

OVER AND UNDER CAMPUS

A new arrival on the scene—Julian Koch! "Life's but a stage!" We predict that the Playmakers will have him acting in the next folk-play.

Dean Bradshaw was having an animated conversation with Parson Moss about the wonderful attributes of the Bradshaw baby. An interested listener inquired, "Do you ever have to take care of it?" "Of course," was the Dean's reply. "Why he doesn't even know how to hold the baby, he lifts the infant by his stomach!" was the Parson's acrid comment. "The trouble is," replied the Dean, "that the Parson doesn't know where the baby's stomach is!"

Professor and Mrs. Caldwell have issued a summons to all who have known and loved the old home in which they now live to appear there on May 28th at 8:30. This home, which is next to the Episcopal Church, has long been associated with members of the University faculty and many have strong associations connected with it. It is to be torn down during the summer to make room for the new building for the women students, and this celebration will be in the nature of a long farewell to a home that has lived well and long. The Caldwells are to have a unique affair, which will be interesting to many.

Scene—The corner by the Quadrangle on the Raleigh Road.

Time—About nine o'clock on a Prunella rehearsal evening.

Action—A lanky figure dashes out of a dormitory toward the light. He pulls out a white sheet, waves it frantically over his head, wraps it around his supple form and tears down the road, flapping his "wings" as he goes. Music—"Daddy's stole our best clean sheet and jined the Ku Klux Klan."

Curtain After Word

What'll his roommate do next Saturday!

We made a mistake the other day and called a "Prof" a "Doctor." Trying to retrieve our dignity, we pulled the old bone. "Call 'em Doc, if they aren't they like it and if they are they won't be called anything else." But that wouldn't do. It seems that now the only thing which is unusual is to be called "Mr." Little Miss Nancy Murchison is said to have the right idea. She addresses the milkman and the grocer as Dr. Weaver and Dr. Pickard.

On strolling through Saunders the other day, we found the following bit of humor and immediately attached it. It appears that an especially persistent and insistent insurance agent had monopolized a great deal of Mr. Sanders' time, to the great disturbance of Mr. George Lawrence, who occupies the same office. After the agent left in despair, and the two were bemoaning their fate, at this time of the year, which is fearfully busy, even to the pros, who shouldn't have to do anything but write exam questions; they struck off the following notices. We say "they" intentionally, because, like Alphonse and Gaston, neither wants the blame or the credit. The notice reads:

Notice to Agents (Gentlemen and otherwise!)

To Insurance Agents:

We both carry more insurance than we can afford, and besides we have both recently become afflicted with heart trouble to the extent that the doctors won't pass on us as good risks. One of us has high blood pressure and the other low. We have both been suspected of T. B. and neither of us expects to live to be over thirty-five. Our hours are numbered so please have pity and PASS ON!

To Book Agents:

Our shelves are loaded down and it will be impossible for us to consider even one more volume. Anyhow we can't read, we're blind and we detest being read to!

To Other Agents:

We reserve office hours for you. Please call between two and four A. M. Sunday morning.

Our Motto—

An agent a day Means delay and delay!

We hear that the latest organization on the campus will be the Sigma Phi Nuffin, a fraternity composed of all the champion horse shoe pitchers.

VARSITY FINISH BASEBALL TRIP

Southern Tour Disastrous; Wake Forest Game Monday Closes 1924 Season

Carolina had an unsuccessful southern trip as the northern trip was successful. Handicapped by the absence of several of the regulars the team lost every game, losing two to Mercer, two to Alabama, and two to Georgia.

Carolina's greatest trouble seemed to be the lack of effective pitching. In every game Carolina's pitchers were romped on for a good number of hits. The team too, felt the absence of the steady playing of McDonald and the hitting of Coffey.

In the first game with Mercer, Ferree, Poyner, and Coltrane were all used in the box. Mercer slugged away and with the aid of two home runs won by a score of 6-2. Coltrane was selected to pitch against Mercer in the next day's game. He pitched a very good game with the exception of one bad inning, the sixth, when with the score tied at two all, Mercer collected four hits for three runs. Carolina did not score again the game ending 5-2 in favor of Mercer.

Bryson joined the team in time to pitch the next game which was against Alabama. Alabama jumped off to an early lead in the second inning when five hits and an error netted four runs. Alabama scored two more runs in the fifth on two hits and a walk. Carolina did not score until the eighth when Johnson got a hit, went to second when Bryson drew life at first on an error and scored on a pass ball. A moment later Jones got a hit scoring Bryson. Carolina went down in one, two, three order in the ninth, leaving Alabama with the big end of a 6-2 score.

Poyner pitched the second Alabama game for Carolina and was in great form, only allowing six hits. Three of these came in one inning, however, and coupled with a walk and an error accounted for four of Alabama's runs. Carolina had a bad day of it at the bat, only getting three hits. Alabama shoved across another run as a result of two hits and took the second game 5-0.

Bryson was used again in the first game with Georgia. He had a very bad day, Georgia getting sixteen hits. Georgia stepped into the lead in the first inning when four hits and two errors gave them a four run lead. Carolina only got five hits during the game scoring two runs. Enjoying a four run lead, Georgia was not satisfied and added one in the third, three in the seventh, and three in the eighth. Carolina made a desperate effort in the ninth and collected two of their hits and scored one run, raising their total to two as against Georgia's eleven.

Poyner pitched the final game of the trip against Georgia. He was touched for ten hits but he kept them well scattered and held the Crackers to four runs. Carolina was helpless before Pantone until the seventh when Starling got a hit and scored on Thomas' hit. Georgia had the boys outclassed and won the second 4-1.
