splendidly done," and especially praised the work of Miss Elizabeth Taylor as "Mag Warren," and Miss Kitty Lee Frazier as "Mamma." Of Miss Taylor it was said that she "compared favorably with actresses of more than local fame." At Hickory, April 21, the Playmakers delighted a "capacity house."

The Asheville Citizen was enthusiastic over the performance in Asheville, April 22. "The Carolina Playmakers," it said in an editorial, "are more than amateurs. They have already proved their capacity to interpret North Carolina folk-lore and drama, and drama written and acted by North Carolinians."

In receiving the three plays the Asheville Citizen said, "The verdict is going to be unanimous that all were presented with a degree of finish that smacked more of the professional stage than it did of the campus or the classroom."

"The Carolina players are not merely developing, they have arrived, and the individual work of the various members will compare more than favorably with that of the average stock company."

"In point of dramatic worth their best offering by far was 'Peggy,' a tragedy of the Carolina tenant farmer, by Harold Williamson. It seems incredible that an inexperienced dramatist could have grasped the possibilities of his theme in such a realistic manner. His various characterizations are true to life throughout."

"Added to the excellent theme is the use of an unusually well balanced cast: a cast that will no doubt rank for years to come with anything the University may turn out. In point of artistic work the honors lie with Miss Elizabeth Taylor. Here is a girl that is a true artist. 'Too much cannot be said in praise of the youthful actors' attention to make-up and costume. There was not the usual stamp of amateurish wigs and grease paint.'"

JACK ALLSBROOK IS ELECTED TO SUCCEED J. O. HARMON AS PRESIDENT OF STUDENT BODY

Under the provision of this ballot Allsbrook's nomination was declared valid and further nominations called for in chapel Monday morning. Someone proposed Harmon's name for re-election. The present incumbent, acting as chairman of the meeting, promptly ruled himself out. The only other nominee was Earl Hartsell who declined, with thanks.

A motion that the candidates be asked to come before the student body in chapel following the precedent set last year was made by Gerald Pelliter and seconded by E. L. Justus who not only advocated "asking them," but would go further and "compel 'em to come." This motion found favor with the students and it was announced that the candidates would speak from the Memorial Hall platform at the chapel period Wednesday, the balloting to begin immediately thereafter.

Considering that it was not a compulsory chapel period for upperclassmen, a very good crowd turned out Wednesday morning to hear what the candidates had to say for themselves. The two speeches were essentially the same in content with Allsbrook having a slight advantage over his opponent in ease and delivery. Both men endorsed the policy of the present council and promised adherence to a like course in the event of election. Both men had words of praise for the tradition of student self-government and promised to do all in their respective powers to live up to it, if elected.

The great scarcity of candidates for this position which is ordinarily considered the chief political prize on the campus was a feature distinguishing it from previous elections. Lack of aspirations for the post was especially noticeable among members of the class of '24. The general feeling on the campus seemed to be that the two men nominated were about evenly matched in the qualities requisite for the job. This feeling kept many away from the polls and others frankly stated that their votes were cast as the result of a toss-up.

COMPLETE EXHIBIT OF BRIDGES RECEIVED BY ENGINEERING SCHOOL

The Highway Transport Committee has recently sent a complete exhibit of various types of bridges, culverts and models and also many different types of road surfacing to the Civil Engineering department. This exhibit was sent for the purpose of general inspection by all those interested in road construction and it affords an opportunity to increase one's knowledge of highway construction. The exhibit is very interesting from a mere standpoint of curiosity and the department welcomes all students who would like to inspect it. Professor Janda states that he will be glad to explain the exhibit to anyone if they will merely call for him at the C. E. laboratory any afternoon between now and the end of the week.

In connection with this exhibit there is also an exhibit sent out by the Goodrich Rubber Company which shows the different stages in the manufacture of rubber.
