SOMEONE'S VISION REALIZING.

The quality, the success of, and the enthusiasm manifested in the state inter-high school championship contests in debate, football, basketball, baseball, tennis, and track is a tribute to the vision of the man that first conceived them, and an ever-increasing volume of praise to the man who had the courage to initiate the contests, and the ability to continue to promote and administer them successfully. Whether the original impulse was to increase the University's sphere of service and influence, or whether it was to lift the standard of high school life through interest stimulated by the measuring of talents, matters not. The fact is, all those impulses are realizing in the contests that the Bureau of Extension has been carrying on despite the handicaps of war-time, and post-war upheavals and promise to continue to blossom out with a new vigor and freshness in the spring contests that will live up to the standard of the playing done in the football contest of the fall between the Chapel Hill and Monroe teams.

The football game would have done credit to many of the southern colleges, and in the opinion of many outclassed college games that have been played on Emerson field. Seven or eight years ago the fondest dreamer would not have hoped for a demonstration of high school football that was seen on Emerson field between these two teams representing the East and the West, and which was only the climax of many equally hard fought games that had been going on in the state.

From the interest already shown it is reasonable to expect that the spring contests will be of the same high quality.

Of course, to say that the efforts of the University are alone responsible for the rising standard of high school contests would be an exaggeration that ignores the whole trend of growth in North Carolina life. And the University is not so much interested in claiming her share of the work that has been going on as she is in rejoicing in the consciousness that with every bit of improvement in high school standards comes an equal improvement in the standards of the University, for these high schools are practically the complete source for University students. And the University must inevitably start where the high schools leave off.

In athletics it means that soon the college and university teams of the South can be raised because of the contribution of the high schools, and that southern teams will be on a parity with those of the north. Many a man who has won fame on a southern gridiron in recent seasons never saw a football before he entered college, whereas the northern teams draw raw recruits from high school teams that have been trained already to a high degree. There will be no reason for us to look at a northern team as unconquerable because they are on a higher plane, if the high schools of the state continue to raise the standard of their athletic teams as they have during the past few years under the impulse of the championship contests and to feed to the University men who are already thoroughly trained in the several sports.

CHAPEL SEATS.

The Tar Heel would like to bring especially to the attention of the student body the announcement made by Dean Bradshaw in chapel a few days since to the effect that the first ten rows of seats in the back of the ground floor of Gerrard Hall are now open. The freshmen previously occupying these have been moved upstairs. These seats are for the use of those upper-classmen who have been coming to chapel and standing in the rear, and to provide room for those who have been kept away on account of lack of room. We especially urge men to develop the "chapel going" habit, for this is the most direct way to stay in touch with the coming campus events. If you can't go, see that one of your associates—from your floor in the dormitory, from your fraternity, or from your table—goes and he can keep you in touch with things.

APOLOGY TO PEPYS

Did hear alarm-clock bing at sun-up and did turn over to rise at nine, which made me very sadde, I having gratted Dutch and also breakfast. So to Ye Ole Goodie Shoppe and drink much dope and also ye blinking hamme sandwiches. Whence to learn of English language and ye bloodie old wife-beater Sir Byron, who me thinks was passing courage-fellowwe, who called no beaten biscuit brother. And so did down to dinner where I notice many a new face since Swain Hall has closed the doors to all the worthy poor. All the nobility were back again from Raleigh and was much wonder shown how the olde Barre was passed. And it was also queer to me no celebration such as is the want after strenuous and successful toil was staged. Did home and play pinochle with Willy, but he is a naughty boy and did have diverse marks on the backs of ye olde cards which me noticing and melding one hundred aces, he quit in a temper.

Today did come ye North Carolina Press Collegiate Men and Women did holde one noble pow-wow with oyster soup. And tonight were many inebriated gentry swaggering the village streets. No connection I hope, praise be to God that I am sober and industrious, between the newys guys and corn.

Home and to bed hearing P. Hettlemann coming across the campus singing "Glorious, glorious."

ANNOUNCEMENTS

There will be an organ recital given by Paul John Weaver at the Presbyterian church at 4:00 p. m. He will be assisted by Mrs. G. A. Harro, contralto, who will sing two selections from an oratorio.

The North Carolina Club will meet Monday night in Phillips Hall. The subject for the meeting will be "The Forms of Municipal Government," which will be discussed by P. A. Reavis, Jr.

Beginning Monday, the 21st, the Tennis Courts will have to be signed for upon the bulletin board in the Y. M. C. A. building. Those wishing to play will sign their names upon the schedule card posted on the bulletin board in the "Y." The same rules apply that governed the use of the Tennis Courts last year.

PICKARD ELECTED TO BOARD OF ALDERMEN

At the February meeting of the Chapel Hill Board of Aldermen, George Pickard was elected to fill the vacancy in that body occasioned by the recent resignation of J. T. Lloyd.

Mr. Pickard was appointed chairman of the road committee and is to have charge of all civic improvements in the future.

The newly appointed aldermen is well known in Chapel Hill and vicinity, having been identified with local activities for a number of years. He has served several terms in the State legislature and is superintendent of grounds for the University.

FACT AND COMMENT

Dean D. D. Carroll, of the School of Commerce, conducted services in the Methodist Episcopal church last Sunday, February 13.

Rev. McWhorter, who has been in Tarboro for his health for the past several weeks, is reported to be much better.

The Sigma Chi basketball team defeated the Beta Theta Pi five by a 9 to 3 score, in the inter-fraternity series, Monday afternoon.

Frank Grier was initiated into Vance's Inn of the Phi Delta Phi legal fraternity Monday night.

Friday evening the Expression Department of Elon College presented Shakespeare's delightful comedy, "Merchant of Venice." The play was directed by Dr. Byron W. King, President of King's School of Oratory, Pittsburgh, Pa.

On the evening of February 22, the Clio Literary Society will give their annual entertainment. This year they will present a patriotic play, "Nathan Hale."

There is a movement on foot at Salem College now, to exempt Seniors from examinations in any subject in which an average of 80 per cent has been made during the entire semester. This movement has been approved and passed by the student Council and is now in the hands of the faculty.

The Business and Professional Women's Association of Chapel Hill at a meeting held Sunday unanimously endorsed the twenty million dollar appropriations for State Institutions. The meeting was held Sunday afternoon at the home of Miss Mary Moses. This expression is a fitting example of the interest that the women of North Carolina, with their organizations are taking in the fight for higher education.

Dr. Harry W. Chase went to Raleigh Thursday afternoon where he appeared before the appropriations committee in the interest of the University's hearing before that committee.

Mr. B. E. Lohr discussed the copper deposits at Butte, Montana, at the regular meeting of the Geological Club held Thursday evening February 17 in the New East building.

The freight depot of Chapel Hill station will remain open all day Saturday instead of until 1 o'clock as has been the custom previous to this announcement. Considerable inconvenience in the moving of freight has been occasioned by the early Saturday closing hour of the local freight depot, and the change comes as the result of an order from the freight commission that all freight depots remain open all day on Saturday.

Tuesday night "Carrboro Fast Mail," rounding a curve between University Station and Carrboro at a terrific rate of speed, was derailed. Only the last car was completely off the track, but this caused a delay of several hours and the mail arrived too late for the nightly letter to be "put up." No one was injured. The accident is thought to have been due to spreading rails.
