

The Engineering in a Curling Iron

What sort of engineering is it that makes a study of the needs and the interests of women and creates products to satisfy them? Does it seem that, in practice at least, this sort of thing is a little different from your understanding of what an engineer really is and does?

After all, when you come to think of it, engineering is concerned with all the facts of life. It takes the old facts and interprets them in new and broader ways; but its big job is the very big job of making more living,—fuller living,—readily available. It is, in every aspect, a thing worth doing, whether it concerns itself with curling irons or converters, or any of the thousands of products in between.

This is truly the day of the engineer. His judgments and his equipment are sought in almost every phase of living. Engineering is remaking the business of housekeeping. Its methods are being applied to merchandising, to distribution, to the wrapping of bundles and the packing of boxes, to the lighting of streets and the hundreds of things that, a few years back, were strictly "rule-of-thumb". By the time you are at work out in the world, there will be more—though there are only a few of them left.

Whatever is worth doing is worth engineering; engineering effort dignifies itself. Whether it puts more usefulness into transformers or curling irons or turbines does not matter. The thing that counts is the work, the creative, constructive service that is going on for the lasting benefit of mankind.

YACKETY YACK SUES ORGANIZATIONS FOR UNPAID SPACE BILLS

Three Upper Classes and Order of Sheiks Haled Into Magistrate's Court—Sheiks Must Pay.

OTHER CASES DISMISSED

The 1922 Yackety Yack, through its business manager, L. J. Phipps, has brought suit against the president and treasurer of each of the three upper classes, and against Henry Lineberger, of the Order of the Sheiks. The action was brought for non-payment of bills due the 1922 Yackety Yack for pictures and space in the Annual. The bills due are as follows: Senior space and interest, $58.78; Junior class, $76.29; Sophomore class, $130.63; Sheiks organization, space and interest, $52.25.

Lineberger's case was tried Saturday morning at 10 o'clock. J. M. Whitaker, justice of the peace, presided over the court. The court rendered judgment against Lineberger for the full amount due the Yackety Yack by the Order of the Sheiks. The defendant acknowledged the debt and promised to try to collect the money as soon as possible.

The cases against the senior, junior and sophomore classes were called at 3 o'clock. C. A. Holshouser and G. Y. Ragsdale, president and treasurer, respectively, of the junior class, being ready for trial, were the first to face Magistrate Whitaker. The defendants were represented by D. G. Downing and Kelly Jenkins, students in the University Law School.

After the charge had been read, Attorney Downing moved that the case be dismissed on the ground of defect in summons. In substantiation of his motion he produced the Consolidated Statutes of North Carolina and read therefrom to His Honor. The court, however, ruled against the motion. Lawyer Downing then put forth the apparent defect of non-joinder, which Justice Whitaker recognized, and dismissed that and all other cases of like charge.

In rendering his decision he stated that the cases were dismissed for the reason that the plaintiff in each was simply Yackety Yack, with no one named as representing that organization.

After the trial Mr. Phipps stated that the cases would not be legally contested by the Yackety Yack. He plans to drop all cases and pursue another course in an effort to collect the bills.

He stated that his position was as follows. The Yackety Yack, of which he is business manager, owed the printers $2,000 at the end of the school year. He realized that, although the various individuals and organizations of the University owed more than this amount to the Yackety Yack, and that it had been due since May 1, 1922, it was impossible to collect $2,000 from them in time to meet the printer's bill. Therefore he gave the printers four $500 notes, the last of these coming due January 1, 1923.

He now has $700 in outstanding accounts which he wishes to collect. Those owing him acknowledge that their debts are honest ones, but this does not bring the money. Now, if within a short while the debtors do not come across he plans to take the accounts of the Yackety Yack, which amount to $700, and the $500 bill of the printers, and present them both to President Chase for the University to settle as it pleases.

Less Flu Every Day Says Dr. Abernethy

Dr. Abernethy, the University physician, states that the epidemic of influenza is rapidly being crushed out and he is having fewer new cases every day. However, he still advises that all necessary precautions continue to be taken.

The following are the unfortunate victims of a mild attack of influenza who are confined to the infirmary: M. A. Hughes, G. A. Gray, W. H. Richardson, J. M. Sandifer, E. B. Dalton, B. F. Williamson, Jr., T. R. Williams, G. C. White and J. B. Riddle.

None of the above patients are seriously ill and Dr. Abernethy feels that it will be only a matter of a few days before they will be able to get out.

think that faith means a belief in the things related in the scriptures, however improbable they may seem, and whether they are used as real facts or as allegories. But that is not faith; real faith leaves aside these minor things. The modern Christian faith is that response of our whole being toward a divine but unseen power. It is one's attitude toward a great and living God. It is that sixth sense which makes us know that there is a God and things divine, although we have never seen them."

PHI CANNOT AGREE ON MORRISON'S SHIP PLAN

Much Argument Introduced on Both Sides of Both Sensible and Amusing Nature.

Whether or not the state of North Carolina should establish a system of water transportation lines, as proposed to the General Assembly by Governor Morrison, remained undecided Saturday night, insofar as the Philanthropic Assembly is concerned. After much heated discussion, the resolution favoring the Governor's pet proposal was tabled until the next meeting, when water route transportation is again expected to be waxed pro and con.

"Eastern No'th Carolina" came in for a "toll the bit" of discussion during the meeting. Commercial prospects of the state's seaboard were painted in dazzling terms as very favorable if the Governor's proposal is adopted, by those favoring the bill. The remarkable statement was actually made that one of the greatest ports in the world is now being constructed at Beaufort. Leaving the humor aside, some real serious discussion was hurled at the Assembly.

The speakers affirmatively inclined favored the bill mainly on Governor Morrison's recommendation that it would pay for itself in two years. Opponents of the measure cited the federal government's operation of wooden ships in the war as a colossal failure, and predicted a similar failure if the state established its commonwealth-controlled water routes. Likewise, the Governor's statement that the bill would pay for itself in two years time was seriously doubted. Speakers against the bill even went so far as to hint that the Governor was playing politics in an effort to reconcile the east to his administration. Some real live discussion is promised on the issue next week.

MONOGRAM CLUB HOLDS ELECTION OF OFFICERS

The Monogram Club had its first meeting of the year Thursday night and elected the following officers: Joe McLean, president; "Male" Shirley, vice president, and C. C. Poindexter, secretary. "Casey" Morris and "Monk" McDonald were elected to represent the club on the committee of awards. A motion was passed favoring the awarding of regular monogram sweaters with a small "M" directly under the monogram to managers. The club further went on record as favoring the financing of wrestling by the Athletic Association and that the question of making wrestling a major sport be placed before the Athletic Council. The club also went on record as not favoring the giving of gold balls to managers of teams and left the matter as to whether they should be given some emblem open until the next meeting.

The Assembly acted favorably upon two measures. Article 17 of the Constitution was unanimously amended so as to provide for the new 50 cents debating fee, recently voted by the student body. A resolution favoring the showing of all athletic games on the electric score board in Memorial Hall free of charge, at the expense of the Athletic Association, was passed by a vote of 44 to 38. Some humorous discussion centered around this bill. It was maintained that athletic games were seen on the Hill for 25 cents a game. Others contended that the students paid as high as $6 per game. Some return for the amount of money expended on athletic fees was asked in the form of score board reports, in view of the fact that but two football games are promised for the Hill next autumn.
