GOOCH'S CAFE PLANS MANY IMPROVEMENTS

Present Site to be Remodelled and Enlarged; Private Dining Rooms.

Chapel Hill is to have a modern and fully equipped eating establishment.

Thus stated Mr. G. E. Gooch, proprietor of the local cafe, in discussing plans for the coming year.

Plans are under consideration for rebuilding on the site formerly occupied by the cafe before it was destroyed by fire last spring. A modern brick building is contemplated. The new cafe will be more than double the size of the present one. The building will be completed by September if the project materializes, and the cafe fixtures will be installed and everything ready for business by the opening of college next fall.

In case the erection of the new building is deemed improbable at this time, the present site will be remodelled and substantially enlarged. The cafe proper will be extended back so as to include the present kitchen, and an annex constructed that will house the kitchen and store rooms. The counter will be extended, and more tables will be provided. These improvements will be made before the opening of the summer session.

An interesting feature of the new cafe is that private dining rooms are to be provided. One of these will be sufficiently large to accommodate organizations who desire to give their feasts and banquets in a style somewhat more satisfactorily than is possible under the present conditions.

The proposition of installing an automatic or cafeteria has been carefully considered by Mr. Gooch and local capitalists but it is not thought that such plans will materialize for some time, as the volume of trade here is not sufficient to render one a paying proposition.

The equipment for the new cafe has already been purchased and is at present in storage here. Mr. Gooch stated that he has realized for some time that the present facilities were inadequate, and that he is going to do his best to have open and ready for the students and townspeople by next fall an eating estab-

Durham Road Will Be Completed Next Fall.

The Chapel Hill-Durham hard surface highway will be completed by next Thanksgiving, in time for the great Thanksgiving football game. Eight miles of the highway, the part in Durham county, will be a Kentucky rock asphalt wearing surface with a broken stone foundation, while the part in Orange county over the remaining four miles will be Portland cement construction throughout.

The contractors for the concrete road in Orange county are Elliot Sholes Co., Durham, N. C. The price is $35,000 per mile, exclusive of bridges. This is at the rate of $3.38 per square yard for the width of roadway of 18 feet. A new reinforced concrete bridge will replace the steel structure over Stroud's creek, one mile from town.

Prof. T. F. Hickerson has accepted a position with the North Carolina State Highway Commission for the summer as chief engineer of a field party of six men who will be selected from the students in civil engineering at the University. The first project to be surveyed is the highway from Chapel Hill towards Pittsboro.

ishment that will be second to none in the state.

Damage Fee Will Not Be Charged Next Year.

The damage fee will be abolished for next year.

This is an announcement just made known, and is a decision reached after a year's discussion by faculty and students. Too much damage has been occurring, and the University faced the need of either raising the old damage fee or abolishing the system outright, and making each student responsible for his room. A conference with the campus cabinet and the student dormitory inspectors was the immediate cause of this change.

The damage fee has been in force since the administration of Governor Swain, and next year will be the first year since that time when no damage fee will be collected from the students upon registration.
