

DEBATE PRELIMINARY SET FOR FEB. 17TH

Debate With University of West Virginia, At Morganton, Scheduled for March 30th.

The dual debate between Carolina and West Virginia, which takes place this year in Morganton, W. Va., has been definitely scheduled to take place Monday, March 30, according to announcement by M. M. Young, Secretary of the Debate Council.

The query this year is "Resolved: That Congress should be empowered to override decisions of the Supreme Court that declare Congressional acts unconstitutional." North Carolina will defend the negative. The time limit in the finals will be 17 minutes, not more than five of which shall be used on the rebuttal.

Preliminaries will be held Tuesday night, February 17, in the Phi hall, beginning at 7:30 o'clock. Three men will represent Carolina.

West Virginia has won two successive victories over the Tar Heels. They won a unanimous decision in 1923 and a 2 to 1 victory here last year. Carolina hopes to secure forensic vengeance this year.

Contestants desiring to try for places on the team are urged to begin work immediately. Law or history professors can be consulted for aid on the question.

PLAYMAKERS RETURN FROM SUCCESSFUL SOUTHERN TOUR

yet appeared have come reports of enthusiastic welcomes. In Atlanta they were tendered a brilliant dinner by the Atlanta Drama League and the two North Carolina Societies of Atlanta. At the theatre, boxes were draped in North Carolina flags and the girls who served as ushers wore North Carolina colors.

The Columbia Record says of the plays "So well written, produced and enacted were the three plays presented by the Playmakers that they would have easily satisfied any cosmopolitan audience. But to the audience that filled the Town Theatre the plays were more than merely satisfying. Dramatically strong, with intense human interest that portrays the life of any section of the country, to the Columbia audience they were most interesting since the plays were inspired from scenes and peoples living just across the line, in North Carolina." The Columbia State refers to the universality of the plays as follows: "They make a drama so finely theatrical, so humanly honest that it loses its locale the while it emphasizes it. Hereafter Columbia will watch with keen interest what the Carolina Players are doing, for their presentation last night at the Town theater of three plays of their own making proved them sound and sincere of purpose, sure of method and intent upon a worthwhile task."

The trip includes Badin, N. C., Columbia, S. C., Atlanta, Ga., Macon, Ga., Savannah, Ga., Charleston, S. C., Lumberton, N. C., and Pinchurst, N. C.

DOGS, PIGS, FROGS AND FISH ARE COMING HERE

A lecture illustrated from life is unusual and the menagerie will attract many students eager to observe the experiments. The subject of this lecture is "Methods of Physiological Assay of Various Drugs," but it will be non-technical in nature, enabling anyone to hear and enjoy it. The speaker comes here under the auspices of the University Branch of the American Pharmaceutical Association which brings each year outstanding men of the profession to speak to the students and community.

Dr. Pittenger is one of the best known biological chemists in America. He was the winner of the Ebert prize in 1923, awarded annually by the American Pharmaceutical Association for the most valuable research work in pharmaceutical studies. He is also the chairman of the committee on physiological testing and of the scientific section of this association. He is the author of many biochemical books and is a regular contributor to various scientific journals. At the present time he is actively engaged as chief research chemist for the H. K. Mulford company, biological and manufacturing chemists of Philadelphia.

Among his recent works that are of general interest was an experiment to determine the behavior on animals of certain South American drugs, discovered by Dr. H. H. Rusby of Columbia university when he headed the Mulford expedition to South America to explore the medicinal flora of that country. One of the drugs he found which was later used by Dr. Pittenger in his experiments was caapi, a drug especially interesting because it is used by the natives of southeastern Colombia as a ceremonial drink.

There is, among the savages, a belief that all tribal misfortunes and impending dangers are the work of a personal devil and that these dangers may be escaped only through the exercising of this evil spirit. This exercising, they believe, may be accomplished by the exhibition of great virtue, which, with them, takes the form of patiently enduring suffering and courageously facing the danger. This action is usually an ordeal of torture and is effected by drinking caapi.

BOXING TEAM IS PRACTICING HARD

Holding Daily Practice in Tin Can.

TWO VIRGINIA TRIPS

Meets Virginia Military Institute On February 11.

At last the leather pushers at the University have something definite to work for. With a well timed schedule and a good place to train the Tar Heel boxers are going after all the glory that can be gotten out of a first year's schedule. Daily, at the Tin Can the old timers go through their training sessions. These men know the game pretty well for college boys and it is to them that new men should look for their instructions in the fundamentals of self defense, blocking, foot work and hitting.

Boxing offers the small man a chance at athletic honors. The smallest man in school has as much chance as the toughest and biggest player on the football squad. Boxing runs by weights; there is a weight for every man from 105 lb. up to the unlimited class. This gives every man a chance to come out, to learn the game, to develop the body, and to do his bit for Carolina's youngest sport. More men are needed for the squad. The team has not been picked, and there is a chance for any man who will come out and work to make the team, the trips, and finally gain recognition from the Athletic Association as a monogram sport.

The boxing team will make two trips through Virginia. On Wednesday night, February the 11th, they box V. M. I. at Lexington. They stay there until the following Saturday night and box Washington and Lee. On the 28th of February they go to Charlottesville to meet the Cavaliers. This will be their hardest meet, and if they win any of them this is the one to go after. With the backing of the student body, the squad promises to give a team of which all will be justly proud.

WEE BUCK DUKES LICK TAR BABIES

Frosh Nosed Out by Score of 28 to 24.

LED DURING FIRST HALF

But Bucks Outscore Them In Final Session.

Coach Shepherd's yearlings struck disaster in their game last Wednesday night with the Duke freshmen and were forced to accept their second defeat out of three starts by the score of 28 to 24.

The game was fast and sharply played with the end in doubt up until the final moment of play. At times both teams showed extraordinarily good form for first year terms and gave promise of strong teams for both institutions later in the season.

At the end of the first half the Tar Babies were on the long end of a 10 to 9 score, but during the second half were unable to hold their advantage and were soon passed by the Dukelets.

Newcombe was the leading light for Carolina and with nine points to his credit was the high scorer of the game. His dribbling and team work was also exceptionally good. Yanstony ran him a close second for scoring honors with seven points. Morris played a good game at guard and also rung up a field goal.

For the young Dukes, Weaver and Bennett were the big noises, and a large part of the credit for the downfall of Coach Shepherd's men goes to them. They covered the floor well and Weaver tossed the ball through the hoop for 7 points while Bennett came through with four markers. Hartness also played a good game and tied Weaver for team high scorer with seven points.

Line-up and summary:
Freshmen (28) NbrHoao
Duke (28) N. C. (24)
Hartness (7) Skinner (2)
Carmichael (2) R. F.
Perkins (2) L. F.
Kelly (6) Newcombe (9)
Weaver (7) C.
Ferrell
Bennett (4) R. G.
Morris (2) L. G.

Substitutions—Duke: Rogers (2) for Carmichael, Carmichael for Roberts. Carolina: Perkins for Skinner, Yanstony (7) for Perkins, Delaney (2) for Morris Skinner for Delaney, Delaney for Skinner. Field goals, Duke freshmen 11, Carolina freshmen 10. Time quarters, 10 minutes. Referee, Steiner; Timekeeper, Card.

Individual entry blanks have been mailed to high schools throughout the State by E. R. Rankin, secretary of the High School Athletic Association, for participation in the high school basketball contest. The elimination series will be held immediately after Feb. 7. The 2 new outstanding rules are that a physical examination of the participants will be necessary and that a student shall be a member of a grade at least as high as the eighth which heretofore was the seventh.

COLLEGE CHEERS FOR RADIO FANS

U. N. C. Songs and Cheers Broadcasted Tonight.

BY GENERAL ELECTRIC

First Inter-Collegiate Night On the Air Ever Held.

University of North Carolina songs and cheers will be one of the features of International Intercollegiate Night on the Air, a program which will be broadcast by WGY, the General Electric broadcasting station, direct from the Edison Club tonight, at Schenectady, N. Y.

Other features of the evening will include the songs and cheers of many other colleges and universities; songs by the British Empire group, consisting of college men from New Zealand, Australia, South Africa, India, Canada, and the British Isles; a burlesque skit presented by Massachusetts Institute of Technology alumni; musical selections by the Edison Club string orchestra composed entirely of college graduates; instrumental and vocal solo numbers rendered by former college men now in the employ of the General Electric Company; native songs by a quartet of graduates of the Royal Polytechnic Institute of Sweden; native music played by Chinese engineers; and group singing by all those participating in the entertainment, as well as one or more short talks.

This program, which will constitute the entire evening's entertainment from WGY, will go on the air at 7:30 P. M. More than 500 college men will participate in it, and at least 45 colleges and universities in this country and abroad, will be represented.

While collegiate numbers will comprise a large portion of the program there will be numerous classical solo numbers. Many of the men on the program were prominent in musical circles while in college, having been members of their glee and musical clubs.

Regarding the treatment of criminals, Miss Branson recommended the inauguration of a plan in North Carolina by which the convicted law-breakers of the state could be treated in open-air farm colonies on a self-supporting basis. Then, she said, the financial burdens of the law abiding would be less, the chances of restoration greater—that is, under proper management, and the restoration of prisoners to decent citizenship greatly increased. The plan calls for separate state farms for each sex and each race, for misdemeanants as well as felony convicts and a proper classification of offenders in each colony. It is the plan that is being successfully carried out in the state of Indiana.

Regarding education, Miss Branson said: "There cannot be equalization of the school fund until there is an equalization of taxables throughout the state." "In one essential matter of public education North Carolina is pursuing what in my opinion is a doubtful policy, namely, the centralized control of educational machinery. Thus the state appoints the county school boards and in turn these boards appoint the county school superintendents and with the school boards the county superintendents appoint the teachers. The result is state autocracy in elementary schools, county high schools, and teacher training schools."

ONLY THIRTY-FIVE MEN ARE OUT FOR PRACTICE

Coaches Fetzer, Pritchard, Lowe and Captain McIver At Work On Candidates.

About 35 men have been going through daily practice on the freshman field under the direction of Coach Bob in preparation for next fall's football team. Uniforms have been issued to all the men including shoulder pads and other full equipment, and scrimmages will be held before practice closes.

Just now the work is being confined to the drilling of the fundamentals and teaching of individuals rather than making any attempt at teamwork. Instruction in handling the body on defense and offense is being given the line men, while the backs are practicing running and passing the ball.

Coach Bob has not announced when scrimmages will be held, other than to say that the actual combat will take place before the winter practice is drawn to a close. He has not ceased his work because of the bad weather, but on days when the field is in too bad a condition for practice he holds skull practice in Murphy hall.

Basketball is keeping some of last year's regulars away and most of the men attending practice are from the freshman and second teams. Captain McIver is on hand and is assisting Coach Bob in training the line men. Coaches Pritchard and Lowe are also aiding in the work. Lowe has charge of the back field men.

FORMER STUDENTS ARE GETTING RECOGNITION

Erstwhile Carolina Playmakers Are Gradually Climbing Into the Lighthouse of Theatre World.

Carolina Playmaker writers and actors have now gone beyond the borders of their own state with their work, and several of them have received distinct recognition in New York City. Elizabeth Taylor, who finished her Playmaker training in 1922, has received highly favorable comment on her acting in Ernest Vajda's play, "The Little Angel" at the Frazee Theatre. A recent issue of the Billboard contains a special article with Miss Taylor's picture and an interview telling of her rapid progress to success on the stage.

Tom Wolfe, another former member of the Carolina Playmakers, has had his play "Welcome to our City" produced by Professor Baker in the Harvard "47 Workshop", and the New York Theatre Guild offered to produce the play if it could be condensed so as to make the performance half an hour shorter.

Tom Pace and Ernest Thompson, both from the University and the latter a prominent playwright on the campus last year, are taking minor parts in New York plays.

Hatcher Hughes, another University graduate and former faculty member, won the Pulitzer Prize last year by his play, "Hell-Bent for Heaven," in which he pictured life among North Carolina mountaineers.

problem for the community, and on the other, one for the state, it was pointed out. The report emphasized that each needs the cooperation of the other, and if the state, the community, and private agencies and individuals could gain that cooperation and recognition of mutual responsibilities a large problem could be satisfactorily settled.

It was asserted, for instance, that "one of the most pressing state problems is its treatment of the tubercular. There are more than 30,000 open, pronounced cases in North Carolina, and the number of undetected incipient cases is many times more. Is it possible to imagine one, two, six, or even ten state institutions that could serve as curing stations for this large number of tubercular patients? Instead of the impossible and impractical idea of making the state sanatorium large enough to cure 30,000 patients, is it not more sensible to make it just large enough to be a demonstration and care—a model for local public organization and expert methods of treatment center of proper equipment, proper hospitals, setting realistic standards for local efforts—a state-wide agency of health education in the prevention and cure of tuberculosis? Let each county rich enough to do it establish its own tuberculosis hospital, as two or three such counties have already done, or two or three poorer counties in cooperation, as is now being proposed in two or three regions of the state, all modeled on the central state sanatorium, and all directed and inspected by the state sanatorium staff."

Regarding the treatment of criminals, Miss Branson recommended the inauguration of a plan in North Carolina by which the convicted law-breakers of the state could be treated in open-air farm colonies on a self-supporting basis. Then, she said, the financial burdens of the law abiding would be less, the chances of restoration greater—that is, under proper management, and the restoration of prisoners to decent citizenship greatly increased. The plan calls for separate state farms for each sex and each race, for misdemeanants as well as felony convicts and a proper classification of offenders in each colony. 635 BAD CHECKS WERE GIVEN LAST FALL sent to the dean as soon as the notice is given the student, so that if the check is not provided for within the specified time, the name may be turned over to the registrar who will make the necessary suspension.

In case of a second offense on the part of the same student, it is reported to the Student Council for disciplinary action. Since this system was inaugurated in the fall, two boys have been suspended from school and several others placed on strict probation for periods varying according to the seriousness of the demeanor.

All the checks which have been returned have been made good so that the net loss is comparatively small. There are some cases, however, when the student has left school before the notice was received from the banks and the Dean of Student's office was not able to get in personal touch with the drawee but in each instance a notice was sent to his home address and a response usually received.

There is a law in force in the state which makes it a misdemeanor to write a check for which there are insufficient funds and it is the purpose of University authorities to adhere strictly to this law so that men will not be turned out into the state who have been accustomed to treat the law lightly, and with little concern.

UNIVERSITY FIVE LEAVE FOR LONG NORTHERN TOUR

on the "Flying Cadets" on the following night. The Cadets were one of the two teams that beat Wake Forest on the Deacon's trip through Virginia and with the advantage of the home court should force the Carolinians to the limit to win.

Resting in Lexington until the following night, Captain Cobb and his crew take on the Washington and Lee quint. The Generals are famous for excellent quints and for the past two years have played Carolina one of their closest games.

Coach McDonald is hoping to join the team in Lexington for these last two games.
