THE THANKSGIVING CLASSIC.

When the ball is kicked off on Lambeth field tomorrow afternoon the University of Virginia and the University of North Carolina will resume their struggle which has been waged annually on the grid-iron for over a quarter century.

For the past several years the Tar Heels have been getting the better of the Cavalier teams, although last year the two ancient rivals battled to a scoreless tie in a drizzling rainfall on Emerson field.

This season the Carolina team started off the season badly with several stinging but close defeats. But for the last two games the team has improved its playing marvelously. On the defensive there has been only one touchdown scored on the Tar Heels in the last six games, while the Fetzers have developed a better offense in the last few games. The Virginia team has undergone a medium season, winning several games by close scores and losing others.

Just what will be the result of the battle tomorrow is hard to predict. But at any rate the game will be well worth going a long way to see. Taking into consideration the importance that has grown to be attached to a Carolina-Virginia football game, the trip to the Virginia town is even more appealing.

The display of color, state rivalry, and the rivalry of the two institutions all join together to make the annual contest between the two institutions one of the biggest Turkey Day games in the South.

A SUBJECT FOR CONDEMNATION

Very much comment has been heard from a number of sources in regard to the local wave of "bumming rides" which seems to have struck many college communities in other parts. These comments have been anything but praises to those students who hall down all cars going towards Durham.

We are not discussing those students who walk out of town before they start hailing rides. It is those who yell at every car that passes through town. On Sunday afternoons and at other times there are large crowds of boys who yell at the cars Durham bound. One professor says that he was yelled at no less than three times between the corner of Columbia Avenue and the post office. He was not going to Durham and had his car filled with children. To hail a car that is filled seems to us to be very illogical on the part of supposedly intelligent students. Strangers or visitors to the community do not know just how to take a mob of yelling boys. It does anything but put the University in the high regard of those who should happen to pass this way or come over to visit relatives or friends.

After every game on the Hill there are yet those men who line up along the main street and yell at the cars passing by. This action as well as that above mentioned should be stopped by the students at once. The faculty and members of the student body have had too many opportunities to put in unfavorable comment on the actions of certain individuals who tend to drag

TAR-BABIES DROP THE FINAL GAME

They Start Game Like a Whirlwind.

MARYLAND WINS 13-12

The Tar Heels Scored in the First Quarter.

Starting the game with a vicious, whirlwind attack last Saturday, the Tar Babies gave every indication of winning over the Maryland freshmen; but the pace was too fast to sustain, and Maryland won 13 to 12.

Carolina scored both of her touchdowns in the first quarter. A few moments after the game began, the Tar Babies blocked a Maryland punt, recovered the ball and ran it 20 yards to Maryland's 18-yard line. Four straight line plunges put them 5 yards from the goal, and gave them first down. Three more line plunges were unavailing, but on the last down Simpson rushed the ball over. In the try for goal the ball passed squarely between the posts, but the point was barred on account of Carolina holding.

Later, in the same quarter, Maryland confused her signals and fumbled. Byerly, Carolina right end, scooped the ball up and made the prettiest run of the game, 60 yards for a touchdown. The try for point was blocked.

In the second quarter both teams seemed to be evenly matched, neither one being able to score.

Maryland's first score came early in the second half. Carolina fumbled on the Maryland kick-off. Maryland recovered on Carolina's 11-yard line. Three line plunges were tried, but the Tar Babies held. On the fourth down Whelchel, substitute quarterback, took the ball on a fake pass and skirted left end for a touchdown. Whelchel also made the extra point for goal.

In the last period Maryland again scored. Adams, left tackle, kicked from his 25-yard line 65 yards. Newcombe, Carolina tackle, attempted to return the punt, but Maryland blocked and recovered the ball on Carolina's 5-yard line. Lehner went two downs for only one yard. Linkous carried the ball through center to within a few inches of the goal line, and on the next down he carried it over. Maryland failed to make the extra point for goal.

YOUNG AND TOM QUICKELL PICKED

To Compose Carolina's Team Against State.

UNDER NEW OXFORD PLAN

Rogers and Peeler Will Represent State College.

Debaters for the Oxford Union open forum debate which will take place on Monday night, December 8, between Carolina and State college, have been selected in preliminary contests held at the two schools.

The query is: "Resolved—That the proposed amendment to the Federal Constitution authorizing the regulation of child labor should be adopted." Carolina will have one speaker on the affirmative, paired with a State speaker, opposed by a Carolina debater and a State man on the negative. Following the debate the audience is granted the privilege of asking questions. The audience will also take a vote on which side wins the debate.

Carolina's team will be composed of Malcolm M. Young of Durham, speaking on the affirmative, and Thomas C. Quickell, Jr., of Gastonia, speaking on the negative. These debaters were selected in open preliminaries held Monday night. A. K. King, of Hendersonville, was selected as alternate on the affirmative, and L. T. Bledsoe, of Asheville, is the alternate for the negative.

This is the third intercollegiate debate that Young has made here. Last year he represented Carolina in intercollegiate contests against West Virginia and Washington and Lee, while he has taken part in four intersociety contests between the Phi and Di societies and won all of them. He is a junior in the college of liberal arts, and a member of the Tau Kappa Alpha debating fraternity, besides being a member of the Sigma Upsilon literary fraternity and speaker pro tem. of the Phi assembly.

Quickell made his first debate in the preliminary. Heralded as unknown material before the preliminary contest was held, he surprised some of the older men by delivering an excellent speech. Quickell is a sophomore pre-medical student, and last year was prominent in the Carolina Playmakers.

State college's affirmative speaker will be Ralph J. Peeler, of Granite Quarry. He is a junior, in the school of agriculture, and was a member of the victorious freshman intersociety debate team in his freshman year at State; also being a member of the sophomore intersociety debate team which was victorious in his sophomore year. Peeler is a speaker of wide experience, did his prep work at Rowan County Farm Life school and is vice-president of the Leazer Literary society at State.

State's negative speaker will be Henry H. Rogers, of Raleigh, a freshman in the school of science and business. He is a native of New York, and has debated at three high schools; namely, Raleigh, N. C., and Huntington and Eccles, West Virginia, where he has had four years high school experience, and is a member of the Pullen Literary society at State.

Carolina men trying out in the preliminaries were Pierce Matthews, A. K. King and M. M. Young, on the affirmative; L. T. Bledsoe and T. C. Quickell, Jr., on the negative. Judges were H. D. Meyer, professor of sociology; W. J. Matherly, professor of economics, and Gerald W. Johnson, head of the department of journalism. L. B. Taylor was the presiding officer.

RALEIGH TO SEE THE PLAYMAKERS

Plays Given Tonight in Capital City.

WINSTON'S OLD HOME

Attractive Posters Being Used in Advertising.

The Carolina Playmakers will appear tonight in three one-act plays at the State theatre in Raleigh, the performance being presented under the auspices of the Raleigh Colonial Dames. Raleigh will be the last town visited by the Playmakers on their ninth state tour.

They will appear there in "The Honor of Bonava," a period play of reconstruction days in the South, by Judge Robert W. Winston, "freshman at sixty" and former resident of Raleigh; "Pellucid in Horse Cove," a comedy of election day in the mountains, by Martha Boswell, and "The Scuffletown Outlaws," a tragedy by William Cox, the scene of which is laid in Robeson county. The old Southern gentleman, the carpet-bagger, peanut politicians, mountaineers and outlaws, all home-grown, are uniting this year in showing North Carolina another picture of itself.

The interest of Raleigh people will naturally center in Judge Winston's play because of the Judge's former association with this city and his large acquaintance here, and because of friendly curiosity in seeing how the University's oldest collegian acquits himself as a playwright. Judge Winston's return to the University last year as a student after retiring from a long and successful law practice has become one of North Carolina's most picturesque feature stories.

For the first time the Playmakers' troupe includes a "star" of considerable dramatic experience, Miss Louise Sawyer, formerly with the Coffer-Miller players. Miss Sawyer, who came to Chapel Hill from Illinois to study under Professor Frederick Koch, plays the leading woman's part in all three plays. Heretofore the actors in the Playmakers' pieces have all been amateurs who have often given performances of unusual vigor and spontaneity.

The Playmakers have been advertised this year by an effective poster drawn by Mary Deb. Graves, of Chapel Hill, the central group of which is a farmer and his wife, and a pirate, suggesting both the realism and the romance that the Carolina Playmakers have found in the life of North Carolina and in its tradition. A galleon in full sail is on the ocean in the background and a mountain cabin balances it on the other side of the poster.

CAROLINA NETMEN OFF TO VIRGINIA

Meet Old Dominion Team in Annual Match This Afternoon—Five Men Make Trip.

This afternoon at Charlottesville, the varsity tennis team will meet the Virginia racquetiers in the annual fall Carolina-Virginia match. The following five men will probably make the trip: Solomon (Capt.), Fuller, Whitaker, Blaylock and Elgin.

The most outstanding feat accomplished by the team this season is the sweeping victory, in both singles and doubles, won at Pinehurst in the mid-south tournament. Fuller and Solomon, of the winning doubles team, eliminated two of Harvard's crack netmen in order to win the championship. Whitaker, in winning the singles crown, defeated Lovering, one of the Harvard men, by a decisive score.

GLEE CLUB RETURNS FROM WINSTON TRIP

University Singers Appeared Before the Conference of Southern Music Supervisors in Twin-City.

The Glee Club of the University has returned from the trip to Winston-Salem covered with glory and praise. The songsters appeared before the Conference of Southern Music Supervisors on Thursday evening and were hailed enthusiastically. George H. Gartlan, director of music of the city of New York, commended the work of the club in the Winston-Salem Journal, from which the following is quoted:

"The concert of the Glee Club of the University of North Carolina under the direction of Paul John Weaver was a fitting climax to the Inter-Club Council informal dinner tendered last evening to the Southern Music Supervisors' conference at the Robert E. Lee hotel.

"This was the first public appearance of the glee club of this year, and the rendition of last night's program in such an excellent manner was due to the direction of Mr. Weaver.

"The program last night ranged from the difficult chorals of Johann Sebastian Bach and the "Miserere Mei Deus" down to the present day songs so familiar to admirers of male chorus singing. "It is but proper to state that it is encouraging to note that music is being accredited in most of the colleges and universities of the country, and the glee clubs in many cases are getting the same consideration as the football and baseball activities of the colleges."

Dr. Thomas Finnegan spoke highly of the work of the club, saying that it was fully worth the trip down from New York. Mrs. Frances E. Clark, educational director of the Victor Talking Machine company, who is also second vice-president of the American Federation of Music Clubs, characterized the singing as being, with the exception of that of the Westminster choir, the finest choral men's singing she had ever heard. The club has been given its meed of praise in reward for the work it has done, and the high standard it has maintained.

Miss Kluttz Is Hostess At Dance

Mrs. A. A. Klutta was hostess at a delightful dance given at the Chapel Hill Country club on Saturday evening. The honorees were Miss Sudie Creech, Miss Berta Crawford, Miss Mary Crawford and Miss Susan Borden, of Goldsboro; Miss Ruth Leary of Morehead, Miss Mary Love Davis of Wake Forest, and Miss Sadie Hobbs of Edenton.

Assisting Mrs. Klutta in receiving the guests were Mrs. T. J. Wilson, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Wilson, Mrs. Johnson, and Mrs. R. S. McClamroch. The club was decorated with pine boughs and ivy, festooned over the lights which were shaded with orange. Punch, cakes and candy were served during the evening. The occasion was thoroughly enjoyed by a large number of guests.
