ter railway conditions, due to the high cost of strikes; that this remedy must embrace the principle of arbitration; that it must be an agency of the government, and finally, that the railway labor board lives up to all of these fundamentals, except that it lacks the power to enforce its decisions.

The Elizabeth City and Wilson teams emerged into the finals after being victorious over 60 debating teams which reached Chapel Hill as a result of their victories in the first series of debates held the latter part of March. The Elizabeth City negative team won out over the following teams in the semi-finals, held Friday morning and early Friday afternoon: Asheville Farm School, Beaufort, Stovall, Durham, Elm City, Sunbury, Glen Alpine, Graham, Middleburg, Monroe, Guilford, Williamston, and Elon College. Wilson won out over the following affirmative teams: Guilford, Marshville, Glade Valley, Stonewall, Durham, Statesville, Southern Industrial Institute, Glen Alpine, Graham, Brevard Institute, Mills River, Monroe, and St. Pauls.

The above named teams entered the semi-finals, after contesting in 14 different halls Thursday night. The following teams entered the first preliminary that night:

Almond, Angier, Apex, Arcadia, Beaufort, Bolton, Brevard Institute, Bunn, Canton, Carthage, Columbus, Dover, Durham, Elizabeth City, Elm City, Falling Creek, Farm School, Glade Valley, Glen Alpine, Granite Falls, Graham, Guilford, Harmony, Harrisburg, Henrietta, Hickory, Jonesboro, Kinston, Lexington, Louisburg, Macesfield, Marshville, Maxton, Mill River, Middleburg, Mineral Springs, Monroe, Mountain Park, Mount Olive, Moyock, Paw Creek, Pinnacle, Princeton, Roberdel, Rock Ridge, Southern Industrial Institute, St. Pauls, Sarratoga, Stanley, Statesville, Stonewall, Stovall, Sunbury, Taylorsville, Tencheys, Turkey Knob, Wakelet, Wilkesboro, Wilson, Williamston.

The final debate was the apex of high school debating in North Carolina for the year 1923. Approximately two thousand people witnessed the final contest. Dr. H. W. Chase, president of the University, presided. E. R. Rankin, secretary of the high school debate union committee, acted as secretary. D. B. Teague, in a burst of short and snappy eloquence, flavored with some good humor, presented the cup to the winning team. The program in Memorial Hall was closed with the presentation of the track medals to the champion high school athletes by Prof. M. C. S. Noble, in his usual effective and ludicrous way.

Following the debate, the visiting high school athletes and debaters were entertained at a reception, given in their honor by the High School Debate Union Committee. An immense throng of people crowded the Bynum gymnasium. Debaters, judges, and members of the committee were among those invited.

Judges for the final contest were H. H. Williams, L. P. McGehee, H. M. Wagstaff, L. R. Wilson, and W. S. Bernard. Affirmative judges for the semi-finals were: W. W. Pierson, Jr., H. M. Dargan, C. A. Hibbard, F. E. Bradshaw, and C. H. Fernald. Negative judges were: R. D. W. Connor, P. H. Winston, T. F. Hickerson, W. C. George, and H. F. Comer.
