PARAGRAPHICS

We have with us today-the sprout

Yes, one of the four hundred year old lotus seeds imported to the campu from Manchuria has sprouted.

Just what disposition will be made of the tree that is hoped to be is not yet known. The Botany department will probably put the lotuses on sale at the Book Ex.

It is announced that Dr. Royster will give selections from Kipling next Sunday night. All those who do not know how to kipple are urged to be on hand and hear the Dean's readings.

And the freshman class has voted alties or other insignia of their class affiliation. It's a wonder that some freshman class does not break the ice and plunge into the waters of class with some more personal opinion stuff. The issue appeals to us more than did do not consider it appropriate to grant the first. This is due probably to the whole University student body this some extent on account of its better table of contents. Some interesting editorials are between the two covers

The Carolina Playmakers, just returned from their annual fall crusade proposal that has been submitted. of the state report a most excellent trip. Everywhere capacity crowds came HANDBOOK ISSUED to the performances. Seven towns were played and the program met with applause everywhere. The tragedy of the Croatan Indians made a most favorable impression, it is stated by Primarily for Assistance of members of the Playmaker troupe.

Virginia's College Topics makes the statement that a team of ineligibles and freshman stars will practice up on the North Carolina plays in order to scrimmage the Old Dominion varsity. The paper adds that this scrub team, "after a few days practice should be able to execute them (the plays) almost as well as the Down Homers themselves." These Virginians must surely be marvels at play imitation.

A large number of students will go up to Virginia City next Tuesday to witness the big game between the Tar Heels and Sore Backs. It is a pity that the scrub team could not perform for the sake of the visitors. Not only have the trains put on a couple of specials but the big buss lines have an-nounced rates to and fro from Charlottesville town. The Tar Heels will be there Thanksgiving.

The state championship series in high school football is now well underway. The University community should see some very interesting games in the series. Already two championship games have been witnessed here and both games have been good ones. The high schools are putting out better almost any subject under the sun withteams than formerly and this has made in a reasonably short time. itself known in the college athletics of The last three pages of the booklet the states. A number of former state are concerned with the rules governing high stars are now stars on college teams in the state. The University is quest that the students read these rules doing a good work in conducting its and by observing them save both themhigh school athletic program.

LESS MUD vs. LESS BUSHES

And now our air castle has been bursted. The report that the road from the West gate to the entrance on Franklin street at the President's mansion will be paved is now rescinded by the campus beautification commission. It is stated by a member of the committee on campus beautification that up because the money can be better spent in other places on the campus.

If there is any one thing that, in our humble estimation, would beautify the campus it is the paving of the above described road. Not only would a concrete road through the campus be very attractive but it would be highly valnable in helping in the fight of the tion, appeared yesterday.

campus against that eternal pest mud. To have the information given us that there are some other things on the campus that need the appropriaagination to a hard task of finding out preserve the "natural" beauty of the campus but we absolutely revolt at the iden. Our preference is much more for a concrete road rather than more ushes around the campus or in the Arboretum. Utility does enter into the argument for pavement and there is hardly any utility present in the argument for more bushes.

A HOLLOW PROPOSAL

The proposal by the Dean of the Colege of Liberal Arts that fifty juniors nd seniors who attain an average of B or better be placed on a list, the members of which shall not be subject to the regulations governing absence from classes, is ostentatiously a move o demonstrate certain liberal tendencies on the part of that office, but in reality it is an empty non-meaning bit of painted up privilege. It can readily be seen that behind the proposal is the manifest assumption on the part of the powers that be that the regulations are not needed in the case of the fifty

We admit that, from a group of fifty en who maintain the average specified in the proposal, there will be practically none who would abuse the priviege of gratting classes. It is also con sidered that men who do make Phi Beta Kappa averages do not usually grat classes. The rub comes in the action of the proposed policy at the point where the faculty considers this cheme as possessing enough attraction to fill the call from students for a more liberal regard in respect to lastenkommission. Germany's economy,

The University of North Carolina repute as some would have it) of being cago and Princeton University with any such sugar coated pill of liberalsm as that which is reported in the columns of the last issue of this paper.

We should greatly desire to see some plan of suspnding the regulations covering absences from classes adopted at The Carolina Magazine is again out the University. However, as we have stated previously in these columns, we suspension of regulation. But to pre sent such a plan as the one proposed is but an under-estimation of the intelligence of the student body. We had rather not see any suspension of regulations at all than this sugar coated
