Track Squad Is Off For Track Carnival

Coach Bob Fetzler and Manager Aubrey Shackell left Friday afternoon with ten men for Asheville to enter the indoor carnival to be held there Saturday under the auspices of the Buncombe County chapter of the University Association.

Other institutions that are expected to enter the meet are Virginia, University of South Carolina, Furman, Wake Forest, Georgia and others. A number of high schools and prep schools are expected to send representatives to the carnival. Medals will be awarded to the winners.

One of the big events will be a relay between the University of North Carolina and the University of Virginia. The Carolina relay team is composed of Ambler, Whitaker, Milstead, Parker. The milers are Ranson, Lambeth and Thatch, while Parker and Fordham will do the high jumping. Fordham, a valuable asset to the track team will also handle the shot. Yarborough and Moore will do the hurdling and springing, and Yarborough and Fordham will also broad jump.

While in Asheville Coach Fetzler is expected to discuss with track officials and sports writers the advisability of holding a track conference this spring. Track is Coach Bob's hobby and he is very anxious to increase interest in all institutions in the South.

The Chapel Hill girls defeated West Durham Friday night in basketball.

"THE OLD PLACE AIN'T LIKE IT USED TO BE," SAYS AN ALUMNUS

Acting on This Statement Tar Heel Reporter Seeks Out Prominent Men of Community and Interviews Them Concerning the Matter

By G. A. Cardwell.

A rather sensitive looking man who seemed to be some three sheets in the wind came into the Cafeteria the morning of the Thanksgiving game and walked carefully over to my table.

"The old place ain't like it used to be," he opined heavily as he sat down and tried to find his mouth with a spoonful of soup. "I've been walking around the town all morning and haven't but five people spoken to me. Nobody knows anybody else and everybody is scattered around everywhere. Why I asked a boy if he was in college and he said no, that he was in the Law School. The old place ain't like it used to be."

Pursues Problem

My inclination is toward solitude; so, having delicately crumpled my napkin and having dropped it in the soup bowl, I quelled the man with a chilly glance and left. But little as that thoughtless and I regret to say it, half-shot alumnus knew it, he had started a mighty movement. Yea, the Tar Heel reporter, had scented a problem and pursued it hotly over the ups and mostly downs of Orange County.

Has Scientific Brain

I was once told by my godmother that I have a thorough, mathematical, and efficient brain. I usually agree with my godmother—she is an unusually intelligent woman—and rarely do I have occasion to doubt the truth of the criticism. Attacking this problem which now confronted me in my usual ruthless scientific way, I looked it over from angles of all degrees. Finally, my decision was to interview several of the more intelligent and representative members of the University and town and to ask them forceful, impelling questions. "When planning an interview, always have several forceful, impelling questions in mind." See page 12 of The Reporter. After rapid thought, I sought a directory and carefully copied the following names upon a small white card, 6 by 3 inches.

Interviews Celebrities

In the town: 1. Mr. Paulsen, of the Laundry. 2. Mr. Gooch, our favorite cafe manager. 3. Mr. Herndon, of the P. O. 4. Mr. Smith, a foreman of building operations. In the college: 1. Mr. Monk McDonald, our most renowned athlete. 2. Mr. Socrates Proctor, our most cognoscent of the illiterati. 3. Mr. A. George Froneberger, our star orator.

I had quickly chosen, as you see, a highly intelligent and representative list of men. "Such is the value of system." I quote from The Reporter. My first visit was shortly over. No helplessly narrow views can be quoted by a first rate sheet. I believe that this sentiment is expressed at some time during the third chapter of The Reporter, my favorite novel. Mr. Paulsen had no sooner been apprised of my mission than he burst into a flood of superlatives, meaning that more boys send clothes to the laundry now than ever before. I stopped his manifestly prejudiced evidence with upraised hand, and having noted "Hopeless Optimist" by his name I left the office.

Mr. Gooch's Interview

Mr. Gooch was quite different. "It's like this," he told me sadly. "I don't know what's the matter, but I think that the main trouble is that the boys just don't gather around like they used to. Why a few years ago, there would have been a crowd of boys in here any time, day or night. My profits, are cut in half." On page 66 of The Reporter directions are given to smile when approaching a news source and to smile when leaving. Using my justly famed sympathies as a guide, however, and following the precept laid down on page 74 of The Reporter, I struck while the iron was hot. Which is to say, I bummed a hamburger sandwich off of Mr. Gooch. By his name I noted what I have decided is the keynote to the problem. "The boys don't gather round like they used to."

Post Office as a Center

My visit to Mr. Herndon of the P. O. was brevity itself. Mr. Herndon holds a position which might aid much in acquiring a more unified student body. The P. O. might be fitted with attractive chintzes and become a favorite gathering place for undergraduates. There they might assemble to sing the old songs and twang the mellow banjo in true old southern harmony. But as a student, the attitude which Mr. Herndon took is repulsive to me. "Mr. Herndon," I asked with a cordial smile, "do you think that the boys gather round like they used to?" "No, thank God," said Mr.

Herndon, "I think that new dormitory delivery system will just about stop this crowd of boys hanging around in here at all hours."

The Building Foreman

By this time, I saw that Mr. Herndon's attitude was not one which I would care to quote; therefore I calmly rose and left. Mr. Smith, the building foreman, told me quite shortly that the free apple and candy stands around the quadrangle were handy to his work and he didn't intend to gather around Gooch's Cafe or the Old Well or anywhere else. Mr. Smith, I decided, is not a man whom I care to quote in an article.

As most of the material for this article was gathered several weeks ago, I experienced little difficulty in catching the students whom I had chosen to interview. I merely stood outside of the Pickwick theatre after the first show and caught my man as he emerged, battered and half suffocated, but content. It is lucky that I interviewed my men before the recent destruction of the "Pick" by fire.

What McDonald Thinks

I asked Mr. Monk McDonald why he didn't gather around Gooch's like he used to and he replied very severely that he wouldn't be seen there again until Gooch's had installed Mah Jong tables. Mr. Soc. Proctor admitted that he had once been known to gather around the Well, if by the Well I meant the Y. M. C. A. but that was before the Y's subscription to "La Vie Parisienne" had run out. Mr. A. George Froneberger announced loudly that what this campus needed was to get that "nigger," Step-on-em-Carolina Brown back to help him. A. George Froneberger, to talk to a bunch of willing listeners.

It was with the above material in hand that I began an intensive study of the situation of this campus which has culminated in the following plans and suggestions.

No considerable amount of snow has fallen here in the last two years. There at once goes a factor towards unifying at least one half of the men in the University. If a good snow storm could be secured at bargain prices, I believe that much of the problem of making this campus be like it used to be would be solved.

Graham Memorial

Several other feasible plans for unifying the University have presented themselves to me, but recently I was struck by a veritable inspiration. Perhaps some of you may know that the University is erecting a building, to be called the Graham Memorial Building. Surely all of you know that the little "Pick" recently burned. It was the happy association of these two bits of knowledge that lead to the formation of the following plan which I now take pleasure in presenting for the adaptation and use of the University official.

More Suggestions

Make a moving picture palace of the Graham Memorial Building! Such, in brief, is my plan. For where did I go to find the students I desired to interview? Where was it my wont to idle away happy hours? The "Pick!"

Minor details of this plan can easily be worked out. I stand ready at all times to render any aid possible to the faculty committee which will be appointed to look into the plan. Just now I would like to request that Mae Murray, Gloria Swanson, Pola Negri, and George Arliss be shown three times a day. Hot chocolate or ice cream in season might be served between the shows.

ANNOUNCEMENT

The following letter has been received from the district superintendent of the Pullman Company concerning the finding of a 1924 class ring on the night of January 8th-9th. Norfolk, Va. Feb. 27, 1924

Editor of the Tar Heel, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C., Dear Sir:

On the night of January 8th-9th, one of your students was a passenger on Southern Railway train leaving Danville, and is supposed to have left train at Boydton. While he was not a passenger in the sleeper, it is understood from the porter that he came to car and washed his hands, leaving a class ring of 1924. Up to this time he has made no inquiry for same, and it might be possible that you could locate this young man, and if so, I would be very glad to return the ring to him.

Very respectfully,
C. N. Brengle
District Superintendent.
Any student who lost such a ring should get in touch with the editor of the Tar Heel.

Fetzer Brothers to Coach the Coaches

W. McK. Fetzer and R. A. Fetzer will again be the directors of the high school athletic coaches' school to be held here during the coming summer. The school, which is the third of its kind held by the University, will be extended to two weeks instead of the ten-day session of last year. Its scope will also be extended to cover and serve the entire Southern States.

The dates for the coaching school as announced, name Monday, August 25, as registration day, and September 6, as the closing date. No tuition fee will be charged and board will be the only expense along with a small registration fee, the rooms being furnished by the University free of charge. Classroom instruction during the mornings will be given in coaching football, basketball, baseball, track and tennis. The afternoons will be devoted to practice in these branches under the personal supervision of the Fetzer brothers and other members of the school.

With registration open to anyone interested in coaching athletic teams in any high or preparatory school in the South, it is expected that this year's coaching school will double and perhaps triple the number which attended last summer. The presence of a number of crack high school coaches from many Southern States will make possible a high grade of work both in the classroom and on the practice fields. With the rapid and splendid development of athletic teams in the high schools of the state, there is a steady demand for men, particularly teachers and principals who can coach various branches of athletics.

These annual coaching schools at the University are under the joint auspices of the Extension Division and the General Athletic Association. The committee in charge is composed of Chas. T. Woolen, graduate manager of athletics; R. A. and W. McK. Fetzer, directors of athletics; Chester D. Snell, director of the Extension Division; and E. R. Rankin, associate director, who acts as secretary of the school.

SHOE SHOP ENJOYS VERY LARGE GROWTH

One of the most interesting ways of testing the importance of this University to the village of Chapel Hill is to see how various businesses in town, dependent on the University students for support, have grown with the growth of the University.

The Electric Shoe Shop, controlled by Mr. Laycock, is now in the twelfth year of its existence. During that time, the shop has enjoyed the continued and increasing support of the students and has in return given them the very best of repair work and of courteous service.

Mr. Laycock began work here when only hand cobbling was done. For the first year, he ran the shop by himself; then with improvements in machinery and increase in patronage came the need for more help in the shop, which is fitted with all equipment necessary for efficient work, including two stitching machines, one for women's shoes, the other for men's.

Besides various repair work, the shop now carries army hobnails, various brands of dress shoes, slippers, and boots. Including the sale of these Mr. Laycock did a twenty thousand dollar business last year as compared to the three thousand dollar trade he began with twelve years ago.

Buffalo (N. Y.) evening schools offer the public whatever educational service it demands, and any course requested by 15 persons will be provided. During the past school year these schools enrolled 22,424 persons, one out of every 15 in the population more than 16 years old. More than half of the registrants continued to attend regularly throughout the year.
