

BAPTISTS HAVE HARD SHELL FOR FETZER'S TAR HEELS TO CRACK

State Championship Probably Lies Between the Deacons and Hillians

LARGE CROWD IS EXPECTED TO ATTEND GAME SATURDAY

A great mob of Carolina students will descend on Wake Forest next Saturday when the Tar Heels meet the Demon Deacons on Gore field. Parties are being made up to hire cars and make the journey in style, while many students will use the busses and trains. With the great number of alumni and visitors from all parts of the state, Gore field should see the largest crowd in its history.

The feeling everywhere seems to be that Wake Forest will be Carolina's hardest rival in the state, and the winner of this game will in all probability take the state championship. It is difficult to make an estimate of the strength of the two teams. The Wake team is expected to be made up of practically the same men that were defeated 22 to 0 by the Tar Heels last year, but since that time they have gone through a season of stiff coaching under the redoubtable "Hank" Garrity. The strength of the Tar Heels remains to be shown, but most of the campus dopesters are of the opinion that the Tar Heels this year will stack up as good as the team of last year, and that they should repeat their victory. No figures are available but it is expected that the two rivals will be about evenly matched as to weight. The Blue and White eleven will be but slightly heavier than that of last fall.

Carolina and Wake Forest have been scrapping annually since relations were resumed in 1907, with Carolina always carrying off the large end of the score. It was considered a feat when the Deacons scored three points against the Carolina Wonder Team of 1922, although beaten by the score of 62 to 3. Many of the games have been hard fought, close contests, but it was unusual for the Baptists to score. This year it seems quite possible that they will not only score but defeat the Tar Heels. This is the hope and the dream toward which Wake students and alumni are looking forward. At all events this game should be one of the best in North Carolina this year, with the winner carrying off a hard-earned victory.

No one can say just who will be the representatives of either school. Both the Fetzers and Garrity are as silent as the proverbial Sphinx; but it is expected that this line-up will probably be used:

Wake Forest	Carolina
Daniel	Braswell
Pegano	Epstein
Ends
Moran	Matthews
Ellerbe	Hawfield
Tackles
Bents	Fordham
Caudle	Jackson
Guards
Emmerson	McIver
Center
Greason	Bonner
Armstrong	Underwood
Half Backs
Karleskint	Merritt
Full Back
Rackley	Sparrow
Quarter Back

MISS FRANCIS GRAY HAS GOOD SUMMER

Well Known Playmaker Holds Fellowship and Is Specializing in Dramatics

During the summer Miss Francis Gray, Playmaker star and author, had the good fortune to be in attendance at the rehearsals of Stuart Walker's productions at his theater in Cincinnati. While there Miss Gray, who last year created two roles with remarkable success, appeared in several parts.

Stuart Walker's company offered a repertory at the Cox theater during the summer, producing among others, "Lilium," Galsworthy's "Justice," Alice Bradley's "Three Roses," and Gilbert Emery's "The Hero." The students who attended the rehearsals were directed in the various phases of acting and production, usually making their own costumes when they were fortunate enough to be assigned a part. Miss Gray played the part of a servant girl in "Lilium," and parts in several other plays. She holds this year the Playmaker fellowship and is specializing in dramatic work.

Swain Hall is now overflowing with boarders, since the influx of students the first of last week. All the tables are now filled to capacity. It has even reached the point where it is necessary to set two tables in the kitchen. Swain Hall is now employing 75 self-help students.

RUTH DRAPER OPENS PLAYMAKER SEASON HERE ON OCTOBER 7

Famous Artist Comes to the Hill Direct from Paris and London

FIRST PERFORMANCE TO BE IN MEMORIAL HALL

Ruth Draper, whose recitals have caused a tremendous sensation in New York, London, and Paris, will come to Chapel Hill October 7, under the auspices of the Carolina Playmakers. She will appear in Memorial Hall that night at 8:30 in original character sketches. This will mark the opening of the Playmaker season.

The Playmakers consider themselves as fortunate in securing Miss Draper as they were in having Tony Sarg's Marionettes to play here. Miss Draper is today one of the greatest box office attractions in America. She has played to capacity houses in nearly every national capital and return engagements in nearly every large city, and has convinced theatre-goers and critics of her supremacy in the art. She has been playing a successful season in New York where her Sunday nights at the Selwyn theatre have become an institution, and in spite of lengthened engagements and use of larger houses, her houses are always sold out in advance.

As an artist and entertainer Miss Draper is original in every way. She is not a monologist in the old fashioned sense. She needs no scenery, no drapery to help portray her characters, and yet she creates an atmosphere that is the true background of whatever sketch she is giving.

"MONK" McDONALD TO COACH CAROLINA FIVE

Star University Athlete Will Succeed Shepherd As Mentor for 1925 Quint

GOOD PROSPECTS FOR ANOTHER WINNING TEAM

The Carolina quint, four times champions of the South Atlantic states and twice of the entire South, will be coached this year by Angus Morris (Monk) McDonald, who made four letters in basketball while at Carolina and was twice picked for All-Southern guard.

"Monk" will return to school and take up the study of medicine, coaching the basketballers as a sideline. A wonderful player himself, with a reputation as one of the brainiest, most level-headed athletes who ever donned the Blue and White, he should make an excellent coach. McDonald made twelve letters while at Carolina, starring in football, basketball and baseball. Besides being picked as All-Southern guard in basketball, he was also chosen for All-South Atlantic quarterback and All-State shortstop. He will have four regulars as a nucleus for his team in S. McDonald, Cobb, Dodderer and Devin, and with several promising men from last year's squad and from the freshman team he should put out a winning combination this winter.

THREE MATH. PROFS. GET MARRIED WHILE STUDENTS ARE AWAY

What Was Once Three Is Now Six—Cupid Did Good Work

KOCH REPORTED TO BE GETTING JEALOUS

The mathematics department has put Cupid Koch entirely out of commission—at least so far overshadowed the romantic and match-making Playmakers—that it is expected that they will be crushed by such rival success. Never has the exponent of the "drummer" brought three matches to a successful culmination in one week.

Dr. A. W. Hobbs and his bride, formerly Miss Nell Blair of Alabama, are living at the Hickerson's while waiting for the completion of their home in the Gimghoul settlement. Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Brown are living at the J. A. Warren's. Mrs. Brown was formerly Miss Catherine Boyd of Greensboro, N. C. Mr. and Mrs. John Lasley are at the Woolen's. Mrs. Lasley was formerly Miss Edna Millikan of Greensboro.

Mrs. Brown graduated from the University in 1923, last year being secretary to Dr. L. R. Wilson. Mrs. Hobbs was also on the library staff.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE TO MEET

The Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees will hold a meeting on Tuesday, September 30

PLAYMAKER PROGRAM FOR COMING SEASON TO BE THE BEST YET

New Theatre to Be Ready First Week in December According to Plans

FOLK PLAYS WILL GO ON ROAD FIRST

Chapel Hill and the University will be blessed with an abundance of good theatrical attractions this year. The Carolina Playmakers, whose vast growth has made them an institution in the State, are sparing nothing in providing an elaborate program for Chapel Hill during 1924-25.

Ruth Draper, who appears in Memorial Hall October 7 in original character sketches, is the first attraction. Miss Draper is nationally known and is considered foremost in her art. The Playmaker management is negotiating with the Devereaux Players for a performance here in the latter part of October, and it is probable that Chapel Hill will have the pleasure of seeing these well known players again.

The New Playmaker Theatre, which is now under construction on the site of the Old Law building, will not be completed in time for the regular fall appearance of the Playmakers, so a State tour will be made before playing here. The tentative dates for their appearance here are December 5 and 6, when, as usual, three folk plays will be presented.

Immediately after the completion of the handsome new theatre, which will be the latter part of November, the Playmakers plan to hold a reunion of the Playmaker family. Such an affair will bring together many prominent people who have been active in dramatics and writing since their graduation here.

The Playmakers have recently received invitations to play in Birmingham, Ala., Atlanta, Ga., and Miami, Fla., in addition to other smaller towns throughout the South. It is very likely that a Southern or Interstate Tour will be made the last of January. This will be a new departure for the Playmakers, and all indications show that it will be successful. They have been popular with State audiences for a number of years, and well-known critics have been enthusiastic.

The second series of folk plays will be produced the first of March as has been the custom heretofore, and the regular State tour will follow.

The feature of the winter will be the appearance of Tony Sarg's Marionettes here March 6. Always a good show it has never failed to make a hit in Chapel Hill. Tony Sarg will present two plays this year, Robert Louis Stevenson's "Treasure Island," and "The Pied Piper of Hamelin." Chapel Hill remembers well his famous rendition of Don Quixote last year. A feature of the show this year will be musical puppets.

In the Spring quarter will be the third and last series of Folk plays of the year and a play in the Forest theatre.

The Playmaker Readings which became a regular institution last year, will be continued this year and will be given more importance. Professor Koch, Theodore Fitch, Dr. Bernard, Katherine Battist recently graduated from the Intertheatre Arts, and others equally well equipped to present these Sunday night programs, are all available. With the completion of the new theatre the readings will be improved with lighting effects and scenery. These readings will usually be accompanied with music.

Season tickets for all Playmaker attractions of the year may be secured at an early date.

Five students were entered at the infirmary last week, none of the cases being serious, however. J. L. Kapp, C. B. Powers and S. B. Meadows were confined with colds, E. O. Jackson with malaria and R. H. Sherrill with nettle rash.

Plans are now under way for a big banquet to be held in the Baptist church. This banquet will be the firing gun for the "Y's" big financial campaign. Noted speakers will be present to aid in making the banquet a big success.

"PARK HERE" SIGNS DESCEND UPON THE STAID OLD CAMPUS

Regarded as Sure Sign of Progress Due to Invasion of Automobiles

SPECIMEN PUT ON EXHIBITION BY REPORTER

While making his nightly round, a reporter on the Tar Heel staff Monday night, discovered one of the University's brand new "Park Here" signs wandering around the campus and after successfully staking a capture, brought the gifted piece of iron into the paper's office as proof for his story and as proof that the college is getting out of its time honored mire and rut and gradually assuming a modern day aspect.

The sign in question spent Saturday night near the Pharmacy School, strolled over to Fraternity Row during the early hours of Sunday morning and before the day was done it had made a pretty thorough inspection of that section of the campus. Monday night, when surprised and captured, it was seeking shelter from the heavy downpour of rain and had parked itself under the oak tree on the north side of Smith dormitory.

So jubilant was the mud soaked reporter over the signs of progress that he prophesied that the day would soon come when hard surface walks would grace the campus and the students would no longer be forced to paddle around in liquid mud. As a testimony to his joy he composed a private ditty to automobiles, the publication of which is impossible for various reasons.

Tuesday morning the sign was placed on exhibition in the Tar Heel's show window in New West Building and has attracted considerable attention. One mercenary reporter, evidently expecting to make a little money on the side, advertised it for sale at a bargain price and spent all day Tuesday in confident expectation that some freshman would stroll in and have it wrapped up.

In addition to attracting the attention of the students, the sign in the window has thrown consternation into the ranks of the building and ground force. Several employees of the University inspected the standard Tuesday and pronounced it as being, beyond a doubt, the property of the college. Just now, the foster-mother reporter who rescued it from the storm, is expecting its removal from the office at any time.

DR. CHASE TO SPEAK THURSDAY NIGHT AND WELCOME FRESHMEN

Upperclassmen Are Urged to Attend the Exercises in Memorial Chapel

BAND WILL BE ON HAND WITH MUSIC

President Chase will extend welcome to the Freshman Class on behalf of the members of the faculty next Thursday when the "University Night" exercises are held in Memorial Hall at 8:30. In addition to the address by the President, there will be also welcoming speeches by William J. Cooke, Jr., President of the Student Council and by L. P. McLendon, of Durham, in behalf of the Alumni of the University.

Upperclassmen are being especially urged to attend as the exercises are by no means meant for the Freshmen alone. Although the keynote of the occasion will be the greeting of the class of 1928, the three speakers are not expected to overlook the return of the other members of the student body.

Contrary to precedent, the whole University will be represented. Heretofore it has been customary for the heads of the various schools on the campus to monopolize the event. This year, however, finds a departure from that custom, and the "Greater University," through the medium of the representatives of the faculty, students and alumni will be the order of the day.

The band will make its appearance and will furnish music for the occasion.

FRESHMEN BIBLES GIVE OUT AND NEW SUPPLY IS ORDERED

Book Receives Much Praise This Year for Make-Up and Cover

SECOND YEAR MEN LIKE THE BIBLE

A temporary shortage of Freshman Bibles has made it necessary for Secretary Comer, of the Y. M. C. A., to turn away repeated requests for copies of the book during the past week. A smaller number of copies was ordered this year and the upperclassmen who have called by the office have found that this year's healthy crop of freshmen has exhausted the supply. However Mr. Comer announces that a new stock of the valuable little handbook is being made up and will soon be available.

The Freshman Bible is issued at the beginning of each year by the "Y" as a help to the incoming new men. The 1924 edition is practically the same as that of last year in content and is bound in an attractive white cover with the well, monogram and date stamped on it in light blue. The editor of the book and his assistants have been receiving considerable praise for their excellent work.

The book is divided into four sections. The first carries much necessary information and a welcoming letter from President H. W. Chase. The second section is devoted to the Y. M. C. A., and its program for 1924-25 is outlined.

Athletics is the title of the third part and it contains the records of last year's teams with their schedules for this year. There are also cuts of Captains Matthews and Cobb along with one of the 1924 Freshman eleven. Several pages are devoted to intra-mural sports, and songs and yells conclude this department.

The last book contains the names and a brief statement of the purpose of all organizations at the University.

CAROLINA CLUB IS NOW MAKING RECORDS

Charles Bordenhammer Joins Orchestra in New York as Pianist

Charlie Bordenhammer, of Greensboro, left today for New York, where he will join the Carolina Club orchestra. It is reported that in the future Charlie will hammer the ivory keys for that now famous organization.

The club recently returned from a successful tour of Europe and is at present making several records for the Columbia Phonograph company. The orchestra stirred up considerable opposition in London when they attempted to land in order to fill an engagement at the Piccadilly hotel. Due to the vast number of men that are at present out of work in the British Isles the labor unions did all in their power to keep the Carolina boys out, and it was only through the efforts of Secretary of State Charles E. Hughes, who was aboard their ship, that they were finally admitted. The club played for the Prince of Wales aboard the Berengaria on the trip home.

While not made up entirely of University of North Carolina students, the majority of the members are old residents of the Hill. They will leave shortly for another trip to the continent and will probably re-enter school after Christmas.

ORDER OF DE MOLAY LATEST ARRIVAL

Masonic Order to Come As Soon As Permission Is Granted

Within the next few days, as soon as permission of the proper authorities is obtained, a new order will make its appearance at the Hill.

The Order of De Molay is a national organization, and its chapters are steadily but rapidly increasing. It is in no sense a fraternity, and will not conflict with any other organization. It is an order for boys between the ages of 16 and 21, sponsored by Masons and under Masonic supervision.

There are in all probability between 75 and 100 boys in the University who are members of this order in different towns over the state.

The order at first will be operated on the same basis as the Freshman Friendship council. Later a chapter will be organized and degree work given.

An announcement will be made in chapel as to the time and place of the meeting to be held soon. Any boys interested in further information can see Moulton Avery, 306 Grimes.

EITHER JUPITER OR HIS WIFE HAS PASSED AWAY IT IS BELIEVED

Long Period of Mourning Came to End Yesterday and Students Rejoice

CAMPUS WALKS STAND UP UNDER STRAIN

As the paper goes to press no word has been received by the editors as to who it was that died in heaven last week or as to whether or not the period of weeping and mourning is yet finished. Judging, however, from the amount of weeping done by the chief mourner, Mr. J. Pluvius, the editors state that they do not mind being quoted as saying, "that it is their firm belief that it was either Jupiter or Juno who so recently went to their reward, if the recent wholesale shedding of tears can be taken to mean anything at all."

Regardless of what was the cause for the steady deluge which commenced before the opening of school and continued incessantly until yesterday, old timers in Chapel Hill say that it was one of the worst spells in recent years and the students are heartily in agreement with them.

The walks of the campus withstood the steady rain far more successfully than usual and the work done during summer school in improving them is not thought to have been in vain. But even at that, traffic conditions were by no means ideal and wet and muddy feet were universally in vogue. The ground in front of Gerrard Hall that became such a terrible mud hole during last year's "High School Week" was saved by the newly dug trench along Cameron Avenue.

Tuesday the clouds began to break and before the afternoon the sun had complete possession of the azure spaces. The sun set fair last night and bespoke fair weather for today and tomorrow.

PRESIDENT PLEAS FOR A UNITY OF UNDERSTANDING

Makes Keynote Speech At First Senior Smoker of Class of 1925

URGES COOPERATION AS FACTOR IN UNIVERSITY BUILDING

Pleading for a greater unity of understanding, President Chase, in delivering the keynote speech at the first 1924 senior smoker Monday night, urged the seniors to acquire that consciousness of purpose and direction that makes for progress. The executive asked for a unity of understanding that goes deeper than hand-shaking acquaintances,—the understanding of being men together, fighting side by side for the same purpose of producing a fairer and deeper knowledge of truth in the hearts of men.

"The only way to build the best kind of University is through the conscious cooperation of students, faculty and alumni working together for the same purposes and reaching the same ends," stated Dr. Chase. Cleverly comparing the University of a hundred years ago with the University of today, he attacked the idea that the student body is growing too large. "The best size of a university, I think, is between three and four thousand," said the President in disclaiming any alarm in the present size of the University. He explained that it was institutions of such size as this that a man could best assert himself as an individual. Bringing the case to the individual, Dr. Chase threw out the question, "What one thing does the University need most?" He expressed a sincere desire to see individuals in the class and in the student body thinking along this line.

After the speech of Dr. Chase, R. Y. Thorpe, president of the class, acting as toastmaster, called upon Miss Lucy Lay to respond for the co-eds. Miss Lay in a few well chosen words expressed the loyalty and desire for service of the co-eds of the class.

Reports from the retiring treasurer, F. S. Griffin, and the incoming treasurer, Clayton Hawfield, were heard under the head of business.

Co-Eds Stage Smoker Last Saturday Afternoon

The Woman's Association of the University entertained in honor of the new women students on Saturday afternoon, September 20, from four to six, at Russell Inn. The hall and living room were attractively decorated with autumn flowers. Receiving were Mrs. M. H. Stacy, dean of women students, Mrs. E. K. Johnson, and the officers of the association, Miss Kitty Lee Frazier, Miss Mildred Cherry, Miss Lucy Lay, Miss Norma Connell and Miss Mary Cal Henley. An ice course was served.
