

CAMPUS NOTES

B. S. Thompson, contractor, has started work on the Sigma Nu house. The trenches for the foundation are being dug and since practically all the building material has been delivered no interruption should occur.

The freshman friendship council was entertained in the "Y" building after its meeting on the evening of November 11, by the woman's association, in appreciation of the assistance which the council gave in the Halloween carnival.

Plastering in the church of the Chapel of the Cross has been completed, and work of finishing the interior such as installation of radiators and fitting windows will go forward next week.

Mr. George B. Thomas, of the Western Electric company, visited the engineering school Monday for the purpose of interesting men in the telephone industry.

Dr. R. E. Coker expects to occupy his new residence by next Monday.

C. B. Colton, editor of the Tar Heel last year, was on the Hill last week-end to attend the V. M. I. game and Chi Phi initiation. Colton is teaching in the Virginia Episcopal school, at Lynchburg.

Dean Braun of the engineering school has returned from Alabama where he has been or several weeks regarding his health. He has not yet taken up his classes but will probably do so next week.

Actual work on the woman's dormitory on Franklin street has been begun. Brick masons in the employ of Thompson brothers started work on the site last Thursday.

The following men have taken treatment for "hiccougs" during the past week: W. J. Lupton, Swan Quarter, N. C.; B. B. Cooper, Siler City, N. C.; R. H. Harriss, Chapel Hill, N. C., and A. E. McIntyre, Burlington, N. C.

Milton Clapp, of Elberton, Ga., is suffering with poison ivy.

E. G. Cadill, of Smithfield, N. C., has asthma.

The following are suffering with colds: Alton Hamrick, Lattimore, N. C.; J. L. Hendron, Asheville, N. C.; W. S. Whedbee, Greenville, N. C.; W. S. Watson, Sanford, N. C.; K. R. Jones, New Bern, N. C.; B. R. Hoover, Asheville, N. C.; J. T. Justice, Kernersville, N. C.; W. H. Harmon, Buies Creek, N. C.; L. B. Taylor, Seaboard, N. C.; J. H. Cole, Greensboro, N. C.; C. L. Keel, Hamlet, N. C.; Kermit Perkins, Pikesville, N. C., and T. B. Freeman, Henderson, N. C.

The committee on recommendations of the Northeast Missouri State Teachers College, at Kirksville, reports $1,205 as the average salary of the 201 teachers it placed last year. Training in a recognized institution pays. The average salary of those holding "the 30-hour certificate" was $1,020. Those holding the 60-hour, the 90-hour, and the 120-hour (with bachelor's degree) diplomas received an average salary of $1,126, $1,324 and $1,749, respectively.

WHAT'S NEXT IN THE SPHERE OF COLLEGE STYLE

Tar Heel Scribe Attempts to Discover What'll Come Next.

BUT HE RAMBLES ABOUT And Digs Up Folk-Lore About the Good Old Days and the Late "Leedle Damit."

By SOURCE What's next in the style department of the college world? Knickers have come, almost gotten to be plebeian, and appear to be going. They are no longer sacred to fashion plates, fraternity dogs, and readers of Foister's copy of Vanity Fair. In fact, the rabble of ordinary students now indulge in the comfort of knickers, and there is no longer any particular attraction in wearing them.

Even checkered and plaid golf stockings have lost their kick. They too have spread to the masses, and the fashion mongrels are rapidly laying their "plus fours" away. No longer is the fatted calf a necessity in donning them. Everybody's doing it, regardless of their nether limbs. Even dried up and rusty faculty members have taken up the habit. Nor is there any kick in yellow slickers. Local stores have been unable to get them in sufficient quantities to supply the demand. Now that the whole student body is "sold," the fad will probably switch to flaring red, or rosy blue.

Sweaters with red, white and blue borders seem to have joined knit vests, multi-colored belts, wide belts, and garters in sharing the garbage can with the commonest of rubbish. They just aren't in style any more, and now the janitors and janitors' sons are wearing them out. Sailor pants seem to be losing popularity. Everybody's wearing them, too. Twenty-four inch bottoms are destined to disappear. It has been rumored that pre-bagged knees and belless bottoms are to be announced as authentic at an early date.

But right now, the old fashioned "blazer" seems to be trying to stage a belated comeback. In fact, a few have cropped forth and others are budding out daily. A blazer is described as a double-cross between a sweater, a smoking jacket and an ordinary, every-day coat. But in addition to all that it is emblazoned with stripes of vivid colors, the favorites being red, blue and green.

This apparel once held sway like a mighty monarch. A college boy wasn't a college boy unless he had it, as well as a pair of peg-topped "britches" and a Boston terrier tied to a string. Everybody smoked pipes back in those days, too.

While the blazer is trying to return, the dead spirit of the peg-tops has not as yet radio-ed its desire to come back and enjoy mortal life. Chesterfields and Lucky Strikes at 45c a hundred seem to promise the advocates of Lord Dunhill and Prince Albert little comfort.

But as to the dogs: Chapel Hill has always been noted for its canine population. So noted indeed is it, that it approaches a state of notoriety. But not satisfied with that, Bill Cox of Rowland and personal friend of Jack Dempsey, came to school this past fall with his pure-bred Airedale and the dog seems to have prospered quite a bit. Bill's playmate has cooked up memories in many of the upperclassmen of "leedle Damit," diminutive little bulldog, who drank so much had corn liker last year that he passed out and went to the drunk dogs' heaven. But Cox's canine hasn't as yet taken to the bottle, but lives on the best food that Miss Cates and Mr. Gooch can offer.

However, leaving the dog question out, hobnails seem still to be popular, and when the famous Orange county gravel commences to melt into oozy mud, and the walks to float away, the annual winter rush for these substitute rafts and canal boats is expected to begin.

Neighborhood activities associated with the Lakeview Consolidated School, an open-country consolidated school in Michigan, include a community club, boys' and girls' clubs, Boy Scouts, Girl Reserves, a glee club, dramatic club, athletic association, gymnasium club, and parent-teacher association, according to Edith A. Lathrop in the September number of School Life, a publication of the United States Bureau of Education.

Forty-five New Tennis Courts The forty-five new tennis courts across the Raleigh road from the cemetery are partially completed and in use. It makes a pretty sight to see the rackets flashing and the balls flying back and forth on a sunny October afternoon.—Alumni Review.

Freshman Statistics at Trinity College

This year's freshman class at Trinity college is declared by Capt. W. W. Card, director of gymnasium and physical training, to be the best physically in the history of the college. While not so heavy as former classes, the class of 1927 is taller and apparently more vigorous.

The tallest freshman is George Covington, of Rockingham, who extends upward a fraction of an inch under six feet four inches. Covington, too, has the greatest lung capacity, being the fifth student in the history of the college to blow more than 400 cubic centimeters.

J. Brigalsky, a Ohio youth, has a grip of 191.5 pounds, while Covington comes next with a grip of 189.5 pounds. The heaviest student is W. E. Frasier, of Durham who presses the scales at 241 pounds, has a 46-inch chest, a 17-inch neck, a deflat of chest of 9.6 inches, and an arm of 15 inches. Both Covington and Frasier have shoulders 18.3 inches broad.

The entire class averages 138.4 pounds in weight, 18.4 in years, and five feet eight inches in height.—Durham Morning Herald.
