SENIOR PROPOSITION AGAIN CARRIES CAMPUS DESPITE ALL OPPOSITION

The "Nos" Carry The Day by a Majority of 88 Votes. Elections Proceed.

ADMINISTRATION UPHELD (By BOB THOMPSON)

Carrying the Monday balloting by a majority of 88, students of the University voted to uphold their former decision to have a student president who is to be elected by the student body, and who must be a member of the senior class and who must have been at the University for at least three years.

The reason, if such it can be called, for this balloting is rather unique in the history of Carolina politics. Some weeks back a proposition, known as the senior class proposition, was submitted to the students for their decision. The proposition was favored by an overwhelming majority. In due time came the day for nominations for this new office, and every thing was all set for a nice, refreshing campaign, garnished with the usual pleasantries of campus politics. But there was another guess coming to these aspiring leaders. Just as the names of their candidates were trembling on the eager lips of bosses and henchmen, B. C. Brown rose with a reverent expression and told the spellbound audience that the students of this beloved institution had been sadly misled by wicked politicians, that they had not been given a chance to vote on the question without voting for, or against, several riders that should not be riding on such a ticket. After much bull and a mass meeting the question was resubmitted to the students with a chance to vote whether they should stick to their former decision, or change it to one of the eight propositions printed on the ballots. The decision was to stick to the original.

The not quite eight hundred votes were cast, the question was one of the most hotly contested affairs that the campus has seen in a long while. The very atmosphere was saturated with politics all during the day. Small knots of students were gathered around the campus, discussing the merits of each side; all around the five ballot boxes, the bull flowed in pungent streams. Many rabid supporters of one side or the other, spent the entire day dashing around the campus from one building to the other, even invading the main street of the town, canvassing votes. The peculiar specimens, known as the Campus Politicians, were everywhere. They would gather in secretive rings around their bosses, and then disperse in all directions, well armed with ballots and pencils, returning in a few minutes with a joyous countenance and a handful of votes. The freshman class got more polite attention than they have received in quite a while.

At 6 o'clock the ballot boxes were closed and locked in the Y. M. C. A. to await the count. After supper, when supporters of both sides had assembled the counting started. The tide ebbed and flowed first the "nos" getting ahead and then the "yesses," but toward the last came a wave that put the negative vote clearly in the lead. Some were pleased and others were peaved, but it was generally conceded that this time the students were not hoodwinked, and that they had a chance to vote on nearly anything that they damned pleased.

The following is how the vote went by classes in the vote to reconsider:

Class	Yes	No
Freshman	147	105
Sophomore	78	88
Junior	52	83
Senior	18	81
Pharmacy	11	32
Medical	10	19
Law	29	18

The remaining votes were cast by special and graduate students.

POLITICAL MANEUVERS ARE IN EVIDENCE TODAY

Campus in Throes of Great Political Campaign For President of Student Body.

Political maneuvers and coup d' etats are much in evidence on the campus. Today the election for the president of the student body is being held and politics will temporarily vanish amidst the congratulations for the winning candidate.

No doubt it will be remembered that a serious altercation was raised a short time ago in relation to the nominations. Since then the objects have been overruled and by now nothing can change the new law.

During that riotous occasion in Memorial Hall practically all of the junior class that was eligible was nominated for the position of president of the student body. The men today being voted upon are G. B. Porter, J. D. Dorset, E. M. Sweetman, J. A. McLean, F. A. Grisette, T. L. Warren, I. J. Stephenson, G. W. Hill, L. J. Phipps, and Charles Laurance.

A few hours after Swain Hall has purged itself of all human kind the votes will have been counted, the news let out, and the new president will start the weary trail of congratulations. Twenty-four hours from now he will be wearing his arm in a sling after no less than 1,486 students have congratulated him, at the same time swearing they were for him all the time. By that time he, like Diogenes, will doubt the honesty of all men, but admire the brains of the majority that elected him.

UNIVERSITY PROFESSORS AT SCIENTIFIC MEETING

Members of Faculty Attend Meeting of North Carolina Academy of Science.

A number of University faculty members read papers before the 20th annual meeting of the North Carolina Academy of Science and the spring meeting of the N. C. section of the American Chemical Society recently held in conjunction with one another at Wake Forest College.

About 40 highly instructive and interesting papers were given at the two meetings, of especial interest being the presidential address of the academy president, Prof. Z. P. Metcalf of the North Carolina State College, his subject being "The Age of Insects," which he treated in an interesting and masterful manner. The University professors reading papers at the joint meeting were: Drs. H. V. Wilson, A. S. Wheeler, A. H. Patterson, W. C. Coker, Archibald Henderson and W. F. Prouty. Two University students, Messrs. I. M. Smithey and T. M. Andrews, also presented papers dealing with chemistry.

In the election of officers for the ensuing year Dr. Joseph H. Pratt, University professor and State geologist, was elected vice president of the Academy of Science, while Prof. J. T. Dobbins was elected vice president of the North Carolina section of the American Chemical Society. Other officers elected were: J. L. Lake, Wake Forest, president of the Academy, and Bert Cunningham, Trinity, secretary-treasurer. While for the chemists other officers elected were: Dr. Paul Gross, Trinity, president, and L. B. Rhodes, state department of agriculture, secretary-treasurer. Dr. J. M. Bell was the retiring officer of the chemical organization.

PROFESSORS ATTEND SCIENTIFIC MEETING

Drs. Patterson, Bell, Wheeler, Stuhleman, Dagggett and Mustard were in attendance recently at the organization of the Crowell Scientific Society at Trinity College. This society, which corresponds to the Elisha Mitchell Scientific Society at the University, is the result of a merger of the old and practically defunct scientific societies which heretofore existed at Trinity into a new body. The society was named after Dr. J. F. Crowell, a former president of the college.

Dr. R. A. Millikan of the University of Chicago delivered the opening address before the newly organized body, choosing as his subject "The Electron and Its Properties." After the organization of the new scientific society a faculty smoker was given, at which the University professors were in attendance.

TEN CLASSES TO HOLD REUNIONS AT CAROLINA DURING COMMENCEMENT

University Plans For Annual Return of Former Students to Alma Mater.

CLASSES FROM '61 TO '20

Ten classes of University of North Carolina graduates, ranging from the youngsters of 1861, a mere 60 years removed from Chapel Hill, to the grandfathers of 1920, with all of twelve months experience in world affairs, are planning to hold special reunions at the 1921 commencement at Chapel Hill, June 12-15.

Gathering together under the campus oaks once more at the coming commencement will be the classes of 1861, holding its sixtieth reunion; the class of 1871, with its half century gathering; the class of 1881, forty year men; the class of 1891, thirty years old; 1896, twenty-fifth reunion; 1901, twenty year reunion; 1906, fifteenth re-union; 1911, ten year reunion; 1916, five year reunion, and 1920, the last class, meeting at its first reunion.

All these classes are making special plans to celebrate their particular reunions, and in addition large numbers of other alumni are expected to be present at commencement. The prospect of tremendous physical growth in the University has awakened interest among the old grads and many of them have written that they want to come back to see what the plans are for the new and bigger university.

Thursday, June 14, has been named for alumni day at commencement. A business meeting of the alumni association will be held in the morning, the annual alumni luncheon will take place at mid-day, there will be baseball games and special class meetings in the afternoon, the Carolina Playmakers will perform for the old boys at night, and the day will wind up with the annual alumni reception.

In charge of the 1861 reunion is Major Charles M. Stedman, representative in Congress from the Fifth District. Dr. Hannis Taylor, of Washington, D. C., world authority on international law, heads the 1871 reunion, and a committee, including James Y. Joyner, Dr. Robert P. Pell, Judge W. J. Adams, Judge J. D. Murphy, Col. LeRoy Springs, Dr. Herbert Battle, J. Alton Melver, A. Nixon, of Lincoln, and John M. Walker and Frank B. Daney, of Baltimore, has charge of 1881's gathering.

The 1891 reunion is expected to be largely attended. A. H. Patterson and C. S. Mangum, of the University faculty, are making local arrangements, with Shepard Bryan, of Atlanta, class president, in charge of the reunion. Among other members to this class are Judge Robert W. Bingham, and W. W. Davies, of Louisville; J. M. Morehead, of New York; Robert G. Vaughn, of Greensboro; Judge P. C. Graham and DeBerniere Whitaker, of Santiago. For 1896 George Stephens, of Charlotte; J. S. White, of Mebane, and Wescott Roberson, of High Point, are in charge.

Herman Weil, of Goldsboro, president, and Dr. J. G. Murphy, of Wilmington, head the 1901 reunion; Walter B. Love, of Monroe, and Major John A. Parker, of New York, the 1906 reunion; and Ben Cone, of Greensboro, I. C. Moser, of Ashboro, the 1911 reunion; W. B. Unstead, of Kinston; F. O. Clarkson, of Charlotte; Claiborne Royall, of Goldsboro; R. B. House, of Raleigh, and Francis Bradshaw, of Chapel Hill, class president, the 1916 reunion; and Ben S. Cone, of Greensboro, president T. S. Kittrell, of Henderson, secretary, and W. H. Andrews, of Chapel Hill, the 1920 reunion.

The Editor of the 1921-22 "Freshman Bible" desires to announce a contest, open to all Carolina students, for articles on "My Biggest Mistake as a Freshman." For the best paper on this subject between five and six hundred words in length a prize of $3.00 is offered, and the article will be published anonymously. Contributions should be mailed to J. J. Wade on or before June 1st.

Tuesday night an invitation was held by the Epsilon Phi Delta. The following men were initiated: F. A. Grisette, R. E. Boyd, C. L. Moore and Thomas L. Warren.

COMMENCEMENT PLANS ARE BEING COMPLETED

Dr. Charles E. Maddrey Will Make The Baccalaureate Sermon Sunday, June 12th.

The complete plans for the one hundred and twenty-sixth commencement exercises have not yet been completed, but the following facts have been obtained from those in charge.

On Sunday, the 12th of June, the commencement exercises will formally begin with the delivering of the Baccalaureate address by Dr. Charles E. Maddrey, corresponding secretary of the Baptist State convention.

On Monday, the 13th, the exercises of the day will be conducted chiefly by the classes returning to the University for reunions. This is the regular class day of the commencement schedule. In the afternoon of this day the two societies the Philanthropic and the Dialectic will hold reunions in their halls. This is always a great event for the old society members. The alumni of the Phi Assembly who graduated before that body was transformed from a society into an assembly, find themselves, on coming back to the Assembly Hall, members of a regular Assembly, with all its trimmings and everything.

Tuesday, the 14th, will be the day for the alumni luncheon, the meeting of the trustees, and a performance by the Carolina Playmakers. The alumni luncheon will be held at half past one o'clock, and will be immediately followed by the meeting of the trustees at 3 o'clock. In the evening at 8 o'clock the Carolina Playmakers will present a performance in the Playhouse. This is the first time that the Playmakers have been on the program of the commencement. Their quality of work since being established at the University has well merited their inclusion in the program.

The final exercises of the commencement will begin in Memorial Hall on Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock, with the presentation of diplomas to the graduating class by Gov. Cameron Morrison. After the presentation of diplomas, the commencement address, the final ceremony of the exercises, will be delivered. The speaker of the occasion has not been obtained as yet, but the authorities are in communication with a prominent speaker, who will probably deliver the address. The graduating class this year is larger than it has been since pre-war days. It, with the present junior class, are the only remaining classes in the University who were here during the S. A. T. C. days.

FRESHMEN CLEAN UP ON VIRGINIA TRIP

Fishburne, Woodberry Forest, and Chatham Training School Bow to Coach Patterson's Lads

Coach Patterson's victorious freshmen lads returned to the Hill last Sunday night from their trip thru Virginia, bringing home the scalp of all their opponents. The team was in the best form ever and played the best ball of the season. Three games were played with Fishburne Military Academy, with Woodberry Forest, and with Chatham Training School. Games with Staunton Military Academy, Augusta Military Academy, and with Virginia Freshmen were cancelled owing to inclement weather.

On Monday, May 2, at Waynesville, Va., the N. C. yearlings romped upon Fishburne to the tune of 7 to 3. Fishburne was the strongest team Carolina met on the trip and Coffey's pitching held them to four hits against the Freshmen's ten, while nine Fishburne men fanned. The hitting of Speed, the pitching of Coffey, together with a three-base hit by Bonner, were the outstanding features of the game.

The next game was played on Friday with Woodberry Forest. In the meantime, while waiting for the sun god to dry the tears of the clouds, members of the team had been engaging in various species of frivolities and enjoying their visit to the utmost. Some went to Washington while others preferred to remain at Charlottesville.

The Woodberry lads put up a good scrap. Coach Patterson's proteges played excellent ball and came off the field with the big end of a 5 to 0 score, allowing only twenty-

TAR HEEL NINE WINDS UP NORTHERN TRIP IN VICTORY FROM CADETS

Three Victories, Three Defeats, and One Tie is Record For Team on Trip North.

COLD SPELL HANDICAPS

Winding up a very successful invasion of the north Coach Bill Fetzer's varsity proteges romped all over Virginia Military Institute in Lexington Monday afternoon, winning from the cadets by the overwhelming score of 7 to 1. With Runt Lowe doing the twirling for Carolina and the Tar Heel bats doing the best work of the trip, the game was soaked away in the first few frames and Fetzer's charges were in little danger throughout the entire exhibition.

Carolina's defeat of V. M. I. completed a very neat record of three victories, two defeats, and one tie game, for the northern trip. Swarthmore, College of the City of New York, and V. M. I. were the conquered, while Carolina was forced to bow to Georgetown and Fordham. Maryland State was tied. The day before Carolina left on the trip north, North Carolina State had a big day and won out from the Tar Heels in Raleigh.

After losing to State in Raleigh on Saturday by the score of 9-3, Carolina had another bad day on the Monday following in Washington. "Lefty" Wilson, who was hit rather heavily by the West Raleigh collegians was also trounced for thirteen slashing drives by Georgetown, good for eleven runs. The short right field wall of the Georgetown park enabled three home runs to be recorded in the day's proceedings. Carolina had an off day at the bat, however, and failed to push a single tally across the plate.

Fordham University did not find the Har Heels such easy prey but after a nip and tuck contest were victorious by a 7-6 score. Coach Fetzer slipped in three twirlers, Bryson, Lewellyn, and Lowe, none of whom were able to stop the scoring. Carolina found in Keene, twirling for Maryland State, the same versatile pitcher that he proved himself down here earlier in the season, and was unable to "find" him for enough tallies to push across a victory. But Fetzer's aggregation held the lead throughout and was tied in the eighth, when the game was called.

Swarthmore suffered a 6-4 defeat, and New York University a 3-1 defeat. Lewellyn did some fine work on the mound, and was instrumental in much of the winning. Against V. M. I. Fetzer used Lowe, pitching in his third game of the trip, and the former outfielder allowed the cadets only four hits and was not scored upon till the eighth frame when one run was pushed across.

Every game on the tour was played in cold and disagreeable weather, which was somewhat a handicap to the team, and especially to the moundmen.

MAY ALUMNI REVIEW IS PLACED IN MAILS

Contains Much Interesting Matter on College Activities, Alumni and High Schools

The May issue of the Alumni Review which has just been placed in the mails, is adorned on its front page with a very beautiful Arboretum scene. This is just the kind of a view that should adorn an University publication issued in the month of May, and en route to many Alumni. The scene from the Arboretum will bring them right back to thoughts of the University, and cause many of them, no doubt, to wish that they were treading the path shown.

"The Review" itself is full of interesting material. The Editorials cover the various phases of University life, the recent High School activities in debating, athletics, etc., the building program, Alumni news, and an article on the death of the late Dr. A. B. Hawkins of the class of 1845.

An exhaustive review of the building program is included and an article on the three Carolina-Virginia baseball games. The recent debating activities of the High Schools culminating in the final contests in Chapel Hill are also reviewed in an interesting manner. Readers will al-

HANFORD SECURED BY MICHIGAN UNIVERSITY

Potent Factor in English Department Will Engage in Graduate and Research Work

Dr. J. H. Hanford will leave in a short time to assume his duties as a professor of English in the University of Michigan, at which place he will be solely engaged in graduate and research work. During the month of April Dr. Hanford delivered an address there on Milton which was in line with the work that he will take up.

Dr. Hanford came to this University in 1914 and since that time has been a potent factor in the English department. He has been chairman of Sophomore English and addition to this has taught courses which dealt with Milton, English poetry from Burns to Keats and Theories of Economic Reform. While here he has been actively engaged in research work and has given special attention to the life and works of Milton. As a result of these endeavors an article entitled "The Chronology of Milton's Private Studies," will appear in the June issue of the publication published by the Association of Modern Languages.
