STACY SPOKE FRIDAY

tunity for upright lawyers to go out into North Carolina and make it a better place for people to live.

It has been the policy of the Law Association here since its formation at the beginning of this year, to have some prominent man in legal circles to speak to them. These invitations will be issued each month to a member of the North Carolina Supreme Court, until each one has spoken here. Judge Hoke will probably be the next one to speak.

INTERCOLLEGIATE NEWS

Philip University, Enid, Oklahoma, recognizing the great educational value derived from travel will offer an opportunity to all those care to do so to get a glimpse of some of the important things in the U. S., Mexico, South America, Phillipine Islands, Japan, China, India, down through the Holy Land, Africa, and Porto Rico. All expenses except for meals are to be defrayed by the University. Ex.

Connecticut Aggie has made a series of radical changes in its "cut" system this year. Hereafter absolutely no absences will be excused for any reason. To balance this, a bonus system allows additional credit for perfect attendance. No further make-up exams for incurred conditions will be offered. Ex.

Columbia Freshmen recently were publicly tested on their knowledge of the school songs. The Sophs were the judges. The freshmen who knew their songs received a yellow tag and those who didn't know them received a dose of shoe blacking. Shoe blacking predominated. Ex.

Georgia Tech is one of the recent technical schools to enter the field of intercollegiate debating. A debating council, composed of three members of the faculty and two students, has been informed to arrange the contests. —Ex.

A Sophomore at the Colorado Agriculture College is earning all of his college expenses by making and selling trout flies. He adopted this occupation six years ago in his leisure time and has found it to be remunerative as well as interesting. His market extends through Oregon, Washington, Idaho and Wyoming. —Ex.

The authorities of Vassar College have decided to form another post-graduate department, which will have neither dean nor instructors. Its purpose will be to provide Vassar graduates with an opportunity to escape domestic duties and to engage in any creative work desired, which may be the writing of some long-cogitated play, the painting of some dreamed-of picture or the carving of a group of statuary. It is hoped that this Institution will open a mine of originality in art and literature. Ex.

STUDENTS COLUMN

The recent talk made by President Chase in Chapel concerning the function of a University contains some of the finest, clearest thought that has been presented to a public audience in this state. It is probable that but few students realize the wherefore, so to speak of their coming to college. Dr. Chase's remarks put in plain, terse language the eloquent fact that they come here to learn to think, to get the facts and mental training necessary to meet intelligently the personal and public problems that the years bring to every individual. The sentiment, as well as reason of President Chase's observations, are so happily removed from the Scylla of ultra-conservatism and the Charybdis of red radicalism that the vast majority of sober-minded Americans will applaud this sensible middle-of-the-road position. The Tar Heel should ever keep before its readers this thought of the function of a University.

A recent requirement, I understand, has been made by the University administration, that, in my humble opinion, helps in a considerable way in the University performing its function. The foundation of any institution of learning is its faculty. Not every man with a Ph. D. degree is adapted to the profession of instructing youth, in training young men to think for themselves. A vigorous personality, a sound character, and a high regard for real manliness, in the writer's humble view, all are essential matters to be considered when the State of North Carolina sets up a man here to teach her sons. The ability to instruct should be as well cared for, as the fund of knowledge and learning so necessary. It is said that every new instructor must have a personal conference with the President before his services are engaged. This requirement should certainly raise the already commendable standard of the University's faculty. Men, who take no pride in the number of students they "throw" on courses, but men who have the ability and art to teach, so that their pupils can and will learn. To my mind it is a poor instructor who does not present his subject in such a way, and does not inspire his pupils sufficiently, to pass at least ninety per cent of the average class. Of course, a few scientific subjects necessary to medicine, or professional studies, should be mentioned as exceptions to this principle. The University administration is right in wanting to "look over" a man, before bringing him here to instruct the young men of this State. It is as an alumnus deeply interested in the continued progress of the University, and connected in no other way with the institution that I write these lines.

University of Southern California recently organized the Bachelor's club in self-defense. The names of the twenty-four had previously been published in the Wampus, university magazine, with hints for co-eds on how to approach and capture them for Prom dates. The bachelors now feel safe, according to The Trojan, and the membership is steadily increasing. Ex.
