SOME MORE ATTENTION NEEDED.

First, we wish to thank those responsible for the response to an article and editorial we carried some time ago with regard to the bathing conditions, and the promised correction of this condition so far as it is physically possible with present equipments.

Today we are bringing to your attention in a concrete way another matter of equal, if not more importance. We are at a loss to understand why the health authorities have not already discovered and remedied the conditions in the campus toilets, and in the dormitories generally. To say the least, the conditions are disreputable. "Highly unsanitary" only approximates a description.

In the first place, as brought out in this article, the work of the janitors is not what it should be. A janitor for a building should look after the building—not only for an hour in the morning, but all during the day. And then, they should be co-operated with by the students. At present, neither is happening, and for the comfort of the surroundings, to say nothing of the health, something should be done at once to remedy the existing conditions. We present this investigation to those responsible for what it is worth, and in the confidence that when this matter is brought to the attention of officials it will be corrected.

With men living crowded in dormitories as they are here today too many safeguards cannot be taken. A contagious disease would spread like wildfire.

HELP FOR STUDENTS.

As announced elsewhere in this issue, the Y. M. C. A. is inaugurating a system whereby some member of the faculty will be in the Y building for one hour every afternoon to talk over with students any problem, or difficulty that any of the students may need help on.

This is a significant move, and capable of tremendous good. It is a strain for any young man to be pitched from a high school where everything is either done for him, or he is directed to the minutest detail in doing for himself, to this campus where everything is different and with nothing to help him over the rough places. The change is tremendous, and it takes a well controlled, and self-mastered man to really make the change without a considerable loss to himself. And just at the time when a man is in the deepest water about the things he is up against, he is afraid to ask anyone anything for fear he will appear "fresh," and so they lumber along, some coming through, and some going through.

Nor does his problems lessen as he goes on in college. All along, in every man's life, things are continually coming up about which he wants to talk to someone; and there are many men in college who have no very close friends to whom they can talk to advantage. And so they are left in the dark.

This proposal of the Y provides someone to whom any student is free to go, and someone who should be able to help a student when consulted. We congratulate the Y on inaugurating this program.

THE COMING MUSICIANS.

The Letz Quartet that comes here the fifteenth of February under the auspices of the Department of Music is reputed by many papers at places where this quartet has been heard as one of the best organizations of this sort in the entire country. The Pittsburgh Gazette-Times has to say of it "Though one of the younger organizations of the sort, it already plays with the unity and plasticity of one of the greatest," while the New York Times says "it has reached excellence in the difficult art of quartet playing."

But regardless of whether it is the best in the country or not, suffice it to say that it is one of the best and far above what we are accustomed to hear in Chapel Hill. We are up against particularly great difficulties here. We scarcely ever have an opportunity to hear any really great artists, and when by chance a thing of quality is brought to Chapel Hill we stir ourselves too late to realize it, because it is sandwiched in between things of no particularly great importance. But the Department of Music is persisting in its effort to bring to the University community some of the best things in the country. It has already brought two programs of the first quality. On both of these money has been lost, but the department is persisting in the hope that when the community really learns that it is putting on only good things that it will always respond to music department programs. And so the Letz Quartet comes to us Tuesday.

The purpose of this statement is not to urge any man to attend this program just to make it a financial success, but it is to call to your attention beforehand something that is reputed to be worth while. And to urge the community that if it really wants to hear things that are worth while, to come to this program. It will entirely be worth your while. You will begin to become interested in the finer productions, and by your presence and interest you will underwrite future productions that you shall naturally want and expect. We have to pay the price of our isolation in thorough co-operation for the best things.

ON OTHER COURTS

In the closest and prettiest game of many a season, the University of Richmond defeated Elon College on the floor of the University gymnasium last Thursday night by the score of 30 to 28. At the end of the regular forty minutes of play, there was a tie and it was necessary to play an extra five minutes to decide who was the winner. Excellent team work on both sides featured, and the game was clean and fast throughout.

Washington and Lee College nosed out Davidson College last week in the last two minutes of play to a 31 to 28 point victory. The game was hard and closely fought all through, although the floor work and team work of both teams was somewhat ragged.

Florida University's basketball team, on its northern trip, stopped off at Raleigh long enough last Monday to administer a 39 to 18 defeat to the State College team. The game was never close, the Southern boys leading at every stage. N. C. State was also defeated by Trinity College on January 29.

Monday evening witnessed the defeat of Virginia Military Institute by the University of Pennsylvania quint 40 to 15. The last year's South Atlantic champions failed to put up even an interesting fight for the Northerners. The game was played in Philadelphia, and was witnessed by a big crowd.

THE TAR HEEL FINDS TOILETS ON CAMPUS INSULT TO STUDENTS

idling their time away at almost any hour. Some of the time wasted could very well be put in in sweeping and scouring floors of the various toilets. They should be swept every hour, and should be scoured at least once a day.

When things come to such a pass that a University professor says he is almost ashamed to carry visitors to the University toilets in any building except the Library, something should be done. But visitors come only occasionally—the students are always here. The number of toilets is inadequate, but no kick is made about that. The toilets that are here can be, and should be, kept in a decent condition, and since there are plenty of janitors on the campus, the writer can discover no valid excuse why they should not be.
