

North Carolina Club Will Meet Next Monday

The North Carolina club will hold its first meeting of the year next Monday, October 6, at 7:30 p. m. in room 112 Saunders hall.

The club has been in existence since 1914 and has as its purpose the study of contemporary North Carolina and the economic and social problems of the developing life of the state.

two weeks it assembles to discuss a paper prepared by a member. This year the organization will continue its consideration of "What Next in North Carolina." Students and faculty are cordially invited to attend.

L. M. Buchanan, a sophomore pledge of the Sigma Nu fraternity, was initiated last Wednesday night.

Gray L. Hunter, Winston-Salem, was initiated into Chi Tau fraternity last Friday night.

PROF. KOCH HAS ARTICLE PRINTED ON PLAYMAKERS

Carolina, was made in a big white automobile coach, designated the Playmaker Special, which provided comfortable accommodation for the troupe of 20 players and their baggage.

Out of the interest in this travelling folk-theater came a state-wide demand for guidance in dramatic expression. To meet this, the Bureau of Community Drama was organized five years ago as a unit of the Extension Division of the University.

The Extension library now contains over a thousand volumes of plays which are in constant use. A dramatic director is available to visit any community in North Carolina, to assist in the staging of plays, and in the writing and production of pageants and festivals.

It is expected that by the time of the next meeting of the association the Carolina Playmakers will be at home in their own building. So far, all the Carolina folk-plays have been produced in the auditorium of the Chapel Hill school building, since no auditorium on the campus was suitable for dramatic purposes.

The demands for the appearance of the Carolina Playmakers have far exceeded the ability to meet them with the limited time the student-players may be away from Chapel Hill. To meet this need the University contemplates the establishment of a State Repertory Company to give to all the people of North Carolina a drama of their own, and to give the most talented Playmakers an opportunity for further study and achievements in dramatic arts, beyond the period of their student life.

The work of the Carolina Playmakers is but a part of the larger movement toward a new American folk-theater, which may yet find its way into every state and every community. The editor of the American Review of Reviews has suggested this larger significance: "When every community has its own native group of plays and producers we shall have a national American Theater that will give a richly varied, authentic expression of American life."

WIDE EXTENSION PROGRAM BEGINS WITH THIS WEEK

student body for any college to have, but the student body of the University Extension division is not limited to extension class students. Another thousand students in North Carolina who live in every nook and corner of the state, from fishing villages on the coast to log cabins in the mountains, are taking regular University courses by correspondence instruction.

The Old North State through its splendid support of the University has made it possible for any of its citizens, and all of its citizens, to get some college instruction, no matter where they are located.

The annual cake race will be held this year on October 29. A hundred cakes will be baked by the ladies of Chapel Hill and presented to the first 100 men that cross the line.

FROSH ATHLETES PASS THEIR WORK

The study conditions, roommate situations, and "bull sessions," Mr. Royster said, are by far the greatest causes of freshman failures at the University. "Birds of a feather flock together," said Mr. Royster. "I do not mean to say by this that poor students nor good students just happen to be thrown together. The fact is, however, that when one man in a room does not want to study, he not only wastes his own time, but also that of those who are around him."

"Many times a man, for fear of being impolite, will not interfere when a session is started in his room, even though he wants to study. If he does do this, however, he will find it very much to his advantage and he will be glad of it about the first of next year."

Mr. Royster's talk was thought by many to be a good one, and the audience seemed to be impressed by it. He spoke in the student's vernacular and dispensed his advice straight from the shoulder.

Di and Phi Meet Tonight In Brand New Quarters

The first meeting of the Dialectic Literary society and the Philanthropic Literary assembly will be held tonight at 7:30. The Phi holds its meeting in the New East building and the Di has its hall in New West.

The speaker-elect of both societies will take over their offices at the beginning of tonight's session. E. D. Apple will be installed as speaker of the Dialectic and L. T. Rogers will take the chair in the Philanthropic assembly.

Both halls have been extensively repaired and the new chairs have arrived and were installed last Wednesday. Both of the new speakers are said to expect the campus to show renewed interest in society work, especially in view of the fact that they have two well equipped and well furnished meeting places in which to work.

It has become a matter of custom for men from the East to join the Phi and for men from the West to join the Di.

Dr. James F. Royster, Dean of the College of Liberal Arts, will give a lecture in Murphey hall next Tuesday at 11 o'clock. Dr. Royster will speak on "Selections from Chaucer" and deal with those events of the 14th century that affected Chaucer's writings.

The Complete Project for the Standard Oil Building New York City CARRERE and HASTINGS Architects

"The New Architecture"

A DISTINCTLY new tendency is apparent in architectural thought and design today. Architects are designing in masses—the great silhouette, the profile of the building has become of far greater importance than its detail.

There is a new vigor and ruggedness even in buildings which are conventionally classic in their detail. Masses mount upward, supporting the tower, accentuating its height. The new architecture is tending toward great structures rather than multiplicity of detail.

Certainly modern invention—modern engineering skill and organization, will prove more than equal to the demands of the architecture of the future.
