J. G. WOODARD LOOMS UP AS MED POLITICAL FORCE

New Tammany King Has Entire Med School Under His Dire Hand.

(By J. OSLER BAILEY)

"Double, double, toil and trouble,"

The pot of politick's a-bubble.

J. G. Woodard, whom his classmates say has been here so long he reminds them of the Davie Poplar, has loomed into the foreground as a political force in the med school. He is a man from Tennessee, town of Erwin. Even seven years ago, before he quitted his native heath, he had assumed political importance of such magnitude that when the recent mayoralty elections, Town of Erwin, were indulged in, our hero received a telegram of most mysterious content from the new Mayor.

Recently the Phi Chi and the Kappa Psi, under the leadership of this Tammany King, eked out the renegade Alpha Kappa Kappa, of which Reuben Roberts is a leading member. They got not a smell,—not even a whiff.

The med studes find it necessary, in order to properly discover the secrets of our anatomies, to sit up very late at night, poring over huge volumes. For this, coffee is necessary. The only recourse left to our villain, Roberts, was to get himself elected chief cook to a newly organized caffeine club.

The Tammany King has the entire med school under his dire hand. To his enemies, he is a most awful being,—an omnipresent Pathe News, sees all, knows all.

PHI VOTES TO CHANGE OLD INITIATION POLICY

Question of Prohibiting Slap-Stick Comedy Brings Out Heated Discussion.

The Phi Assembly met last week on the usual meeting night, which is Saturday, in the usual way. After the customary opening incantations two naive but willing-to-learn freshmen were initiated into the deep, dark and dyed-in-the-wool depths of the august assembly's doings. A merry time was had by all except the victims midst melody, mirth and monkey-business. These proceedings germinated the idea in the fertile intellect of W. D. White that the horseplay involved was not in correct keeping with the soulful solemnity of the occasion.

The introduction of a bill to prohibit "slap-stick comedy" by said gentleman from Buncombe precipitated a lively discussion upon the merits and demerits of the present system of initiation. Using every argument known to the annals of the Plaza del Toros, and many never before heard, the cohorts of either party rushed to the attack and likewise the defense, but after much gnashing of teeth, woeful wailing and pteuous shedding of copious salt tears the dignity of the hallowed ceremony was upheld by a large majority. The future initiates of the society may rest assured of a maidenly reception at the door by the Assembly Sewing Circle. Having used up the allotted time for meeting, after sundry sea-going simperings the assembly adjourned with thanks at 9:15 in order that the fatigued members might not overstay their bedtime hour.

able of the job. Bryson is practically unhittable in warm weather and if indications point correctly, Herman will probably do mound duty Thursday. However both hurlers should be in the pink of condition following an eleven day rest and both can be called upon as the Trinity game is not until June 5. Stamey will probably start for Wake Forest, as he seems to be her best bet, but whether he or Stanley Johnson pitches, Gore Field is slated to become worthy of its name, and Casey is booked to return and report that Old Gold and Black blood is very, very red.

link itself with the other groups. But Friday night Mr. Parker accepted the "tapping" with smiles and was obviously much pleased with his recognition by the society.

The nine students were then sought out of the audience, one by one, and while the large gathering in Memorial hall applauded the ribbons were pinned on them and a shower of congratulations were conferred. The first student to be "tapped" was Roy (Casey) Morris, a senior who has distinguished himself on the athletic field and on the campus most befitting a Carolina man. The last student found in the audience by one of the black hooded figures was Cartwright (Cart) Carmichael, another athlete who has made a name for himself throughout the South for his marked ability.

There were some surprises in store for the audience at the "tapping." For the first time in history the Fleece recognized the Carolina Playmakers as a phase of University life sufficiently prominent to warrant taking a man from this organization. J. LeGrande Everett, the Playmaker awarded the honor, has been the high light in the Playmakers for four years, and his acting has always been of such unusual and superb quality that in every production he has been accorded unanimous approval. As a member of the Glee Club and leading man in the recent production of the Wigwe and Masque, the Kalif of Kavak, he has added other laurels. C. B. Colton, doubtless chosen for his prominence in publications work, is editor of the Tar Heel next year, and has written for all the college publications. Also he narrowly missed Phi Beta Kappa at the recent initiation by a few fractions of a point. Earl Hartsell's fine scholastic record, coupled with work in various other phases of campus work, such as forensics and publications, won for him the coveted crown. George Hampden, who has participated in and won more inter-collegiate debates than any other student at the University during the present generation, received the honor for this striking versatility. Jack Allsbrook, chosen as next year's president of the student body, known as one of the soundest and most vigorous thinkers on the campus, a junior whose potentiality is unusual, was one of the six fortunate juniors. Bill Gwynn, president of the senior class next year, was "tapped" obviously for his splendid work in the Y. M. C. A. field, with John Purser, who is president of that body for next year, selected more on the grounds of his achievement in various phases of University life, the best all round man in the junior class.
