UNIVERSITY PROFESSOR WRITES NOTABLE BOOK

New York Times Gives Favorable Review of Dr. Knight's Book in Recent Issue.

"Public Education in the South," Dr. Edgar W. Knight's new book, received an extensive and highly complimentary review in the New York Sunday Times for December 24. Doctor Knight, who is Professor of Rural Education at the University, is considered one of the foremost authorities on that subject, and the review of his book in a nationally read publication like the New York Times shows that interest in his work is not limited to this state alone, but extends over the whole country. The book is a clear, unbiased account of Southern progress in education up to the present time. A knowledge of this book would be of considerable aid in understanding the South's educational problems today.

Dr. Archibald Henderson, another man who has helped to give the University's name prominence in the literary world, reviews the book in his usual interesting and brilliant style. "A striking and able presentation of the trend of education in the South today," he says in the opening part of the review. He goes on to describe the clear, simple manner in which Doctor Knight recounts the halting, inefficient, feeble struggle for better education which the South has made in the past. He also points out the interesting fact that the South's pride in educational progress must rest almost entirely upon the improvement in the town and city schools; for although 80 per cent of the school children of the South live in rural districts, the amount of education which the city children receive is almost a third more and better.

Hostesses Want To Be Guests And Party Fails to Come Off

Somebody's Blunder Queers Friday Evening's Reception at the "Y"
Two Co-eds Among Those Present—Mints and Chocolate Drops Flow Freely.

Somebody gave a reception in the "Y" last Friday night. It was a very delightful little affair but just whose party it was remains shrouded in mystery. Some rude person went so far as to style it the "co-ed deception," but the fair ones maintain that they were deceived as much as anybody. It seems that until the last minute the young ladies believed that they were to be guests of honor, while the "Y" officials had planned that they should be hostesses—cooks and bottle-washers, also, it appears. Such was the announcement made by Secretary Comer in chapel Friday morning. As a result of the confusion only two representatives from Russell Inn put in an appearance, while upward of a hundred young hopefuls of the hex-sex serouged into the "Y" lobby in high hopes of being granted a vision of heavenly beauty, or perchance, to exchange a smile or a word with an angel—figuratively speaking, of course.

greater numbers. They seized and fortified all the avenues of approach. A detachment posted itself in front of the door to the secretary's office and there was eminent danger of this feminine stronghold being carried by storm. The co-eds resolved to take the offensive. Poindexter, Leonard, and Bradley, with the true chivalry of Carolina men, championed the weaker party. Flanked on one side by the redoubtable Poindexter, on the other by the cool, smiling Leonard, and urged on by the gallant Bradley, the fair Amazons advanced upon the enemy hosts, pouring into their ranks a deadly deluge of after-dinner mints, chocolate drops and student directories. It was a gallant charge, the day was saved, but it was an indisputable fact that "some one had blundered."

The party was the most brilliant success of the new year and was thoroughly enjoyed by all present. The reception hall was decorated with a large, brilliantly lighted Christmas tree, as a cheerful reminder to the students that the next advent of Santa Claus is only eleven and a half months away.

Student Directory Makes Appearance

The long-promised student directory, larger and more complete than its predecessors, arrived on the Hill last week. Many new features have been added, including a complete directory of the faculty and a Chapel Hill city directory.

So far as printing is concerned the book is about the worst specimen of the typographical art ever imported. Names are mis-spelled, home addresses are confused, and campus locations absolutely unreliable. The printer, whoever he is, disowned the book and inserted in it no advertisement or imprint showing its origin. Another circumstance which makes the book less valuable than it would otherwise be is the fact that the wholesale shifting about of students who did not make deposits for their rooms has changed a great many addresses.

DOCTOR GREENLAW HONORED

At the meeting of the Modern Language Association of America in Philadelphia last week, Dr. Edwin Greenlaw, Keenan Professor of English, was made chairman of the general committee on research, succeeding Professor Manly, of Chicago. The general committee has charge of the thirty-some special research groups in the association.

Denny Contributes Billboard Articles

Among the feature articles in the Christmas number of the Billboard, a national weekly magazine devoted to affairs of "the profession," was one of some length and detail concerning the Carolina Playmakers by George V. Denny, business manager of the Playmakers.

The article adds another to the ever-growing list of articles and mention which are singing the praises of the Playmakers to a vast audience of attentive ears in all sections of the country.

It is illustrated with three remarkably good and hitherto unused photographs of scenes from folk plays that have been produced, and it presents the inner workings of the Playmakers in a lucid manner—something that few of the other articles about them have been able to do. It is a business man's article by a business man and will be wonderfully good propaganda for the University at the same time.

It is now possible for aircraft to cross the Sahara Desert safely by means of a buried cable through which an electric current flows. The current influences delicate apparatus on the plane or airship so that the pilot is able to tell his exact position at a glance.

A "campaign of kindness" has been inaugurated by co-eds at Northwestern University. Eighteen sororities have voted to discontinue their regular semester dance, and to use the $2,500 or more saved in this manner for a Christmas fund for Evanston's poor children.

Sophs Launch Drive For More Class Dues

The sophomore class has begun a drive to collect class dues. A committee composed of some 12 or 15 men and headed by T. C. Tevepaugh, secretary-treasurer of the class, canvassed the campus last week-end. The class had several bills which it must meet, chief among which are the Yackety Yack bill and the bill presented by Mr. Burch for damages which resulted from an advertising scheme of some enthusiastic members of '25 who desired to let the campus, and '26 in particular, know that this year's second year organization was a regular sophomore class.

The executive committee of the class is planning to have several smokers during the year, and in order to do so it is necessary to collect the class dues. Many second year men have not yet paid their freshman dues. These men are urged to settle up so that the class can carry out the plans it has made.

The results of the canvass have not as yet been determined, but enough for another smoker was probably collected.

"Jail the flirt," is the slogan of the Anti-Flirt Association which was organized recently at the Hotel Biltmore in New York City to prosecute a campaign against the masquer. Through publicity, the association intends to educate public opinion to the point where a woman will consider it her duty to prosecute the masquer who attempts to force his attentions upon her. The association intends to have its own counsel who will aid in prosecuting all masquer cases.

A youth of 23 was chosen secretary of Yale University.
