounded in unmistakable terms from every corner of the earth.

The speakers were of the greatest religious leaders of the world, particularly of this continent. Foreign missionary work was presented by the leading foreign missionaries themselves.

The convention was an inspiration to missionaries, prospective missionaries and non-volunteers alike. It had to offer a world vision to those prepared to receive it. In some inexpressible manner it had a way growing men and women into better lines—of calling them to see the great reality of living.

I profoundly wish that every Carolina man could have had the experience, whether or not you are especially interested in missionaries. You would have had a reality there with which you would be unwilling to part for any consideration whatsoever.

Miss Maude Craig Carson, '18, is teaching in the Winston-Salem high school. After the present session has been concluded, she plans to enter training for work as a missionary in China or Japan.
