GRADUATE CLUB HOLDS LAST MEETING OF YEAR

Pres. Chase Says That The Scholar in Laboratory and Library Civilization's Greatest Contributors.

At the final meeting of the Graduate Club in Phillips Hall last week Dr. H. W. Chase delivered a short talk on "Scholar's Contribution to Civilization," while Dr. Edw. Greenlaw spoke on "The Spirit of Research."

"The scholar in the laboratory and in the library has contributed more to the progress of civilization than any other one class of men," said Dr. Chase in the course of his talk. "The University is cut off below the point which it ought to reach unless it has a mature body of graduate students working silently on problems of their state and their generation."

Dr. Greenlaw took his text from a recent advertisement of the General Electric Company appearing in The Alumni Review and describing the three kinds of research conducted in their laboratory. He concluded with an extract from Bacon's essay on "The Advancement of Learning," to illustrate "that insatiable, intellectual curiosity, which is the basis of all genuine graduate research."

A large crowd of students were present at the last meeting of the club. The seniors were invited to attend and many responded to the invitation. Eats and smokes were served during the course of the meeting.

MANY ENTERTAINMENTS ARE PLANNED FOR ALUMNI

MISS EMILY R. KNOX RECEIVES SCHOLARSHIP

Miss Knox Receives Scholarship to The Paris Conservatory at Fontainebleau Palace.

It is with keen interest that the Carolina student body looks upon Miss Emilie Rose Knox, and the student body is always glad to hear of her successes, her latest being the recipient of a scholarship to the Paris Conservatory, by the Friends of American Musicians in France. The purpose of this organization is to promote interest and feeling between France and America in music as well as in other matters.

Miss Knox sails on the "Paris," on June 23rd, and will be away until October 1st. The Conservatory will hold its summer session at the famous Fontainebleau Palace, and the students will live at the Palace during the entire session.

Miss Knox's appointment came as the result of a short interview with Mrs. George Montgomery Tuttle, of New York, the president of the society, and who in turn recommended her to the committee of appointments. This committee has for its membership some of the leading authorities on music, composers and conductors in America today.

On June the 8th Miss Knox will play at Davenport, Iowa, in a nationwide contest in which 14 contestants are to play. Some time ago Miss Knox was selected to represent the South Atlantic States. She will also give a concert in Raleigh before sailing.

Dr. E. W. Knight delivered the address at the closing exercises of the Maxton High School Friday night, and on Tuesday night he spoke in Greenville.
