PRESENTS PORTRAIT OF GENERAL DAVIE ON UNIVERSITY DAY

REV. WILLIAM WAY PRESENTS PORTRAIT; GIFT OF MRS. BALL

PORTRAIT WORK OF CHRETIEN

In presenting to the University of North Carolina to be hers perpetually the only life-sized portrait of her illustrious founder, Gen. William Richardson Davie, who 127 years ago laid the corner-stone of Old East Building, J. Alwyn Ball, of Charleston, S. C., set October 12, 1920, on a pedestal of prominence in University annals second only to that auspicious date when the Virgin University was dedicated to the service of the State.

The presentation services were simple and impressive. Rev. William Way, of Charleston, in making the presentation address detailed the history of the portrait, and in accepting on behalf of the University, J. O. Carr, of Wilmington discoursed on the political prowess of Gen. Davie. At eleven o'clock the academic procession formed and wound slowly past the place where the Davie poplar stood towering in stately dignity slowly filing into Memorial hall came the august assembly of cap and gown followed by the student body. After invocation by Rev. W. D. Moss, of Chapel Hill, the Rev. Wm. Way traced from the time it was made in Paris in 1800 when Davie was a commissioner sent by President Adams to the French government down through the Davie family until it became the possession of Mrs. Ball. For many years it remained at "Trivoli," the family home of the Davie's in Chester county, S. C., where it belonged to Davie's son, Frederick William Davie. During the Civil war the portrait, with other family possessions, was buried on the banks of the Catawba river. From Frederick William Davie it descended to his wife, Mary Frederick Fraser Davie, and from her to Emilie G. Fraser, who married J. Alwyn Ball, the donor. Mrs. Ball died in January, 1920.

CANDIDATE FOR PRESIDENT OF '24 BREAKS TRADITIONS

S. M. TURNER, OF NORTH WILKESBORO, ANNOUNCES HIMSELF AS CANDIDATE

An old Carolina tradition was shattered Wednesday when S. M. Turner, '24, speaking from the steps of Swain Hall and later from Smith Building announced his candidacy for president for equilibrium in the class," said Turner, "I nominate myself for President of the class of '24 and I accept the nomination." A wet plank was later inserted in his campaign as he stood on the steps of Smith.

Crowds of students flocked around Turner wherever he went and cheered his speeches till the welkin rang with Turner's fame. Berryhill was finally called to dispell the mob in order that classes might not be cancelled for the afternoon.

When interviewed by a reporter of the Tar Heel the candidate was not inclined to make a front porch speech, but modestly stated he would stand by his platform as stated in front of Swain Hall with the exception of the wet plank which he received in front of Smith. He was putting on a dry shirt when the interview took place.

He states his campaign received a severe check this morning when Bobby Wunsch refused to announce his candidacy in Chapel, but he off-set this disadvantage by a series of nifty posters round-a-bout the campus.

S. M. Turner is a native of North Wilkesboro. His running mate, Jack Patrick, is from Greenville.

BROCKWELL APARTMENTS BECOMES ADVENTURE LAND

APPROPRIATION FOR A MORE GENERAL SEARCH FOR AT-TICS EXPECTED

To those of the readers of the Tar Heel who do not know the Brockwell Apartments let this be a first notice. Doubtless everyone has seen, heard of, or read of, the select apartments along Riverside; but I insist that these Brockwell Apartments have more than one point worthy of mention. At our University, located as it is here in Chapel Hill, it is quite an opportunity to enjoy the experience of apartment life. Now these apartments are almost near enough to the campus for convenience, and do not miss affording the inmates (used advisedly, in that they can't help being there) the benefit derived from living on the campus to a very great degree. To be exact,—and it might be of benefit to some one who might some time be called upon to investigate the actual living conditions at our great University,—these apartments are to be found over the Andrew's Cash Store. If for no other reason than that of adventure, a trip to the second and third stories of this edifice will yield splendid dividends. One cannot miss the perfect "Alice in Wonderland" thrill as one mounts,—yes, mounts,—the series of boards which encourage a special kind of genuflection, called by the uninitiated, in all probability, a stairway. Now this stairway has this in its favor: it reminds one irresistibly of the Medieval architecture; inasmuch as it aspires upward, upward, upward, and one seems to pray a little somehow as one rises. All in all, however, it is possible that this stairway is not so bad after all as it is enconced between two brick walls—it has this promise of stability. These walls doubtless serve to hide whatever the cavalier might call ugliness in the stairway. Indeed it is a mentionable temptation to call these boards a starway; since the stars are right there overhead as one looks up while taking the risk by night.

When Pocahontas "went the bail of John Smith" and when Daniel Boone raised the stock of the then West, it was making toward a new order. Yet there were performe aborigines. So were there aborigines in the Brockwell Apartments prior to the invasion to the light of the age. The species (Continued on page four)

FLOOD OF TELEGRAMS BRING HEARTY WISHES ON 127TH BIRTHDAY

U. N. C. ALUMNI EVERYWHERE REMEMBER ALMA MATER ON BIRTHDAY

ALL PLEDGE HEARTY SUPPORT

A flood of telegrams of birthday greetings, with loyalty, enthusiasm, and deep and earnest determination written all over them, poured into Chapel Hill on University Day from alumni from all parts of the world.

From Montevideo, Uruguay, three young alumni, Jack Powell, former baseball captain, Bob deRosett, and Elliott Cooper shot under the ocean their "Greetings from Montevideo," and from Bahia Blanca, also in South America, another alumnus, J. V. Whitfield of the consular service told President Chase "I have faith you will attain your vision for a greater University."

Dr. and Mrs. Dey, now in Paris, sent greetings, and two 1920 graduates, John P. Washburn and Emerson White, both with the National City Bank, of London, cabled their alma mater. From Seattle, just before he sailed for the Orient, Professor Collier Cobb waved his hand across the continent, and down in Baton Rouge, La., his son, William B. Cobb, reflected the family enthusiasm with further greetings.

E. M. Coulter, professor at the University of Georgia, and Prof. N. W. Walker, now studying at Harvard, added to the enthusiasm; Edgar Turlington and Mangum Weeks, in Washington, were heard from, as were also Albert Coates, at Harvard, R. B. Gwyn and G. D. Crawford in New York, Bruce Carraway in High Point, and R. M. Wilson, L. L. Lohr and H. H. Simpson in Rocky Mount.

R. D. W. Connor, president of the alumni association, now at Columbia University, joined with eight other alumni in the hope, "May the state rally to her support as fully as her past services and future promises deserve."

Alumni at Harvard and at the University of Pennsylvania sent their best wishes, the North Carolina Club at Harvard adding, "All here take pride in Carolina's splendid showing against Yale."

Inside the state, alumni associations one after another poured in their congratulations. A few of them follow: (Continued on page three)

INVISIBLE ORDER STYGIANS OUIJAS CONTRIBUTION TO Y

ELEVEN FIVE-DOLLAR BILLS AND ELEVEN NICKELS FROM STYGIAN CAVE

In addition to putting up posters all over the campus in the interest of the Y. M. C. A. urging students to subscribe to the "Y" Campaign for funds, the Invisible Order of Stygians that mysterious body that no one knows anything about, have added another chapter to their activities for the Y. M. C. A. in the form of a letter found recently on the Bureau of the Treasurer's room in the "Y". The letter stamped on the back with a smoked question mark and burned on all corners and both sides read as follows:

Abyss of Tartarus
Cocytus, Phlegethan
In the course of human events it becomes necessary that
The Invisible Order of Stygians communicate with the world of humankind. It herewith encloses its contribution to the Y. M. C. A.

The Invisible Order of Stygians. Enclosed were 11 five dollar bills and 11 nickels making a total of $55.55.

It is significant in that it comes from a group of men who would lend their aid to a big work yet withhold their names, says the treasurer of the campaign who adds:

More appreciated than the gift itself is the motive that prompted it.

NEW YORK TIMES GENEROUS IN PRAISE OF CAROLINA ELEVEN

SAYS YALE WAS OUTCLASSED DURING HALF OF CONTEST; PRAISES LOWE

The impression that the Carolina eleven made upon the northern football world is shown particularly well in the story, by the special correspondent of the New York Times, of the contest between Yale and Carolina at New Haven.

The story as it appeared in the times paid glowing tribute to the Carolina eleven. The Times goes on to say:

"Although outplayed nearly half the game by the light, doughty and versatile University of North Carolina eleven. Yale possessed enough of a punch to send three touchdowns over the line today and finally won 21 to 0. The southerners did not repeat (Continued on page 6)

GRAHAM MEMORIAL BUILDING CAMPAIGN ENDS IN DECEMBER

$130,000 HAS BEEN SUBSCRIBED OF DESIRED $150,000 FOR BUILDING

According to an announcement made by Dr. L. R. Wilson, chairman of the faculty committee on the Student's activities building to be erected in memory of the late President E. K. Graham, the campaign for subscriptions will end on December the thirty-first, and as soon thereafter as plans can be completed work on the badly needed building will be begun.

As a result of the campaign directed by Mr. A. M. Coates prior to his entrance into the Harvard Law School late in September, $130,000 had been subscribed of which approximately $30,000 was underwritten by the student body, and $100,000 by the Alumni and friends. At least $20,000 is to be subscribed before the committee will feel that an adequate amount is in hand for erecting the sort of building desired and a determined effort is now being made to exceed the amount as far as possible.

Dr. Wilson announces that letters have just been sent to local directors in a number of North Carolina towns in which subscriptions have not been secured urging an immediate effort to wind the campaign up, and individual letters will soon be forwarded to every alumnus who has not had an opportunity to sign a pledge card.

While an architect has not yet been chosen and a site selected, plans for the building have been carefully studied by members of the committee and a number of student activities buildings at other institutions, notably those at Michigan, Pennsylvania, and Harvard have been visited. Recommendations from the student body have also been received as to features which the building should contain. All this data is being done over carefully as soon as the campaign for funds is concluded the actual building will be gotten underway.

PROFS. HENDERSON, BERNARD, GRAHAM, AND PATTERSON SPEAK TO ASSOCIATIONS

ALUMNI GIVE LOYAL RESPONSE

It is Essential That the State Improve Living Conditions in Its Institutions

On Tuesday, October twelfth, the Alumni Association of the University of North Carolina met at the request of Dr. Chase to discuss plans for a bigger, better University. The day of meeting, University Day, was particularly appropriate as a time of meeting for the sons of the University. The purpose of these meetings was in Dr. Chase's words: "What theme would be more fitting for this meeting, commemorative of the University's glorious past, than a discussion of how her future may be made even nobler and greater."

Several members of the faculty went at the request of alumni associations to their meetings. They described the conditions prevailing at the University, the crowded dormitories and dining halls, the overworked and underpaid faculty, the inability of the University to meet the needs of the youth of the state under the cramped conditions under which it is compelled to work.) They told of the needs of the University, new dormitories, new dining halls, new lecture rooms, a larger and better paid faculty, and pointed out the way to an enthusiastic alumni towards a University of greater and more far reaching powers for the education of the state.

The Wake County alumni association of the University celebrated the 127th anniversary of University Day with a banquet at the Yarrowborough Hotel, Tuesday night. Dr. Bernard who was the chief speaker of the evening, showed that probably a thousand prospective students had been turned away from the University this year for lack of room. He predicted (Continued on page three)

CAMPUS CABINET CHOOSES HEAD OF CLASS ATHLETICS

ALLEN ANDERSON CHOSEN BY CABINET TO DIRECT CLASS ATHLETICS

The Campus Cabinet announces that Allen R. Anderson, second year medical student and tennis champion, has been selected as director of class athletics for the year. Mr. Anderson comes to us from Trinity. The athletic Committee composed of John Kerr, Chairman, A. M. McDonald, Allan McGhee and M. W. Nash, working in conjunction with the director, will have charge of all class athletics. The committee will plan an elaborate schedule of class athletics, the result of which will be announced later. The football schedule will be announced in the next issue of the Tar Heel. Bulletin Boards will be placed about the campus on which will be posted announcements of the Campus Cabinet and the results of the games. Pennants will be awarded the winning teams and numerals will be given those who play in a certain number of games, the required number to be announced later. Games to be under the control of the committee are football, baseball, basketball, tennis, soccer, and track. The committee is now considering the advisability of having dormitory teams and their report will be made public at a later date. Rules governing class football, and schedule will be announced during the coming week. The Cabinet has an appropriation from the University for class athletics this year and a good program will be forthcoming that will have an immediate effect on the classes. A room as headquarters for the class athletics activities will probably be in the gymnasium but at present this (Continued on page 5)
